

violations of 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2), 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii), the Fourth Amendment, and the Fifth Amendment. (See generally Doc. 1.)

Oscar Morales Cisneros, Wilder Munguia Esquivel, and Yolanda Aguilera Martinez seek provisional class certification. (Doc. 14.) Plaintiffs also seek a preliminary injunction, “preliminarily enjoining Defendants from continuing their practices of (1) detentive stops without regard to reasonable suspicion that the person stopped is in the country unlawfully, and (2) warrantless arrests without regard to probable cause that the person arrested is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained.” (See Doc. 15 at 2.) Defendants oppose both motions. (Docs. 31, 32.) The Court held a hearing on the pending motions on April 28, 2025. For the reasons set forth below, the motion for provisional class certification is GRANTED, and the motion for a preliminary injunction is GRANTED.

BACKGROUND¹

I. “Operation Return to Sender”

The U.S. Border Patrol is “responsible for securing U.S. borders between ports of entry,” and “is the mobile, uniformed law enforcement arm of U.S. Customs and Border Protection.” (Doc. 1 at 12, ¶ 38; see also Doc. 15-2 at 103.) Border Patrol agents launched “Operation Return to Sender” in early January 2025, sending approximately 60 agents to the Central Valley region, which lies within the Eastern District of California. (See Doc. 1 at 2, ¶ 1; see also Doc. 15-2 at 72.) Border Patrol indicated to local news media that the Operation focused on alleged drug and human traffickers. (See Doc. 15-2 at 72.)

Plaintiffs contend the Operation was “a nearly weeklong sweep through predominantly Latino areas of Kern County and the surrounding region to stop, detain, and arrest people of color who appeared to be farm workers or day laborers, regardless of their actual immigration status or individual circumstances.” (Doc. 1 at 2, ¶ 1; see also id. at 43-44, ¶¶ 235-236.) Plaintiffs allege Border Patrol took the following steps as part of “Operation Return to Sender”:

Step One: “Stop Regardless of Reasonable Suspicion.” Plaintiffs allege that “Border Patrol relied on a practice of conducting detentive stops regardless of reasonable suspicion that a person was in the country unlawfully.” (Doc. 1 at 3, ¶ 5.)

Step Two: “Arrest Regardless of Flight Risk.” Plaintiffs assert that “Border Patrol agents also relied on a practice of escalating stops to warrantless arrests without evaluating whether the arrestee posed a flight risk.” (Doc. 1 at 3, ¶ 8.) In addition, Plaintiffs contend that “when an arrestee affirmatively informed Border Patrol agents of facts showing they were not a flight risk, Border Patrol agents ignored them.” (Id., emphasis in original).

Step Three: “Expel Without Explanation.” Plaintiffs contend, “Once Border Patrol agents transported the people they arrested to the El Centro Station... [they would] extract voluntary departure agreements from as many people as possible without explaining the consequences.” (Doc. 1 at 4, ¶ 9.) Plaintiffs also contend “agents provided a slew of misinformation about voluntary departure.” (Id. at 5, ¶ 11.)

(See Doc. 1 at 3-6, ¶¶ 5-15; see also id. at 43, ¶ 234.)

Plaintiffs observe that under the Fourth Amendment, Border Patrol agents are prohibited “from detaining a person, whether in a private vehicle or on foot, without reasonable suspicion that the person is in the country unlawfully.” (Doc. 1 at 2, ¶ 2.) Plaintiffs note a detentive stop cannot be justified by “person’s perceived race, ethnic background, or occupation” or “refusal to answer voluntary questions.” (Id.) Plaintiffs assert that immigration officers—including Border Patrol agents—are prohibited “from making indiscriminate arrests without a warrant” without making a “finding that a person (1) is violating immigration law and (2) is a flight risk....” (Id., citing 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) [emphasis omitted].) Plaintiffs claim also that “the Fifth Amendment prohibits Border Patrol agents from subjecting people in their custody to “voluntary departure”—a form of summary expulsion—unless they knowingly and voluntarily waive their right to an immigration court hearing.” (Id.) According to Plaintiffs, “Operation Return to Sender” disregarded these legal rights “by design.” (Id., ¶ 3.)

Plaintiffs contend that during the Operation, Border Patrol agents from the United States/Mexico Border traveled approximately 300 miles north to the Bakersfield region. (Doc. 1 at 2, ¶ 1.) “Border Patrol agents roved Highway 99, the central artery of the agricultural heart of the San Joaquin Valley, and other roads in predominantly Latino neighborhoods and agricultural areas.” (Id. at 44, ¶ 235.) The “agents tailed cars, flashing their lights, or pulled cars over from the shoulder; targeted people of color, people who appeared to be farm workers, and people who appeared to be day

1 laborers for stops; and did so without any basis to believe that anyone in the car was violating an 2 immigration law.” (Id.)

3 Plaintiffs allege that during the Operation, “Border Patrol agents went to businesses in 4 predominantly Latino neighborhoods and areas where farm workers and day laborers gather.” (Doc. 1 5 at 44, ¶ 236.) The “agents roved parking lots and blocked parked cars from behind with their own
 6 vehicles to stop and detain people inside the cars.” (Id.) “Border Patrol agents targeted people of color 7 parked in their cars without any basis to believe that anyone in the car was violating an immigration 8 law.” (Id.) According to Plaintiffs, if a person on foot “verbally exercised their right to remain silent, 9 walked away, or otherwise declined to consent to questioning, Border Patrol agents escalated the 10 interaction to a detentive stop or arrest, conducted warrantless searches without consent, and did so 11 without any basis to believe the person was violating an immigration law.” (Id., ¶ 237.) “[W]hen a 12 person in a vehicle declined to answer Border Patrol agents’ questions or consent to the encounter, the 13 agents similarly escalated the encounter by blocking the car in, smashing the car’s windows, slashing 14 the car’s tires, and/or ordering or physically pulling people out of vehicles and handcuffing them.”
 15 (Id., ¶ 238.)

16 Plaintiffs allege Border Patrol agents arrested individuals without “probable cause to believe 17 that the person posed a risk of escape.” (Doc. 1 at 44, ¶ 239.) Border Patrol agents did not “assess[] ...
 18 a person’s flight risk or attempt to obtain a warrant before making an arrest.” (Id.) Rather, the “agents 19 indiscriminately arrested people..., including people with pending immigration applications, no 20 criminal history, established residences in the community, steady employment, family in the United 21 States, or other community ties mitigating any purported flight risk.” (Id. at 44-45, ¶ 239.)

22 II. Experiences of Named Plaintiffs

23 The named plaintiffs contend they were each targeted as part of “Operation Return to Sender.”
 24 Plaintiffs allege that “Border Patrol targeted them”— and similarly situated individuals— “based on 25 their appearance, including their apparent race or ethnicity.” (Doc. 1 at 57, ¶ 289.) Plaintiffs allege 26 that the Border Patrol agents lacked reasonable suspicion for the executed stops (id. ¶¶ 69, 88, 101, 27 126, 163) and that the agents lacked probable cause to believe the plaintiffs were likely to escape 28 before warrants could be obtained. (Id., ¶¶ 70, 89, 102, 127, 164.)

1 A. Oscar Morales Cisneros

2 Oscar Morales Cisneros is 51 years old and works in maintenance and construction. (Doc. 15-3 9 at 2, Decl. ¶¶ 2-3.) He lived in Los Angeles County for approximately 15 years before moving to 4 Bakersfield in 2021. (Id., ¶ 2.) He has no criminal history. (Id.)

5 Morales Cisneros asserts “Border Patrol agents stopped him” on January 7, 2025. (Doc. 1 at 9, 6 ¶ 27.) He states that “after leaving work to head home,” he stopped at a water filling station outside a 7 liquor store “located in a predominantly Latino-populated neighborhood.” (Doc. 15-9 at 2, ¶ 4; see also 8 Doc. 1 at 16, ¶ 49.) While in the cab of his truck—which was registered under his name, had current 9 registration, and no stickers or decals—an unmarked Chevy Tahoe pulled in behind his truck and 10 “blocked him in the parking spot.” (Id.) He “put the truck back in park and lowered [the] driver’s side 11 window.” (Id.) Two agents wearing green “Border Patrol” uniforms stood outside his truck. (Id.)

12 According to Morales Cisneros, a Spanish-speaking agent, later identified as “Officer 13 Sanchez,” asked if he “had papers and was here legally.” (Doc 15-9 at 2, ¶ 5.) Morales Cisneros 14 “exercised [his] right to remain silent and did not answer [the] questions.” (Id.) However, he 15 provided his driver’s license upon the agents’ request, which the agents took to their vehicle. (Id.) 16 Morales Cisneros states that he called his daughter to tell her that Border Patrol agents stopped him.
17 (Id.) Officer Sanchez asked for the call to be put on speaker, identified himself to Morales Cisneros’ 18 daughter, and informed her that Morales Cisneros “was being detained by Border Patrol for being here 19 illegally without documents.” (Id. at 2-3, ¶¶ 5-6; see also Doc. 1 at 16-17, ¶¶ 52-53.) Officer Sanchez 20 then ended the call and asked Morales Cisneros to step out of the truck. (Id. at 3, ¶ 6.) Officer 21 Sanchez handcuffed him and placed him in the Border Patrol vehicle. (Id.) The agents did not 22 produce a warrant or explain why they stopped him, other than while on the phone with his daughter.
23 (Id.) The agents did not ask about his “ties to the community,” including his family members, work
24 history, or how long he “lived in the neighborhood.” (Id.) Thus, Plaintiffs contend the Border Patrol 25 agents did not “undertake any other evaluation of whether [Morales Cisneros] posed a risk of flight.”
26 (Doc. 1 at 17, ¶ 54.)

27 The Border Patrol agents drove around Bakersfield, with him handcuffed, for about two hours.
28 (Doc. 15-9 at 3, ¶ 6.) “At one point, the agents stopped at a gas station and pulled up behind a vehicle

1 to block it in, like they had done to [him].” (Id., ¶ 7.) Morales Cisneros “overheard one of the agents 2 say in English, ‘We’re doing our job.’” (Id.) The people “were let go and the agents returned to the 3 Chevy Tahoe.” (Id.)

4 Morales Cisneros asserts the agents took him “to a station where he saw other people were 5 being detained and a bus was waiting.” (Doc. 1 at 18, ¶ 56.) He was fingerprinted, photographed, and 6 his personal belongings were placed in a bag. (Doc. 15-9 at 3, ¶ 8.) He asked an agent if he could call 7 his daughter, and the request was granted, after which agents also took his cell phone. (Id.) Morales 8 Cisneros estimates there were “about 40 people on the bus” when it “left the station late in the 9 evening.” (Id., ¶ 9.) His bus arrived at the El Centro Station, a detention center in Imperial County, 10 “in the early morning hours” of January 8, 2025.” (Id.; see also Doc. 1 at 17, ¶ 58.)

11 After processing, Morales Cisneros saw an agent who presented two options: (1) “agree to 12 voluntary departure” or (2) “wait to see a judge.” (Doc. 15-9 at 4, ¶ 11.) Through the next two days, 13 Morales Cisneros maintained he wished to see a judge and speak to a lawyer. (Id. at 5, ¶ 17; see also 14 id. at 4-5 ¶¶ 13-14.) On January 10, 2025, an agent instructed Morales Cisneros “to sign [his] name on 15 a small electronic pad to be released.” (Id., ¶ 18.) He alleges the agent also indicated the signature 16 was required “to see a judge and be put on a monitoring device.” (Id.) Morales Cisneros signed as 17 directed. (Id.) Morales Cisneros “was fitted with a monitoring device on [his] wrist,” and released by 18 Border Patrol that evening. (Id. at 5-6, ¶¶ 18-19.)

19 According to Plaintiffs, “the Border Patrol agents who stopped and detained [] Morales 20 Cisneros did not have reasonable suspicion that he was unlawfully present in the United States.”
21 (Doc. 1 at 19, ¶ 69.) Plaintiffs also contend that Border Patrol “did not have probable cause to believe 22 he was likely to escape before a warrant could be obtained for his arrest.” (Id., ¶ 70.)

23 B. Wilder Munguia Esquivel

24 Wilder Munguia Esquivel is 38 years old. (Doc. 15-10 at 2, Decl. ¶ 2.) He has lived in 25 Bakersfield for about 12 years with his brother and his family, all of whom are U.S. citizens. (Id.) He 26 is a licensed handyman and works as a day laborer. (Id., ¶ 3.) Munguia Esquivel had “a pending 27 family petition” at the time of the relevant events. (Id., ¶ 8.) He has no criminal history. (Id.)

28 He reports that on January 7, 2025, around 12:00 p.m., he was standing with a group of other

1 day laborers outside Home Depot on Ming Avenue in Bakersfield when “[s]everal unmarked vehicles 2 pulled up.” (Doc. 15-10 at 2, ¶ 4.) At least 10 men—most of whom had “masks covering their faces, 3 with holes only for their eyes”—got out of the vehicles and “aggressively swarmed” around the day 4 laborers. (Id., ¶¶ 4-5.) The men “wore civilian clothing and [he] did not see any badges.” (Id.)
5 Munguia Esquivel “first thought ... [the men] might be terrorists mugging or kidnapping [the day 6 laborers].” (Id., ¶ 5.) He also wondered if he would be murdered. (Id.) He reports the men “wore 7 civilian clothing and [he] did not see any badges.” (Id.)

8 The unidentified agents demanded the day laborers’ “papers.” (Doc. 15-10 at 2, ¶ 5.) The 9 agents “did not seem to be targeting specific individuals.” (Id. at 3, ¶ 10.) An agent asked Munguia 10 Esquivel, “directly in Spanish, ‘Do you have papers? Do you have identification? Where are you 11 from?’” (Id. at 2, ¶ 5.) The agent questioning him wore a mask covering his face, hat, and thick 12 sunglasses. (Id.) Munguia Esquivel had no idea who the man was, and he did not respond to the 13 questioning. (Id.) They “kept yelling ... louder and louder,” asking if Munguia Esquivel had papers 14 and where he was from. (Id.) Munguia Esquivel “began to slowly walk away,” but the agent followed 15 and continued yelling. (Id.) Munguia Esquivel “stayed quiet.” (Id.) In Spanish, the agent then 16 ordered him to “turn around” to be handcuffed. (Id.) According to Munguia Esquivel, “[i]t was 17 around this time that [he] realized the men were federal immigration agents.” (Id.)

18 He told the agent, “I have the right to remain silent,” but the agent ignored him. (Doc. 15-10 at 19 2, ¶ 6.) The agent directed Munguia Esquivel to pull out his wallet but, before he could comply, the 20 agent “forcefully yanked [his] left arm” and removed the wallet from Munguia Esquivel’s back 21 pocket. (Id. at 2-3, ¶¶ 6-7.) Munguia Esquivel believes that “[t]he agent who arrested [him] did not 22 know” who he was. (Id. at 3, ¶ 10.) The agent did not ask about his “community ties, such as [his] 23 family, work history, or how long” Munguia Esquivel had been living in Bakersfield. (Id., ¶ 8.)

24 Munguia Esquivel was warned to call a family member to pick up his truck within 20 minutes 25 from Home Depot, or the truck would be towed. (Doc. 15-10 at 3, ¶ 7.) He reports that when his 26 sister-in-law and niece came to get the truck, they told Border Patrol agents that he “was in the process 27 of regularizing [his] immigration status.” (Id., ¶ 9.) However, “[t]he agents did not care and said they 28 were taking [him] anyway.” (Id.)

1 Border Patrol agents first drove Munguia Esquivel to the back lot of Home Depot, where he 2 “saw several vehicles and over ten people who had been detained, including some who were elderly.”
 3 (Doc. 15-10 at 3, Decl. ¶ 10.) He estimates that after about 15 to 20 minutes, the agents transported 4 him “to a makeshift facility on 7th Standard Road in Bakersfield.” (Id.) He saw “[o]ne bus ... already 5 full of people who had been detained,” and “[a] second bus arrived.” (Id., ¶ 11.) While at the facility, 6 agents fingerprinted and photographed Munguia Esquivel and ordered him to place belongings in a 7 bag. (Id., ¶ 12.) He remained at the 7th Standard Road facility until the evening, at which time Border 8 Patrol agents placed him on a bus to “a detention facility in Imperial County.” (Id. at 4, ¶ 13.)

9 Munguia Esquivel reports that on January 10, an agent informed him that he could leave that 10 day, but he would “have conditions.” (Doc. 15-10 at 5, ¶ 17.) However, he is unsure of the conditions 11 imposed. (Id., ¶¶ 17-18.) He was released and returned to Bakersfield. (See id., ¶ 19; Doc. 1 at 22, ¶ 12 86.) This experience “was deeply traumatizing.” (Id. at 6, ¶ 20.) He states that he feels terrified when 13 he goes near the Home Depot. (Id.) He asks himself “if it is really necessary” when he leaves the 14 house because he “fear[s] that immigration agents will stop, arrest, and detain [him] again.” (Id.) He 15 also fears Border Patrol “will try again to pressure [him] to agree to deportation.” (Id.)

16 According to Plaintiffs, “the Border Patrol agents who stopped and detained [] Munguia 17 Esquivel did not have reasonable suspicion that he was unlawfully present in the United States.” (Doc.
 18 1 at 23, ¶ 88.) Plaintiffs also contend the agents “did not have probable cause to believe he was likely 19 to escape before a warrant could be obtained for his arrest.” (Id., ¶ 89.)

20 C. Yolanda Aguilera Martinez

21 Yolanda Aguilera Martinez is 56 years old and has “lived in Kern County for close to 45 22 years.” (Doc. 15-11 at 2, Decl. ¶¶ 2-3.) She immigrated to the United States “when [she] was around 23 six years old and became a lawful permanent resident at around 20 years old.” (Id., ¶ 2.) She has no 24 criminal history. (Id.)

25 On January 8, 2025, around 4:30 p.m., Aguilera Martinez was driving when she saw two 26 unmarked vehicles pulled over to the right side of the road, with lights flashing, and “three men 27 standing near the vehicles.” (Doc. 15-11 at 2, ¶ 4.) The license plate on her vehicle was current and 28 she “was not speeding” when a “man raised his hand to flag [her] down” and signaled for her to pull

1 over. (Id.) She “thought [the men] might be police officers,” and pulled over. (Id., ¶¶ 4-5.)

2 When “[t]he man who flagged [her] down walked over ... “[h]e did not identify himself or seem 3 to know who she was.” (Doc. 15-11 at 2, ¶ 6; see also Doc. 1 at 23, ¶ 92.) The agent said, “I need to 4 see your papers.” (Id.) Aguilera Martinez handed him a “valid, current, California driver’s license.”
5 (Id.) The agent looked at the license and said, “This shit is fuckin’ fake.” (Id.) The agent threw her 6 license to her lap and ordered her to get out of the vehicle. (Id., ¶¶ 6-7.) She “still did not know who 7 these men were,” but complied because she “felt [she] had no choice.” (Id. at 2-3, ¶ 7.) After she 8 opened the door, the agent grabbed her arm, “pushed [her] down to the ground,” and placed her in 9 handcuffs. (Id. at 3, ¶ 7.) The agent then took her to an SUV and sat her in the backseat. (Id. ¶¶ 7-9.)

10 When the agent returned to the SUV, Aguilera Martinez asked if she could contact someone to 11 send a photo of her green card, and the agent agreed. (Doc. 15-11 at 3, ¶ 10.) He removed the 12 handcuffs and Aguilera Martinez called a friend who sent a photo of the green card via text message.
14 “got in [her] car and drove away.” (Id.)

15 Aguilera Martinez was “very stressed and in shock,” and “did not know why [she] had been 16 stopped, nor who those men were.” (Doc. 15-11 at 4, ¶ 11.) She later saw “multiple videos and 17 photos on social media of Border Patrol agents arresting people, including at Home Depot and along 18 Highway 99.” (Id.) She believes the men who stopped her, and the vehicles they used, “looked just 19 like some of the Border Patrol agents and vehicles [she] saw on social media.” (Id.) Thus, Plaintiffs 20 contend that “[u]pon information and belief, the men were Border Patrol agents.” (Doc. 1 at 23, ¶ 91.)

21 Aguilera Martinez had bruises on her wrists from the handcuffs and bruises on her legs from 22 being “shoved ... to the ground.” (Doc. 15-11 at 4, ¶ 14.) She now feels “extremely worried and 23 nervous this could happen to [her] again,” and when driving near where the location of the encounter, 24 she feels queasy and her heart beats faster. (Id. at 3-4, ¶ 12.) She is unable to avoid driving to run 25 errands, go to appointments, and attend church,” but she tries to avoid the “areas where other people 26 were arrested by Border Patrol” during the operation. (Id.)

27 D. Juan Vargas Mendez

28 Juan Vargas Mendez is 37 years old and was a Kern County resident for approximately 20

1 years. (Doc. 15-6 at 2, ¶ 2.) He lived in Bakersfield with his wife and children, who are U.S. citizens.
2 (Id.) Vargas Mendez reports he “worked as a farmworker at the same ranch for more than 10 years”
3 and “sometimes worked as a gardener.” (Id., ¶ 3.) He has no criminal history. (Id., ¶ 2.)

4 On the evening of January 8, 2025, Vargas Mendez left work as a passenger in a van with five 5 co-workers. (Doc. 15-6 at 2, ¶ 4.) They traveled along Maricopa Highway, which he describes as “a 6 central highway for farmworkers in southwest Kern County, especially to get to many orange and 7 almond fields.” (Id.) While traveling toward home, he heard sirens. (Id., ¶ 5.) He looked at the 8 speedometer and saw the vehicle was going “under 40 miles an hour, well within the speed limit.”
9 (Id., ¶ 5.) An unmarked SUV forced the van to stop by stopping in front of the van, while another 10 SUV stopped behind it. (Id.) Vargas Mendez believed the people who stopped them “might be the 11 police because their vehicles had sirens and flashing lights.” (Id. at 2-3, ¶ 6.) However, he now 12 knows they were Border Patrol agents. (Id. at 4, ¶ 12.)

13 He states an agent approached the driver’s window and “demanded the driver and front 14 passenger show their license and proof of residency.” (Doc. 15-6 at 3, ¶ 7.) He reports that as an 15 agent reviewed the identification produced by the driver and front passenger, “two other agents flung 16 open the door on the right side of the van” without consent. (Id., ¶ 8.) The agents shouted in Spanish 17 that they all needed to show their identification and to “tell the truth.” (Id.)

18 Vargas Mendez was not carrying any identification. (Doc. 15-6 at 3, ¶ 9.) Border Patrol 19 agents “dragged [him] out of the van” and demanded that he hand over personal belongings before 20 handcuffing him. (Id.) One of his coworkers was also dragged out of the van. (Id.) The agents 21 mocked them, calling them “Mexican bitches.” (Id., ¶ 10.) The Border Patrol agents did not explain 22 why they were being arrested or show them any warrants. (Id.) The agents did not ask about his ties 23 to Kern County, such as his family, employment, or how long he had lived there. (Id.) Vargas 24 Mendez reports: “I told him I have lived in the area for 20 years; I have a wife and four kids who are 25 all citizens; I have no criminal record.” (Id., ¶ 11.) However, he reports the agent “responded he did 26 not care and that [Vargas Mendez] was ‘going to Mexico.’” (Id.)

27 The agents drove them to “a large white warehouse with barbed wire.” (Doc. 15-6 at 4, ¶ 12.)
28 Agents photographed and fingerprinted him, and then transported him to a detention facility, where

1 they arrived around 1:00 a.m. on January 9. (Id., ¶¶ 12-14.) The agents did not tell them where they 2 were, but other detainees later informed him it was the El Centro Station. (Id., ¶¶ 14, 16.)

3 Vargas Mendez reports an agent at El Centro said he was arrested because he was “illegal” and 4 would be deported. (Doc. 15-6 at 4, ¶ 14.) Vargas Mendez responded that he had been in the area for 5 20 years, had a family, was hardworking, and had no criminal record. (Id., ¶ 15.) This agent said that 6 “he didn’t care” and that Vargas Mendez “would be deported anyway.” (Id.) Later that day, Vargas 7 Mendez electronically signed a document, but he did not know what he signed. (Id. at 5, ¶¶ 18-19.)
 8 About two hours after Vargas Mendez signed the tablet, Border Patrol drove him “to the border across 9 from Mexicali, Mexico.” (Id., ¶ 20.) At the time the complaint was filed, Vargas Mendez was still in 10 Mexico. (Id. at 2, ¶ 2; Doc. 1 at 28, ¶ 125.)

11 Plaintiffs contend the Border Patrol agents “did not have reasonable suspicion that [Vargas 12 Mendez] or anyone else in the vehicle was unlawfully present in the United States.” (Doc. 1 at 28, ¶ 13 126.) Plaintiffs allege “the Border Patrol agents who arrested [him] did not have probable cause to 14 believe he was likely to escape before a warrant could be obtained for his arrest.” (Id., ¶ 127.)

15 E. Maria Guadalupe Hernandez Espinoza

16 Maria Guadalupe Hernandez Espinoza is 46 years old and “lived in Bakersfield for about 10 17 years.” (Doc. 15-8 at 2, Decl. ¶ 2.) She has “worked in the agricultural sector for close to 20 years.”
 18 (Id., ¶ 3.) She has no criminal history. (Id., ¶ 2.)

19 On January 7, 2025, Hernandez Espinoza was a passenger in a car driven by her partner. (Doc.
 20 15-8 at 2, ¶ 4.) The car was registered under her partner’s name, “ha[d] no stickers or decals, and the 21 license plate and registration were current.” (Id.) At about 5:30 p.m., they were on Highway 58, 22 heading toward Bakersfield with a coworker after working in Tehachapi. (Id.) Her partner did not 23 violate any traffic laws as he drove on the highway. (Id.) As they prepared to exit the highway, they 24 “were approached from behind by an unmarked white Ford pickup truck,” which flashed its lights at 25 the car and activated a siren. (Id.)

26 After her partner pulled over, “[a] man in a white shirt approached and instructed him to turn 27 off the car.” (Doc. 15-8 at 2, ¶¶ 4-5.) Turning off the car automatically unlocked the doors, after which 28 the man opened the door and instructed the driver to exit the car. (Id., ¶ 5.) “The man did not identify

1 himself, show a warrant, or ask [them] any questions” before escorting her partner to the truck. (Id.)
 2 Six unmarked vehicles pulled up behind the car, each with 3-4 armed individuals. (Id.) Hernandez 3 Espinoza and her coworker complied with a request to exit the car, after which they were asked to 4 produce identification and were asked “if [they] had papers, and if [they] were here legally.” (Id. at 3, 5 ¶ 7.) Hernandez Espinoza “did not answer their questions,” and she did not produce any identification.
 6 (Id.) At this point, Hernandez Espinoza believed the individuals who stopped the vehicle were law 7 enforcement, but she “had no inkling they were affiliated with immigration.” (Id., ¶ 9.)

8 The agents informed the trio that they “were under arrest,” and transported them “to a 9 makeshift processing area on 7th Standard Road in Bakersfield.” (Doc. 15-8 at 3, ¶ 10.) Hernandez 10 Espinoza first realized they were in Border Patrol custody while at the processing center. (Id.) She 11 saw “dozens of men and just one other woman,” aside from her and her coworker. (Id.) She estimates 12 they were at the processing center for about an hour before boarding a bus, which “left Bakersfield in 13 the late evening.” (Id. at 4, ¶ 11.) “About three hours into the drive, the bus stopped to switch 14 drivers,” and she heard one of the drivers laugh and say, “‘Vamos por mas mojados,’ which means 15 ‘Let’s go for more wetbacks.’” (Id.)

16 Hernandez Espinoza reports their bus arrived at the El Centro Station early the next morning.
 17 (Doc. 15 at 4, ¶ 11.) She had “an initial interview” with a Latina Border Patrol agent, who informed 18 her that she “could either agree to voluntary departure or see a judge.” (Id., ¶ 14.) Hernandez 19 Espinoza “impulsively” agreed to a voluntary departure, though she later changed her mind and 20 attempted to convey this to Border Patrol agents. (Id., ¶¶ 14-15.) On January 9, 2025, Border Patrol 21 informed Hernandez Espinoza that “they were sending [her] to Mexico.” (Id. at 5, ¶ 20.) Border 22 Patrol transported her via a truck to Mexicali, Mexico. (Id.)

23 III. Community Members

24 Plaintiffs also identify several other members of the community, including UWF members, 25 who they assert were stopped and/or arrested by Border Patrol during “Operation Return to Sender.”

26 A. Jesus Ramirez

27 Jesus Ramirez is 64 years old and reports he recently moved to Bakersfield, California, where 28 he rents a home. (Doc. 15-5 at 2, ¶ 2.) He is “the only living parent” to his daughter and son, and he

1 is the primary caretaker for his minor son. (Id.) Ramirez reports that he worked “as a day laborer, 2 fixing roofs and sprinklers and mowing grass” in Bakersfield and San Mateo, where he previously 3 lived. (Id., ¶ 3.)

4 Ramirez reports that on January 7, 2025, he “was standing with some other day laborers in the 5 Home Depot parking lot when [they] were surrounded by Border Patrol agents.” (Doc. 15-5 at 2, ¶ 4.) 6 The “agents arrived in multiple vehicles, some of which had sirens,” around 11:00 a.m. (Id.) Ramirez 7 “knew they were Border Patrol agents because they had badges on their vests.” (Id.) He reports he 8 “was not doing anything unlawful” when the agents surrounded them, and they “could not go anywhere 9 because there were many agents all around....” (Id.)

10 The “Border Patrol agents repeatedly demanded” the day laborers “show [their] ‘papers’.” 11 (Doc. 15-5 at 2, ¶ 5.) Ramirez reports he pulled out his wallet, after which “an agent snatched” it from 12 him and removed his ID. (Id.) Ramirez states the agent returned his wallet but kept the identification.
13 (Id.) It was “clear... the agents did not know [who] he was.” (Id., ¶ 7.) The agents “did not show 14 [him] any document or have a warrant.” (Id.) They “did not ask... any questions about [his] family or 15 ties to the community.” (Id., ¶ 6.)

16 Ramirez reports he “was loaded into a vehicle in the parking lot of Home Depot and transported 17 behind the store, where [he] was loaded into a bigger vehicle” that “was full of other people.” (Doc.
18 15-5 at 2, ¶ 8.) A Border Patrol agent said he “was going to be taken ‘home,’” and Ramirez believed 19 that meant he was “going to be taken to [his] own home in Bakersfield.” (Id. at 2-3, ¶ 8.) It was not 20 until they arrived at a processing station that he realized “immigration was formally arresting [him].”
21 (Id. at 3, ¶ 9.) He was at the processing station “for about 7 or 8 hours with about 12 other individuals.”
22 (Id., ¶ 10.) Ramirez was then loaded onto a bus “filled with people,” which transported him to El 23 Centro. (Id., ¶ 12.)

24 He reports that at El Centro, “[a]n agent ordered [him] to sign a document and said it was 25 required for a judge to review [his] case.” (Doc. 15-5 at 3, ¶ 12.) This document was in English, 26 which he does not read, and it “was not translated or explained.” (Id.) Ramirez states he “requested 27 an opportunity to make a phone call to a family member but was denied.” (Id.) Border Patrol moved 28 him from El Centro to Imperial Regional Detention Facility on January 9, 2025. (Id., ¶ 13.) As of the 1 declaration date of February 13, 2025, Ramirez remained detained and had “one court date with an 2 immigration judge.” (Id., ¶¶ 13-14.)

3 B. Luis Perez Cruz

4 Luis Perez Cruz is 28 years old and has lived in Bakersfield with his mother for two years.
5 (Doc. 15-7 at 2, ¶ 2.) His cousins also live in Bakersfield, and Perez Cruz ran into two of them on 6 January 7, 2025, when he stopped by Home Depot on his way to work. (Id., ¶ 3.)

7 Perez Cruz reports that he “was chatting” with his two cousins in the parking lot when “[t]wo 8 men wearing civilian clothes walked up,” announced they were with Border Patrol, and directed them 9 “to show ... IDs saying that [they] were in the United States legally or had permits to be here.” (Doc.
10 15-7 at 2, ¶ 3.) The agents “also asked ... if [they] had open immigration cases.” (Id.) After Perez 11 Cruz “remained silent,” he states an agent then grabbed him, and said “whether or not” he showed 12 identification, he would be arrested. (Id.) Perez Cruz “felt that [he] had no choice,” and showed the 13 agent his identification. (Id.) The agents “did not appear to have any idea who [he] was before they 14 demanded [his] ID,” and reports they did not present any warrant. (Id.) The agents did not ask any 15 questions about his “family, community ties, work, or life in Bakersfield.” (Id.)

16 The agents drove Perez Cruz, “along with other people they were arresting, in a truck and 17 drove ... behind the Home Depot.” (Doc. 15-7 at 2, ¶ 5.) Behind the store, he was placed into a van, 18 and then transported to a station at 7th Standard Road. (Id.) At the 7th Standard station, agents took 19 his fingerprints and noted the names of his wife and children. (Id.) He was then forced to travel in “a 20 large bus that looked like a Greyhound bus,” to the El Centro holding center. (Id.)

21 Perez Cruz reports that at El Centro, he “refused to sign anything until [he] saw a judge.”
22 (Doc. 15-7 at 2, ¶ 6.) “After nearly four days, the agents ... fitted [him] with a wrist monitor,” gave 23 him information about immigration court, and released him. (Id.) He returned to Bakersfield and now 24 has “an immigration case” pending. (Id. at 2-3, ¶¶ 7-8.) He is afraid Border Patrol “will pick [him] 25 again and treat [him] even worse” with the immigration case pending. (Id. at 2, ¶ 7.)

26 C. Ernesto Campos Gutierrez

27 Ernesto Campos Gutierrez is 44 years old, and he is a citizen of the United States. (Doc. 15-4 28 at 2, ¶ 2.) He owns a home in Bakersfield, where he lives with his partner and children. (Id.) He owns a “gardening and landscaping business,” for which he “haul[s] a mini trailer containing gardening equipment” behind his truck. (Id., ¶¶ 2-3.)

On January 8, 2025, Campos Gutierrez was driving, with a passenger, on the way to a gardening job around 9:40 a.m. (Doc. 15-4 at 3, ¶ 3.) The truck he was driving was registered under his name, “had current license plates and registration, and had no stickers or decals.” (Id.) He “was driving within the speed limits” and pulling the mini trailer. (Id.) Campos Gutierrez noticed “[a]n unmarked, white Chevrolet Tahoe follow ... [him] for a couple minutes,” after which it flashed lights, signaling for him to pull over. (Id., ¶ 4.)

The Tahoe pulled over behind him, and “[a] black male agent ... wearing a vest that said the word[] ‘POLICE’ in large letters” approached the driver’s side door. (Doc. 15-4, ¶ 4.) The agent “tried to pull open driver’s side door, but the door was locked.” (Id.) Through the closed window, the agent asked for their IDs, and “called to another person and said he ‘had two bodies.’” (Id.) The agent “did not identify himself,” show a warrant, or explain why the truck was pulled over. (Id.) Campos Gutierrez lowered his window and asked the agent why he was pulled over, while handing over his REAL ID driver’s license. (Id., ¶ 5.) The agent glanced at the identification and directed Campos Gutierrez “to hand him the keys to [the] truck.” (Id.) Campos Gutierrez refused, because the agent had not said “who he was” or why the truck was pulled over. (Id.) The agent responded that he needed the keys because Campos Gutierrez “was going to drive away.” (Id.) However, the truck was turned off and he “had no intention of driving away and leaving [his] driver’s license behind.” (Id.) “The agent pulled out a knife and proceeded to slash both tires on the driver’s side of [the] truck.” (Id., ¶ 6.)

Another truck arrived and blocked him in by parking right in front of the truck. (Doc. 15-4 at 3, ¶ 7.) He states that “[a] white male agent” stood next to his truck, “while the first agent returned to his vehicle to check [his] license.” (Id.) Campos Gutierrez reports:

The Black agent came back to the passenger side of my vehicle and ordered my passenger to lower his window and open the door. My passenger lowered the window a few inches. The agent pulled out a handheld tool and threatened to break the window. He ordered my passenger to open the window and open the door. My passenger complied. The agent forcibly grabbed my passenger out of the truck and handcuffed him. The agent never asked my passenger any questions about his community ties. I told the agent he should not have slashed my tires. The agent said, “I’m not going to argue with you, bro. You did what you did, I did what I did.”

(Id., ¶ 8.) “A Hispanic agent arrived,” who informed Campos Gutierrez that he “was under arrest for ‘alien smuggling.’” (Id., ¶ 9.) Campos Gutierrez reports he “tried to explain to the agent that [his] passenger had an open immigration case,” but the agent did not respond. (Id.) Campos Gutierrez “videorecorded part of these interactions using [his] cell phone,” which the agents took away and handcuffed him. (Id., ¶ 9-10.)

Campos Gutierrez and his passenger were transported “in the back of a truck that said ‘Immigration’” on it “to a facility about 20 minutes away.” (Doc. 15-4 at 11, ¶ 11.) Campos Gutierrez asked why he was arrested when he is a United States citizen, and the agents “said it was because [he] had been transporting someone without documents.” (Id.) While at the facility, he asked for a phone to call his partner, and “[t]he Hispanic agent said [he] did not have the right to make a call.” (Id., ¶ 12.) “At one point, the Black agent told the Hispanic agent that he had slashed [the] tires because [Campos Gutierrez] had become aggressive and ‘flipped’ him off.” (Id.) Campos Gutierrez “told the Hispanic agent that was a lie, and if he wanted to find out the truth he should review the body camera footage.” (Id.) He was detained for about four hours, after which the agents drove him home and dropped him off. (Id. at 3-4, ¶ 13.)

He reports that his partner “spent about $350 on the two tow trucks that towed [his] truck and mini trailer home.” (Doc. 15-4 at 4, ¶ 14.) He also spent about $500 to replace the two tires on his truck. (Id.) Campos Gutierrez believes Border Patrol stopped him “solely because of the color of [his] skin and [his] appearance.” (Id., ¶ 15.)

D. UFW Members

Elizabeth Strater, National Vice President of the UFW, also provided a declaration reporting that “UFW members were harmed by ‘Operation Return to Sender’ and fear harm from future Border Patrol Operations.” (Doc. 15-3 at 5, emphasis omitted.) She reports that through her role, “and in the ordinary course of UFW’s business,” she received reports of several UFW members who were impacted in different ways by the Operation, including “Alicia,” “Benjamin,” “Carlos,” “Fernando” and “Gabriela.”² (See id. at 8, 11-12, Strater Decl. ¶¶ 25, 37, 42.) Strater reports the following

² Ms. Strater indicated she used fictitious names “[t]o protect the privacy and security” of the UFW members. (Doc. 15-3 at 9, n.1.)

1 information—regarding Alicia, Benjamin, Carlos, Fernando, and Gabriela— from these reports. (See 2 id. at 8-13, ¶¶ 24-44.)

3 Alicia and her husband Benjamin “lived and worked in Kern County for the past 10 years 4 working in berry, table grape, almond, and citrus agriculture.” (Doc. 15-3 at 8, Strater Decl. ¶ 25.) On 5 January 7, 2025, around 2:00 p.m., Alicia and Benjamin were in a car with Carlos, her brother-in-law, 6 after leaving “the citrus orchards where they all worked together.” (Id., ¶¶ 25-26.) They traveled on 7 Highway 99, and “were traveling within the speed limit and obeying traffic laws.” (Id., ¶ 26.) “Alicia, 8 Benjamin, and Carlos all noticed one marked and two unmarked vehicles were parked on the shoulder 9 with police-style lights on the grill.” (Id., ¶ 27.) When their car passed the three vehicles, “the 10 vehicles left the shoulder, pulled up behind them, and signaled with their lights for them to pull over.” 11 (Id. at 8-9, ¶ 27.) After the driver complied, “[s]everal men approached the car and asked Alicia, 12 Benjamin, and Carlos if they had ‘papers.’” (Id. at 9, ¶ 27.) The Border Patrol “agents did not appear 13 to know who was in the car, and did not appear to have any reason for pulling the car over, other than 14 to ask for ‘papers.’” (Id.) The agents arrested Alicia, Benjamin, and Carlos; they did not present 15 warrants for their arrest and “did not ask any further questions.” (Id., ¶ 28.) After handcuffing Alicia, 16 “agents asked [her] if she had family.” (Id., ¶ 29.) “When she told them she had children, an agent 17 ‘offered’ to go pick up the children so they could all be taken to Mexico together.” (Id.) The agents 18 “did not ask Benjamin or Carlos about their ties to the community or otherwise conduct an assessment 19 of flight risk.” (Id.) The agents transported the trio to a mobile processing center, but later released 20 Alicia after confirming with a daycare that her children were there. (Id., ¶ 30.) Border Patrol agents 21 transported Benjamin and Carlos to El Centro, and ultimately deported them to Mexico. (See id. at 9-22 10, ¶¶ 31-34.) Alicia continues to work in Kern County and “feels enormous stress and anxiety that ...
23 Border Patrol agents will seize her again.” (Id. at 10, ¶ 35.)

24 Fernando is also a “farm worker and UFW member,” and he “has lived in Kern County for 25 around 20 years.” (Doc. 15-3 at 11, Strater Decl. ¶ 37.) On January 9, 2025, Fernando was a 26 passenger in a car that was “traveling within the speed limit and obeying traffic laws” while on a 27 highway “between Bakersfield and Mettler, California.” (Id., ¶¶ 38-39.) While on the route—which 28 is “commonly taken by agricultural workers when traveling between orchard worksites and farm worker communities”— “a truck turned on flashing lights and signaled for their car to pull over.” (Id., ¶ 38.) After the car stopped, Border Patrol agents approached the vehicle, “grabbed the handles of the locked car doors and pounded on the closed windows.” (Id., ¶ 39.) The agents warned that if they did not open the windows, the agents would smash the glass. (Id.) “The passengers, including Fernando, sat still and did not respond. In Spanish, the Border Patrol agents began counting down backwards from ‘five.’ When they reached ‘one,’ they smashed the windows using a black baton-like stick, causing shards of broken glass to fall all over the car’s occupants.” (Id.) “The agents reached through the broken windows to unlock the car doors and forcefully dragged Fernando and other passengers out of the car and onto the side of the highway.” (Id., ¶ 40.) Border Patrol arrested Fernando, and “did not present a warrant for arrest or ask Fernando anything about his family, community ties, employment, or other factors related to his likelihood of flight risk.” (Id. at 11-12, ¶¶ 40-41.)

Gabriela is a farmworker “who has lived in Fresno for 22 years.” (Doc. 15-3 at 12, Strater Decl. ¶ 42.) She “has legal authorization to work in the United States,” and “has worked as a farm worker in the stone fruit, table grape, and persimmon orchards, and the bell peppers and tomato fields in the San Joaquin Valley for over 20 years.” (Id.) She “cannot avoid traveling through and visiting the types of locations that Border Patrol targeted,” such as “agricultural areas, to commute to and from work,” and “businesses frequented by other farm workers.” (Id., ¶ 43.) Gabriela feels anxiety and fear that she will be subjected to Border Patrol’s unlawful practices when Border Patrol follows through on its threat to bring ‘Operation Return to Sender’ to her community in Fresno.” (Id., ¶ 42.)

IV. U.S. Customs and Border Protection Statistics

The U.S. Customs and Border Protection publishes data and statistics for Border Patrol. A spreadsheet titled “USBP Operation Return to Sender Arrests in January 2025”—from the official website of the agency—indicates that 78 individuals were arrested during the Operation, including 62 on January 7, 2025; 12 on January 8, 2025; and 4 on January 9, 2025. (Doc. 38-1 at 5-6.) The spreadsheet contains a column labeled “criminal history.” (Id.) For 77 of the 78 arrested individuals, the entry in this column reads “Criminal and/or immigration history was not known prior to the encounter.” (Id.) For one person, the criminal history indicates: “he had a final order of removal since 03/05/2024.” (Id. at 5.)

V. Border Patrol's Media Statements and Social Media

Following the Operation, U.S. Customs and Border Protection issued a media statement regarding the results. (Braun Decl. Exh. 17; see also Braun Decl. Exh. 18 [Doc. 15-2 at 72, 74].) The full statement was as follows:

Border Patrol Agents with the El Centro Sector Border Patrol conducted an operation in and around the Bakersfield area in Kern County. Our operation focused on interdicting those who have broken U.S. federal law, trafficking of dangerous substances, non-citizen criminals, and disrupting the transportation routes used by Transnational Criminal Organizations. The U.S. Border Patrol is no stranger to operations in places like Bakersfield, Stockton, Modesto, Fresno, and Sacramento, as the now closed Livermore Border Patrol Sector regularly conducted enforcement operations over this area up to the mid 2000s. "The El Centro Sector takes all border threats seriously," said Chief Patrol Agent Gregory Bovino. "Our area of responsibility stretches from the U.S./Mexico Border, north, as mission and threat dictate, all the way to the Oregon line."

During this three day operation we had over 60 agents on the ground, using both marked and unmarked vehicles. The results of our operation, named "Return to Sender" are as follows:

78 arrests (all subjects unlawfully present in the U.S.) The nationality/citizenship of those arrested were from Peru, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Ecuador, Mexico, and China.

One subject arrested was a convicted sex offender convicted of raping an 8 year old girl.

Another subject had an active warrant from the Visalia Sheriff's Department for a sex offense against a child.

One subject had a warrant for being a felon in possession of a weapon out of Tulare County. He was turned over to the Kern County Sheriff's Department for extradition to Tulare County. A detainer was placed on this subject so we can take him back into custody on pending federal charges.

Three separate Marijuana seizures: 33.01 lbs., 3.1 lbs., and 30.7 grams of personal use.

Four separate methamphetamine seizures totaling 7.1 grams.

Multiple DUI convictions among those arrested, including some that included hit and run and injury enhancements.

Other criminal histories of those arrested included: failure to appear, tampering with a vehicle, petty theft, felony drug possession, vandalism, burglary, inflicting injury on spouse, and child abuse convictions amongst others.

(Doc. 15-2 at 72.)

1 The U.S. Border Patrol El Centro Sector (“the Sector”) maintains a social media account on 2 Facebook. (See Braun Decl., Exhs. 1-11 [Doc. 15-2 at 11-32].) In January 2025, the Sector 3 commented that “what crosses the border doesn’t stay at the border, making every U.S. city a border 4 town.” (Id. at 28 [Exh. 9].) Later in January, the Sector commented: “What happens on the border, 5 doesn’t stay on the border. Bakersfield is now a dyed in the wool a border town.” (Id. at 24 [Exh. 7].)

6 The Sector also made Facebook posts and comments regarding “Operation Return to Sender.”
 7 (See Doc. 15-2 at 11-32.) On January 9, 2025, the Sector called the Operation “an overwhelming 8 success from day one,” and indicated the Sector “continue[s] to field dozens of Border Patrol Agents 9 in Kern County and surrounding area...” (Id. at 32 [Exh. 11].) In another comment on the same date, 10 the Sector stated: “We are planning operations for other locals such as Fresno and especially 11 Sacramento.” (Id. at 30 [Exh. 10].) On January 12, 2025, in response to a comment stating, “Here in 12 Bakersfield, you guys forgot to raid some people,” the Sector stated: “We plan on coming back!!” (Id.
 13 at 16 [Exh. 3].) In a comment thread later in January 2025, the Sector stated: “Although serious 14 criminals will be the first to be tracked down and removed, anyone we encounter who doesn’t have the 15 legal right to be in or remain in the U.S. will be arrested.” (Id. at 12 [Exh. 1].) An individual then 16 commented “Return to sender round 2,” to which the Sector replied, “You bet!” (Id.)

17 In February 2025, the Sector made a Facebook post—with accompanying photos—indicating 18 that an “illegal alien ... [r]efused to open [his] window during an immigration inspection” and “[g]ot 19 his window shattered for an extraction.” (Doc. 15-2 at 20 [Exh. 5].) The Sector indicated the 20 immigrant was then arrested and deported. (Id.) In a responsive comment, the Sector stated this was 21 “[fuck around, find out] in full effect.” (Id. at 22 [Exh. 6].)

22 VI. Procedural History

23 Plaintiffs initiated this action by filing a complaint on February 26, 2025. (Doc. 1.) They 24 contend their experiences, and those of community members, were “not unique.” (Id. at 43, ¶ 234.)
 25 Plaintiffs “seek to represent three classes of individuals who have been or will be subjected to the three 26 unlawful practices this lawsuit alleges: “detentive stops regardless of reasonable suspicion of unlawful 27 presence, arrests regardless of probable cause of flight risk, and voluntary departure without a 28 knowing and voluntary waiver of rights.” (Id. at 61-62, ¶ 312.) Specifically, Plaintiffs identify the

1 following claims for relief: (1) warrantless arrests without probable cause of flight risk in violation of 2 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2); (2) warrantless arrests without probable cause of flight risk in violation 8 3 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii); (3) stops without reasonable suspicion in violation of the Fourth Amendment; 4 and (4) “voluntary departure without a knowing and voluntary waiver of rights” in violation of the 5 Fifth Amendment. (Id. at 65-69.) In the prayer for relief, Plaintiffs seek declaratory and injunctive 6 relief, enjoining further violations of their rights under the applicable statutes and amendments. (Id. at 7 69-70.)

8 On March 7, 2025, Plaintiffs filed the pending motion for provisional class certification (Doc.
 9 14) and a preliminary injunction (Doc. 15). On April 7, 2025, Defendants filed briefs in opposition to 10 provisional class certification and a preliminary injunction. (Docs. 31, 32.) Immigration Reform Law 11 Institute filed an amicus curiae brief in support of Defendants’ opposition to the preliminary injunction.
 12 (Doc. 33-1.) Plaintiffs filed their reply briefs on April 17, 2025. (Docs. 38, 39.) Each side filed 13 supplemental evidence on April 25, 2025.³ (Docs. 42-43, 45.)

14 VII. Border Patrol’s Muster

15 On April 4, 2025, Border Patrol’s El Centro Sector issued a “Muster” that identifies “the 16 underlying laws and policies applicable to all arrests effected by El Centro Sector Border Patrol 17 Agents under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) /INA § 287(a)(2) in the Eastern District of California.” (Doc. 31 18 at 15; Doc. 31-1 at 2.) The Muster indicates it “is to be interpreted consistent with all implementing 19 regulations and controlling Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit case law.” (Id.) 20 Border Patrol agents are informed that “[w]hen conducting enforcement actions,” they “shall at 21 the time of arrest or as soon as it is practical and safe to do so, identify themselves as immigration 22 officers in accordance with 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(iii).” (Doc. 31-1 at 3.) The Muster also includes 23 provisions regarding warrantless arrests and vehicle stops. (Id. at 2-4.)

24 For warrantless arrests, the Muster indicates Border Patrol agents may conduct an arrest 25 without a warrant under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) / INA § 287(a)(2), “if there is reason to believe that the 26

27 ³ At the hearing, the Court inquired whether there were any objections to the additional evidence. Neither party 28 opposed the supplemental evidentiary submissions. Accordingly, the respective motions to file supplemental evidence (Docs. 42, 45) are GRANTED.

1 alien to be arrested is present in the United States in violation of any U.S. immigration law and is 2 likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for the arrest.” (Doc. 31-1 at 3 [modifications 3 adopted].) The Muster indicates, “The ‘reason to believe’ standard requires USBP Agents to have 4 probable cause that an individual is in the United States in violation of U.S. immigration laws and 5 probable cause that the individual is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for the arrest.”
 6 (Id.) In addition, the Muster provides that in evaluating “likelihood of escape,” factors may include an 7 agent’s “ability to determine the individual’s identity, knowledge of that individual’s prior escapes or 8 evasions of immigration authorities, attempted flight from a USBP Agent, ties to the community (such 9 as a family, home, or employment) or lack thereof, or other specific circumstances that weigh in favor 10 or against a reasonable belief that the subject is likely to abscond.” (Id. at 2-3.) The Muster also 11 indicates that “mere presence within the United States in violation of U.S. immigration law is not, by 12 itself, sufficient to conclude that an alien is likely to escape before a warrant for arrest can be 13 obtained.” (Id. at 3 [emphasis in original].)

14 Agents are informed that after making a warrantless arrest, they “should document the facts 15 and circumstances surrounding that warrantless arrest in the narrative section of the alien’s I-213 as 16 soon as practicable.” (Doc. 31-1 at 3.) The documentation should state:

(1) that the alien was arrested without a warrant; (2) the location of the arrest and whether this location was a place of business, residence, vehicle, or a public area; (3) whether the alien is an employee of the business, if arrested at a place of business, or whether the alien is a resident of the residence, if arrested at a residential location; (4) the alien’s ties to the community, if known at the time of arrest, including family, home, or employment ...; (5) the specific, particularized facts supporting the conclusion that the alien was likely to escape before a warrant could be obtained; and (6) a statement of how “at the time of arrest, the designated immigration officer did, as soon as it was practical and safe to do so, identify himself or herself as an immigration officer who is authorized to execute an arrest; and stated that the person is under arrest and the reason for the arrest.”

24 (Id. [modifications adopted].) Agents are also instructed that “[i]nformation learned post-arrest 25 relevant to custody determination should be documented separately from the information relevant to 26 likelihood of escape known at the time of the warrantless arrest.” (Id.)

27 The provision regarding vehicle stops applies to “all warrantless arrests under 8 U.S.C. § 28 1357(a) (2) / INA § 287(a)(2), including warrantless arrests resulting from vehicle stops.” (Doc. 31-1

1 at 4.) The Muster indicates Border Patrol “agents may stop a vehicle to enforce civil immigration laws 2 only if they are aware of specific, articulable facts that reasonably warrant suspicion that the vehicle
 3 contains an alien(s) who may be illegally in the country.” (Id.) In addition to the documentation 4 required for a warrantless arrest, an “agent also must document the facts and circumstances 5 surrounding the vehicle stop that resulted in a warrantless arrest in the narrative section of the alien’s 6 I-213.” (Id.) The documentation by Border Patrol agents “should include the specific, articulable 7 facts that formed the basis for the USBP Agent’s reasonable suspicion that an alien in the vehicle 8 stopped was present within the United States in violation of U.S. immigration law.” (Id.)

9 Sergio Guzman, the Acting Executive Officer for the El Centro Sector of U.S. Border Patrol, 10 reports that he “was involved with the various phases (planning, execution, and after action) of 11 Operation Return to Sender.” (Doc. 31-2 at 2, ¶¶ 1, 3.) Guzman reports the Sector “is committed to 12 conducting enforcement operations within the Eastern District of California in compliance with the 13 Fourth Amendment, 8 U.S.C. § 1357, and Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit case law.” (Id. at 3, ¶ 8.)
 14 He states that the Sector was issued “[i]n furtherance of this commitment.” (Id., ¶ 9.) Guzman 15 indicates that the El Centro Sector “will endeavor to conduct refresher training sessions to ensure 16 compliance with the muster within 60 Days for all ELC Border Patrol Agents (BPAs), supervisors, and 17 Command Staff.” (Id.) Guzman indicates the training topics will include:

18 a. Agents’ authority to effect warrantless arrests within the Eastern 19 District of California pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1357 including factors 20 relevant to determining “reason to believe” an alien is in the United States in violation of law or regulation and the alien’s likelihood of escape before a warrant can be obtained.

21 b. Agents’ authority to effect vehicle stops within the Eastern District 22 of California upon establishment of reasonable suspicion of a violation 23 of law or regulation in compliance with the Fourth Amendment, Supreme Court, and Ninth Circuit case law.

24 c. Agents’ authority to effect consensual encounters within the Eastern 25 District of California in compliance with the Fourth Amendment, Supreme Court, and Ninth Circuit case law.

26 d. Report writing requirements including documentation of the facts 27 and circumstances pertaining to warrantless arrests in the narrative 28 section of an alien arrestee’s Record of Deportable/Inadmissible Alien

e. Report writing requirements including documentation of the facts and circumstances pertaining to vehicle stops resulting in warrantless arrests in the narrative section of the alien arrestee's Form I-213.

(Id. at 4, ¶ 11.)

JURISDICTION

The federal courts “are courts of limited jurisdiction.” Royal Canin U.S.A., Inc. v. Wullschleger, 604 U.S. 22 (2025) (quoting Kokkonen v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of America, 511 U. S. 375, 377 (1994)). District courts are limited not only by the Constitution, but as well as by statute. Id. As the Supreme Court explained, “Congress determines, through its grants of jurisdiction, which suits [district] courts can resolve.” Id.

As an initial matter, Defendants assert the district court lacks jurisdiction over the claims in issue for the pending motions for provisional class certification and preliminary injunction. (Doc. 31 at 11-15.) Specifically, Defendants argue, “the Court lacks jurisdiction to review Plaintiffs’ claims under 8 U.S.C. §§ 1252(a)(5) and (b)(9).”⁴ (Id. at 11 [emphasis omitted].) Defendants also contend “this Court lacks jurisdiction to issue an injunction to anyone other than the named plaintiffs” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1). (Id. at 14 [emphasis omitted].) Because jurisdiction is “a threshold matter,” the Court first must determine whether it has jurisdiction over the claims in issue for the two pending motions. See Steel Co. v. Citizens for Better Environment, 523 U.S. 83, 94-95 (1998) (“The requirement that jurisdiction be established as a threshold matter springs from the nature and limits of the judicial power of the United States”) (cleaned up); see also Garland v. Gonzalez, 596 U.S. 543, 548 (2022) (the “threshold question” was “whether the District Courts had jurisdiction to entertain respondents’ requests for class-wide injunctive relief”).

I. Jurisdiction under Sections 1252(a)(5) and 1252(b)(9)

The Immigration and Nationality Act provides limitations to the jurisdiction of the federal courts, including review of removal proceedings and orders of removal. Removal proceedings occur before an immigration judge, and “are confined to determining whether a particular alien should be deported.” See Pereida v. Wilkinson, 592 U.S. 224, 227 (2021); Aguilar v. U.S. Immigration &

⁴ The Immigration Reform Law Institute also contends in its amicus brief that the “Court lacks jurisdiction over Plaintiffs (sic) claims” pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §§ 1252(a)(5) and 1252(b)(9). (Doc. 33-1 at 3.)

1 Customs Enforcement Div. of the Dep't of Homeland Sec., 510 F.3d 1, 11 (1st Cir. 2007); see also 8 2 U.S.C. § 1229a(c)(1)(A) (an “immigration judge shall decide whether an alien is removable from the 3 United States”). Removal proceedings commence when the government files a charge, a “Notice to 4 Appear” in immigration court is served upon the alien, or the alien is served with a “Notice of Intent.”
 5 See Pereira, 592 U.S. at 227 (“Removal proceedings begin when the government files a charge against 6 an individual, and they occur before a hearing officer at the Department of Justice, someone the agency 7 refers to as an immigration judge”); Cantor v. Garland, 17 F.4th 869, 874 (9th Cir. 2021) (a notice to 8 appear in the immigration court may be used to initiate removal proceedings); see also 8 C.F.R. § 9 238.1(b)(1)-(2) (expedited removal proceedings “commence” when an Issuing Service Officer 10 determines that sufficient evidence supports removal and serves the alien with a “Notice of Intent to 11 Issue a Final Administrative Deportation Order”).

12 The INA sets forth jurisdictional limitations in Section 1252, entitled “Judicial review of orders 13 of removal.” See 8 U.S.C. § 1252. Pursuant to Section 1252(a)(5), “a petition for review filed with an 14 appropriate court of appeals in accordance with this section shall be the sole and exclusive means for 15 judicial review of an order of removal entered or issued under any provision of [the] Act...” 8 U.S.C.
 16 § 1252(a)(5). In addition, Section 1252(b)(9) indicates: “Judicial review of all questions of law and 17 fact, including interpretation and application of constitutional and statutory provisions, arising from 18 any action taken or proceeding brought to remove an alien from the United States under this 19 subchapter shall be available only in judicial review of a final [removal] order under this section.” 8 20 U.S.C. § 1252(b)(9). Defendants assert that under these provisions, “the Court lacks jurisdiction to 21 review Plaintiffs’ claims,” and as a result the Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class 22 are unable “to establish a likelihood of success on the merits,” as required for a preliminary injunction.
 23 (Doc. 31 at 11 [emphasis omitted].)

24 Defendants contend that “if a claim challenges a ‘decision to detain an alien in the first place or 25 seek removal,’ a district court lacks jurisdiction to consider that claim and it instead must be reviewed 26 through the administrative process.” (Doc. 31 at 11, quoting Jennings v. Rodriguez, 138 S. Ct. 830, 27 841 (2018) [modification adopted].) Defendants argue, “The stops and detentions that Plaintiffs 28 challenge were actions taken to remove them from the United States, that is, to detain them in the first

1 place and seek their removal.” (Id. at 12 [citation omitted, modification adopted].) According to 2 Defendants, “Plaintiffs challenge questions of law and fact behind these actions, specifically, whether 3 USBP had reasonable suspicion for the stops and probable cause for the arrests.” (Id.) Defendants 4 argue, “Because Plaintiffs challenge questions of law and fact arising from these actions taken to 5 remove them, 8 U.S.C. § 1252(a)(5) & (b)(9) require that they bring these claims in petitions for 6 review in the court of appeals.” (Id.)

7 Defendants assert also the district courts are barred “from reviewing legal questions ‘routinely 8 raised in petitions for review.’” (Doc. 31 at 12, quoting J.E.F.M. v. Lynch, 837 F.3d 1026, 1033 (9th 9 Cir. 2016).) Defendants contend that “petitions for review commonly consider challenges related to 10 whether immigration authorities had reasonable suspicion to stop, or probable cause to arrest, an 11 alien.” (Id., citing Sanchez v. Sessions, 904 F.3d 643 (9th Cir. 2018); J.E.F.M., 737 F.3d at 1033; 12 Leal-Burboa v. Garland, 2022 WL 17547799 (9th Cir. 2022).) Defendants argue, “If the legal remedy 13 for unlawful stops and arrests is provided in removal proceedings, ipso facto these challenges are part 14 of the decision to remove an alien.” (Id.)

15 Plaintiffs argue that the “Court should reject Defendants’ jurisdictional arguments.” (Doc. 38 16 at 11.) Plaintiffs assert their “claims have nothing to do with class members’ removal proceedings or 17 what immigration relief they may be eligible for.” (Doc. 37 at 12.) As such, Plaintiffs indicate they 18 are not challenging “actions taken to remove them, but instead “challenge Defendants’ unlawful stop 19 and arrest practices ... [and] Jennings did not hold that the INA bars review of such practices.” (Id. at 20 11-12 [emphasis omitted].) Plaintiffs also contend the Supreme Court later “resolved any ...
 21 ambiguity about § 1252(b)(9)’s ambit, holding that it ‘certainly’ ‘does not present a jurisdictional bar’ 22 to claims that ‘are not challenging any removal proceedings.’” (Id., quoting Dep’t of Homeland Sec. v.
 23 Regents of the Univ. of Cal., 591 U.S. 1, 19 (2020).) Plaintiffs note the decision in J.E.F.M. predated 24 Jennings and Regents and argue Defendants’ reliance upon J.E.F.M. is misplaced for this reason. (Id.) 25 Further, Plaintiffs contend: “Many courts have held that claims like those asserted by Plaintiffs, which 26 challenge Defendants’ conduct before removal proceedings begin, are collateral to the removal process 27 and reviewable in district court.” (Id. at 13 [emphasis omitted], citing Nava v. Dep’t of Homeland 28 Sec., 435 F. Supp. 3d 892 (N.D. Ill. 2020); Roy v. Cnty. of L.A., 2018 WL 914773, at *18 (C.D. Cal.

1 Feb. 7, 2018); Medina v. U.S. Dep't of Homeland Sec., 2017 WL 2954719, at *11 (W.D. Wash. Mar.

3 The legal issues implicated by the pending request for a preliminary injunction are narrow.
4 Plaintiffs do not petition the Court for review of— or make any argument related to—any removal 5 order entered under Title 8 on behalf of the proposed Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest 6 Classes. Thus, Defendants' arguments related to the jurisdictional bar of Section 1252(a)(5) are 7 unavailing. In addition, the authorities cited by Defendants do not indicate the Court lacks jurisdiction 8 over the claims of the proposed Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class pursuant to 9 Section 1252(b)(9).

10 Defendants rely upon Sanchez v. Sessions to argue that this Court lacks jurisdiction over the 11 claims of the proposed classes because these claims are commonly raised in final removal 12 proceedings. In Sanchez, the appellant argued the Coast Guard violated his rights under the Fourth 13 Amendment and under 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(b)(2). Id., 904 F.3d at 648-649. He sought review of the 14 immigration judge's denial of an evidentiary motion made during his removal proceedings, which 15 ultimately resulted in a removal order. Id. The Ninth Circuit reviewed the final order of removal 16 pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1252. See id. at 646-649. The Ninth Circuit did not hold that an immigration 17 court was the exclusive forum for claims such as those raised by Sanchez, and the Court did not 18 address Section 1252(b)(9) or the jurisdiction of a district court over similar claims in a civil action.
19 Sanchez in no way suggests that a plaintiff is precluded from raising constitutional claims in the 20 district court when the claim does not arise from removal proceedings. The Court declines to expand 21 the reach of the decision in Sanchez as Defendants would have it do.

22 Likewise, J.E.F.M. does not support Defendants' contention that the district court lacks 23 jurisdiction over the claims of the two proposed classes. In J.E.F.M., the Ninth Circuit addressed 24 whether “a district court [has] jurisdiction over a claim that indigent minor immigrants without counsel 25 have a right to government-appointed counsel in removal proceedings.” Id., 837 F.3d at 1029. The 26 Court described Section 1252(b)(9) as “vice-like in grip” over issues “arising from any removal related 27 activity.” Id. at 1032. The Court observed that Section 1252(b)(9) “has built in limits,” which 28 “exclude[] ... any claim that does not arise from removal proceedings.” Id. Defendants contend that jurisdiction is lacking under §1252(b)(9) whenever the claims at issue are “routinely raised in petitions for review.” (Doc. 31 at 13.) J.E.F.M., however, makes clear that “claims that are independent of or collateral to the removal process do not fall within the scope of §1252(b)(9).” Id., 837 F.3d at 1032. (citing Torres-Tristan v. Holder, 656 F.3d 653, 658 (7th Cir. 2011); Aguilar 510 F.3d at 11). In doing so, the Ninth Circuit “distinguished between claims that ‘arise from’ removal proceedings under § 1252(b)(9)—which must be channeled through the PFR process—and claims that are collateral to, or independent of, the removal process.” Id. at 1032. The Court explained that because “immigration judges have an obligation to ask whether a petitioner wants counsel,” the right to counsel claims were “bound up in and an inextricable part of the administrative process.” Id. at 1033. Unlike the claims considered in J.E.F.M., the claims of the proposed classes here do not “arise from” removal proceedings, but instead relate to issues which ripened before removal proceedings began. For example, the proposed classes include the claims of members who are citizens and legal residents of the United States, against whom there are no removal proceedings. To the extent the classes include individuals against whom proceedings have since commenced⁵, the claims of the Suspicionless Class and Warrantless Arrest Class are collateral to such removal proceedings and excluded from the jurisdictional limits imposed by Section 1252(b)(9).

After J.E.F.M., the Supreme Court considered the limits of Section 1252(b)(9) as a “potential obstacle[]” to jurisdiction. Jennings, 583 U.S. at 292. In Jennings, the Court addressed the prolonged detention of individuals in custody while their removal proceedings were pending. Id. The Court observed that an “expansive interpretation” of Section 1252(b)(9) to actions not directly arising from removal proceedings “would lead to staggering results.” Id. at 293. The Court explained:

Suppose, for example, that a detained alien wishes to assert a claim under Bivens v. Six Unknown Fed. Narcotics Agents, 403 U. S. 388, 91 S. Ct. 1999, 29 L. Ed. 2d 619 (1971), based on allegedly inhumane conditions of confinement. See, e.g., Ziglar v. Abbasi, 582 U. S. 120, 146-149, 137 S. Ct. 1843, 198 L. Ed. 2d 290 (2017) (slip op., at 23-29). Or suppose that a detained alien brings a state-law claim for assault against a guard or fellow detainee. Or suppose that an alien is injured when a truck hits the bus transporting aliens to a detention facility, and the alien sues the driver or owner of the truck. The “questions of law and fact” in all those cases could be said to “aris[e] from” actions taken to remove the aliens in the sense that the aliens’ injuries would never have occurred if they had not been placed in detention. But cramming judicial review of those questions into the review of final removal orders would be absurd.

Id. The Court found that an interpretation of the phrase “arising from” in this manner “would also make claims of prolonged detention effectively unreviewable.” Id. Having reviewed the statutory language⁶, the Court then observed that the respondents were: (1) “not asking for review of an order of removal,” (2) not challenging their detention during the course of immigration proceedings, and (3) “not even challenging any part of the process by which their removability will be determined.” Jennings, 583 U.S. at 294. The Supreme Court concluded, “Under these circumstances, §1252(b)(9) does not present a jurisdictional bar.” Id. Similarly, here, the Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class do not seek review of final orders of removal, do not challenge detention by the Attorney General pending removal proceedings, or challenge a part of the process by which removability of putative class members may be determined.⁷ Thus, as the Supreme Court found in Jennings, Section 1252(b)(9) is not a jurisdictional bar to these claims.

Defendants do not address—or even acknowledge—the Supreme Court’s decision in Dep’t of Homeland Sec. v. Regents of the Univ. of California, 591 U.S. 1, 140 S. Ct 1891 (2020), in which the Supreme Court revisited the scope of Section 1252(b)(9) and reiterated that it contained narrow, “targeted language.” Id., 591 U.S. at 19. In Regents, the parties disputed the decision to rescind Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) and the procedures taken to do so. See id. at 12-16. Individual DACA recipients, states, and several organizations challenged the rescission, arguing that the action “was arbitrary and capricious in violation of the [Administrative Procedure Act] and that it infringed on the equal protection guarantee of the Fifth Amendment’s Due Process Clause.” Id. at 13.

⁶ The Court also observed that “[a] neighboring provision of the Immigration and Nationality Act refers to ‘any cause or claim by or on behalf of any alien arising from the decision or action by the Attorney General to commence proceedings, adjudicate cases, or execute or execute removal orders against any alien under this chapter.’” Id. (quoting 8 U.S.C. §1252(g) [emphasis adopted].) The Court declined to “sweep any claim that can technically be said to ‘arise from’ the three listed actions,” but instead “read the language to refer to just those three specific actions themselves.” Id. (citing American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 482-483 (1998)).

1 Three district courts “rejected the Government’s threshold argument[] ... that the INA deprived the 2 court of jurisdiction.” Id. at 13-14. Before the Supreme Court, the Government again sought to 3 invoke Section 1252(b)(9), arguing it was “an independent bar[]” to review by the Court. Id. at 19.
 4 The Supreme Court rejected the Government’s argument, stating: “As we have said before, 5 §1252(b)(9) does not present a jurisdictional bar where those bringing suit are not asking for review of 6 an order of removal, the decision to seek removal, or the process by which removability will be 7 determined.” Id. (quoting Jennings 583 U.S. at 294) (modifications adopted). The Court held that 8 Section 1252(b)(9) “is certainly not a bar where ... the parties are not challenging any removal 9 proceedings.” Id.

10 After Jennings and Regents, the Ninth Circuit considered whether the district court had 11 jurisdiction over the claims of a class that sought injunctive relief for Fourth Amendment violations in 12 Gonzalez v. U.S. Immigration & Customs Enf’t, 975 F.3d 788, 810-811 (9th Cir. 2020). The 13 Government argued that “the district court lacked subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 14 1252(b)(9).” Id. at 810. The Court rejected this assertion. Id. at 810-811. The Ninth Circuit 15 acknowledged: “The Supreme Court has since [J.E.F.M.] instructed that § 1252(b)(9) is a ‘targeted’ 16 and ‘narrow’ provision that “is certainly not a bar where ... the parties are not challenging any removal 17 proceedings.” Id. at 811 (quoting Regents, 140 S. Ct. at 1907). The Ninth Circuit followed Regents 18 and found Section 1252(b)(9) was “not a bar to jurisdiction over the claims of any class members—19 noncitizen or U.S. citizens—because none asks for review of an order of removal, the decision to seek 20 removal, or the process by which removability will be determined.” Id. (cleaned up). The Ninth Circuit 21 also determined “Section 1252(b)(9) is also not a bar to jurisdiction over noncitizen class members’ 22 claims because claims challenging the legality of detention pursuant to an immigration detainer are 23 independent of the removal process.” Id. (citing Aguilar, 510 F.3d at 11). Thus, the Ninth Circuit 24 adopted the test identified by the Supreme Court and found Section 1252(b)(9) does not bar district 25 court jurisdiction over class claims where the claims do not challenge removal proceedings. Id.

26 The decision of the Ninth Circuit in Gonzalez is consistent with those of other circuit courts, 27 which have also declined to find Section 1252(b)(9) barred district court jurisdiction over claims that 28 were tangential to removal proceedings following Regents. See, e.g., Mukantagara v. United States

1 Dep't of Homeland Sec., 67 F.4th 1113, 1116 (10th Cir. 2023) (rejecting an “expansive interpretation” 2 of Section 1252(b)(9) and finding the district court erred in finding it lacked jurisdiction where the 3 “[p]laintiffs do not challenge their removal proceedings”); Canal A Media Holding, LLC v. United 4 States Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 964 F.3d 1250, 1257 (11th Cir. 2020) (noting the “narrow 5 scope” of Section 1252(b)(9) under Regents, and finding the provision “is not intended to cut off claims 6 that have a tangential relationship with pending removal proceedings”).

7 As Plaintiffs argue, the issues before the Court are like those addressed in Nava v. Dep't of 8 Homeland Sec., 435 F. Supp. 3d 880 (N.D. Ill. 2020). In Nava, the claims of the plaintiffs—including 9 individuals and two organizations—arose from “Operation Keep Safe,” which was “a large-scale ICE 10 enforcement action that occurred in the Chicago area during a week-long period in May 2018.” Id. at 11 885. ICE reported the operation resulted in 156 arrests, including 106 people “for whom ICE lacked 12 an arrest warrant.” Id. at 885 (modification adopted). The plaintiffs alleged that “ICE arrested and 13 detained each [of them] ‘without a warrant or an individualized determination that he is a flight risk,’ 14 in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2).” Id. The plaintiffs stated a claim under the Fourth Amendment, 15 which was “based on ICE’s traffic stops of four Individual Plaintiffs, which ultimately led to their 16 arrests and detention.” Id. at 886. The court observed:

17 According to [Plaintiffs], ICE officers stopped the Individual Plaintiffs 18 without reasonable suspicion that they, or any other individuals in the 19 vehicles, had violated an immigration law. [Citation.] Plaintiffs allege, 20 further, that the ICE officers stopped the Individual Plaintiffs’ vehicles 21 merely because the drivers and passengers therein appeared to be 22 Hispanic. [Citation.] And Plaintiffs allege that ICE’s actions reflect a 23 policy and practice of violating the Fourth Amendment while conducting 24 traffic stops. [Citation.]

 26 Plaintiffs seek declaratory relief, including an order stating that the 27 challenged conduct violates the INA and the Fourth Amendment; 28 injunctive relief, including orders prohibiting Defendants from engaging in the challenged conduct and requiring them to adopt policies that will ensure they follow the relevant laws; and attorneys’ fees and costs.

25 Id. at 886, 887-88 (citations omitted). The defendants moved to dismiss, arguing that the district court 26 lacked jurisdiction. The court determined that “an illegal stop conducted before the government has 27 any legitimate reason to believe that the subject is removable cannot be an ‘action taken to remove an 28 alien under’ the INA.” Id. at 890-91 (cleaned up). The court also found: “The prescribed particularized

1 determination of a detainee’s flight risk is not substantively related to the question whether a non-2 citizen can lawfully be removed from the United States. Rather, Plaintiffs’ INA-based claim raises 3 questions of law and fact that are quite remote from the issue of the Individual Plaintiffs’ 4 removability.” Id. at 891-92. Finally, the court noted the ICE practices “cause at least some U.S.
5 citizens (or lawful permanent residents) to be stopped and/or detained ... and the government would 6 not commence removal proceedings against them.” Id. at 894. Thus, the court rejected the defendants’ 7 arguments and concluded Sections 1252(a)(5) and 1252(b)(9) did not deprive the district court of 8 jurisdiction. Id. at 895, 904.

9 In Bogomazov v. United States Dep’t of Homeland Sec., the district court found it had 10 jurisdiction over claims related to alleged unlawful conduct prior to the commencement of removal 11 proceedings. Id., 2022 WL 769801 (S.D. Fl. Feb. 27, 2022). Vitaly Bogomazov filed the action “to 12 challenge his unlawful seizure and related treatment by ICE and DHS agents.” Id., 2022 WL 769801 at 13 *4 (modifications adopted). Bogomazov was lawfully admitted to the United States on a visitor’s visa 14 and filed an asylum application. Id. at *1. He later appeared at a U.S. Citizenship and Immigration 15 Services office with his wife and daughter for “adjustment of status interviews.” Id. at *2. After the 16 interview, ICE officers “entered the interview room and arrested [Bogomazov] without a warrant.” Id.
17 Bogomazov alleged his removal proceedings began after the arrest. Id. He was released after his first 18 appearance before an immigration judge. Id. However, Bogomazov was arrested a second time on his 19 way to another interview with the USCIS. Id. at *3. Bogomazov sought to hold ICE and DHS liable 20 for violations of his rights, including unconstitutional seizure under the Fourth Amendment. Id. at *4.
21 The defendants argued the court lacked jurisdiction under 8 U.S.C. §§ 1252(g) and 1252(b)(9). Id. at 22 *5. The district court rejected these contentions to the extent Bogomazov based his claims on the first 23 arrest. Id. at *9. The court observed: “the alleged wrongful conduct here stemming from the first arrest 24 occurred before [Bogomazov] was served the Notice to Appear and, therefore, before removal 25 proceedings were initiated.” Id. at *10 (emphasis in original). The court also noted that Section 26 1252(b)(9) “should be narrowly construed,” and found the provision was inapplicable to the “claims 27 stemming from the first arrest because [Bogomazov] does not seek review of an order of removal, the 28 decision to seek removal or the process by which removability is determined.” Id. at *11 (citing

1 Regents, 140 S. Ct. at 1907). Consequently, the court found Sections 1252(g) and 1252(b)(9) did not 2 bar the claims concerning the first arrest, which occurred prior to the removal proceedings, although 3 claims concerning the second arrest—after removal proceedings commenced— were barred. Id., 2022 4 WL 769801, at 8-11, adopted in full, 2022 WL 767104 (S.D. Fl. Mar. 14, 2022).

5 As in Nava and Bogomazov, Plaintiffs seek to hold the defendants liable for violations of their 6 Fourth Amendment rights and failure to comply with obligations under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2). The 7 claims of the Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class relate to conduct before any 8 removal proceedings were commenced against putative class members as a result of “Operation 9 Return to Sender.”⁸ The claims of the two proposed classes—who assert that Border Patrol did not 10 have reasonable suspicion to perform investigative stops and did not perform required flight risk 11 evaluations during the Operation— are “not substantively related to the question of whether [putative 12 class members] can lawfully be removed from the United States.” See Nava, 435 F. Supp. 3d at 891-13 892. Moreover, the putative classes include individuals against whom there can be no removal 14 proceedings, including U.S. citizens and legal residents who have been or will be subjected to 15 unlawful practices. Ultimately, the two proposed classes “are not asking for review of an order of 16 removal, the decision to seek removal, or the process by which removability will be determined.” See 17 Regents, 591 U.S. at 19 (modifications adopted); see also Jennings, 583 U.S. at 294. Consequently, 18 Section 1252(a)(5) and Section 1252(b)(9) do not bar district court jurisdiction over Plaintiffs’ claims 19 on behalf of the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes. Regents, 591 U.S. at 19 (holding 20 Section 1252(b)(9) “is certainly not a bar where, as here, the parties are not challenging any removal 21 proceedings”); see also Nava, 435 F. Supp. 3d at 890-895; Bogomazov, 2022 WL 769801, at *11.

22 II. Limitations to Injunctive Relief under Section 1252(f)(1)

23 The Court has limits upon its jurisdiction and authority to grant injunctive relief for classes 24 imposed by 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1). Section 1252(f)(1) provides:

25 Regardless of the nature of the action or claim or of the identity of the party 26 or parties bringing the action, no court (other than the Supreme Court) shall 27 have jurisdiction or authority to enjoin or restrain the operation of the provisions of part IV of this subchapter, as amended by the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996, other than with respect to the application of such provisions to an individual alien against whom proceedings under such part have been initiated.

Id. The identified “provisions of part IV of [the] subchapter” include §§ 1221-1232, which “charge the Federal Government with the implementation and enforcement of the immigration laws governing the inspection, apprehension, examination, and removal of aliens.” Garland v. Gonzalez, 596 U.S. 543, 549-50 (2022). The Supreme Court explained that Section 1252(f)(1) “prohibits lower courts from entering injunctions that order federal officials to take or to refrain from taking actions to enforce, implement, or otherwise carry out the specified statutory provisions.” Id. at 550.

Defendants contend that Section 1252(f)(1) “bars the court from granting Plaintiffs’ request to preliminarily enjoin USBP’s detention and removal operations.” (Doc. 31 at 14.) Defendants observe, “8 U.S.C. § 1226, a covered statute, concerns the apprehension and detention of aliens” and “8 U.S.C. § 1229, another covered statute, concerns the initiation of removal proceedings against an alien.” (Id.) According to Defendants, “To the extent Plaintiffs allege they are seeking to enjoin 8 U.S.C. § 1357, the actions under this statute cannot be untangled from apprehension and removal operations.” (Id. at 14-15.) Therefore, Defendants argue that “Plaintiffs’ request to restrain USBP’s allegedly unlawful detention and removal operations necessarily seeks to enjoin operation of provisions covered by 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1).” (Id. at 15.)

As Defendants acknowledge, the provision of the INA at issue—Section 1357(a)(2), which is contained in Part IX—is not one of the specified provisions in Section 1252(f)(1). See 8 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1); Garland, 596 U.S. at 549-50. Consequently, the limiting language of Section 1252(f)(1) does not apply to the pending request for injunctive relief. Gonzalez, 975 F.3d at 814 (“§ 1357(d) is not located in Part IV, and thus § 1252(f)(1)’s limitations do not apply”); see also State of Texas v. U.S. Dept. of Homeland Sec., 123 F.4th 186, 209-210 (5th Cir. 2024) (“because § 1357(a)(3) is not one of the statutes referenced in § 1252(f)(1), the injunction [sought] is not barred”); Reno v. American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Comm., 525 U.S. 471, 481 (1999) (“By its plain terms... [Section 1252(f)] prohibits federal courts from granting classwide injunctive relief against the operation of §§ 1221-1231”). The Ninth Circuit explained, “by specifying only ‘the provisions of Part IV’ and reinforcing its focus on only ‘such provisions,’ ... the statute’s plain text makes clear that its

1 limitations on injunctive relief do not apply to other provisions of the INA.” Gonzalez, 975 F.3d at 813 2 (emphasis in original, citation omitted).

3 Notably, the “detention” statutes on which Defendants rely relate to custodial detentions in a 4 facility and not to the detention of individuals for investigative stops on the streets, such as those at 5 issue here. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) (indicating that “[o]n a warrant issued by the Attorney General, an 6 alien may be arrested and detained pending a decision on whether the alien is to be removed”); 8 7 U.S.C. § 1226(c) (addressing “detention of criminal aliens” and when the Attorney General shall take 8 an alien into custody); 8 U.S.C. § 1226(d) (directing the Attorney General to “devise an implement a 9 system” to identify criminal aliens after arrests). The obligations under Section 1226 are distinct from 10 the authority of immigration officers to perform investigative, detentive stops and the obligation to 11 evaluate flight risk prior to a warrantless arrest. See Kidd v. Mayorkas, 734 F. Supp. 3d 967, 986 12 (C.D. Cal. 2024) (“There is a clear distinction between the authority to issue warrants under § 1226(a) 13 and the one to execute arrests under § 1357”). Furthermore, as discussed above, the Suspicionless 14 Class and Warrantless Arrest Class do not seek to challenge removal proceedings, such that the 15 provisions of 8 U.S.C. § 1229 are implicated. Thus, Defendants’ argument that an injunction related 16 to Section 1357 would necessarily enjoin obligations under the covered statutes is frivolous.

17 Courts maintain authority to enter injunctions addressing other provisions of the INA even if 18 there may be collateral effects upon a provision covered by Section 1252(f)(1). See, e.g., Gonzales v.
19 DHS, 508 F.3d 1227, 1233 (9th Cir. 2007) (holding that Section 1252(f)(1) did not prohibit an 20 injunction directly implicating adjustment of status—which is not among the statutory provisions 21 specified in Section 1252(f)(1)—despite a collateral effect on removal); State of Texas, 123 F.4th at 22 210 (where injunctive relief related to conduct under Section 1357 would “at most have only a 23 collateral effect on the operation of the covered statutes, (specifically §§ 1225 and 1226)” the 24 injunction was not barred); Kidd, 734 F. Supp. 3d at 985 (“Section 1252(f) ... does not directly impede 25 the Court’s authority to issue injunctive relief to ensure that ICE executes warrants in a manner 26 consistent with the United States Constitution”). Even in Al Otro Lado v. Exec. Office of Immigr.
27 Rev., 120 F.4th 606 (9th Cir. 2024)—a case cited by Defendants (Doc. 31 at 14)—the Ninth Circuit 28 recognized that it “has repeatedly held that § 1252(f)(1) does not prohibit an injunction simply because of collateral effects on a covered provision.” Al Otro Lado, 120 F.4th at 627. Thus, even if an injunction could have a collateral effect on the provisions identified by Defendants, the Court has the jurisdiction and the authority to issue an injunction.

III. Conclusion

Based upon the foregoing, 8 USC §§ 1252(a)(5), 1252(b)(9), and 1252(f) do not bar this Court’s jurisdiction over the claims of the proposed Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class— for violations of the Fourth Amendment, 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2), and 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii)—or its authority to enter class-wide injunctive relief.⁹

EVIDENCE BEFORE THE COURT

The “Federal Rules of Evidence do not strictly apply in the preliminary injunction context.” Flathead-Lolo-Bitterroot Citizen Task Force v. Montana, 98 F.4th 1180, 1189-90 (9th Cir. 2024); see also Herb Reed Enters., LLC v. Florida Entm’t Mgmt., Inc., 736 F.3d 1239, 1250 n.5 (9th Cir. 2013) (“Due to the urgency of obtaining a preliminary injunction at a point when there has been limited factual development, the rules of evidence do not apply strictly to preliminary injunction proceedings”). As the Supreme Court observed, “a preliminary injunction is customarily granted on the basis of procedures that are less formal and evidence that is less complete than in a trial on the merits.” Univ. of Tex. v. Camenisch, 451 U.S. 390, 395 (1981). The Court “may give even inadmissible evidence some weight, when to do so serves the purpose of preventing irreparable harm before trial.” Flynt v. Distrib. Co. v. Harvey, 734 F.2d 1389, 1394 (9th Cir. 1984). For example, the Court may consider declarations that include hearsay statements or information in news articles. See, e.g., Flathead, 98 F.4th at 1190 (finding “no error in the district court’s consideration of [a] news article” in addressing a motion for a preliminary injunction); Fellowship of Christian Athletes v. San Jose Unifed Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 82 F.4th 664, 682 (9th Cir. 2023) (“a court may exercise its discretion to accept hearsay and make inferences in ruling on a preliminary injunction”).

The Ninth Circuit determined that inadmissibility “is not a proper basis to reject evidence submitted in support of class certification.” Sali v. Corona Regional Med. Ctr., 909 F.3d 996, 1004 (9th Cir. 2018). Instead, “[o]n a motion for class certification, the court may consider evidence that may not be admissible at trial.” Mazza v. Am. Honda Motor Co., 254 F.R.D. 610 (C.D. Cal. 2008) (citing Eisen v. Carlisle & Jacquelin, 417 U.S. 156, 178 (1974) (describing a court’s determination of class certification as based on “tentative findings, made in the absence of established safeguards” and indicating certification is “not accompanied by the traditional rules and procedures applicable to civil trials”); see also Parkinson v. Hyundai Motor Am., 258 F.R.D. 580, 599 (C.D. Cal. 2008) (“courts have held that on a motion for class certification, the evidentiary rules are not strictly applied and courts can consider evidence that may not be admissible at trial”) (citation omitted).

⁹ The Court makes no findings regarding its jurisdiction over other claims raised in the complaint.

Even still, Defendants do not object to the evidence submitted by Plaintiffs. For purposes of the motions now at issue, the Court will consider Plaintiffs’ anecdotal evidence and exhibits to evaluate the pending requests for provisional class certification and injunctive relief.

MOTION FOR PROVISIONAL CLASS CERTIFICATION

A “class action is ‘an exception to the usual rule that litigation is conducted by and on behalf of the individual named parties only.’” Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27, 33 (2013) (quoting Califano v. Yamasaki, 442 U.S. 682, 700-01 (1979)). Class certification is governed by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provide: “One or more members of a class may sue or be sued as representative parties on behalf of all members” under certain circumstances. Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a). Pursuant to Rule 23, a court must determine whether to certify a class “[a]t an early practicable time after a person sues ... as a class representative.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(A). As such, nothing precludes class certification at an early stage in the proceedings.

I. Legal Standards

Plaintiffs seek “provisional class certification,” which applies only to the related motion for a preliminary injunction. See Ger Chong Ze Chang v. Count of Siskiyou, 2024 WL 4581687, at *9 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 24, 2024) (“provisional class certification” may be for the purpose of “an order that applies to a preliminary injunction, as opposed to a final injunction or judgment”). The Ninth Circuit expressly indicated the Court has discretion to grant provisional class certification while considering a preliminary injunction. Meyer v. Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, 708 F.3d 1036, 1041 (9th Cir. 2012) (finding the district court “did not abuse its discretion by granting provisional class certification” in an order also addressing a request for a preliminary injunction); see also Al Otro Lado v. Wolf, 952 F.3d 999, 1005 n.4 (9th Cir. 2020) (“We have approved provisional class certification for purposes of preliminary injunction proceedings.”).

A. Rule 23(a) Prerequisites

A party seeking provisional certification “has the burden of meeting the threshold requirements” of Rule 23(a). Meyer v. Portfolio Recovery Assocs., LLC, 707 F.3d 1036, 1041 (2012) (citing Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 131 S. Ct. 2541, 2551 (2011)). Pursuant to Rule 23(a), a class action is proper if:

- (1) the class is so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable;
- (2) there are questions of law or fact common to the class; (3) the claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical of the claims or defenses of the class; and (4) the representative parties will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a). These prerequisites are often referred to as numerosity, commonality, typicality, and adequacy of representation, and “effectively limit the class claims to those fairly encompassed by the named plaintiff’s claims.” General Telephone Co. of the Southwest v. Falcon, 457 U.S. 147, 155-56 (1982) (citing General Telephone Co. v. EEOC, 446 U.S. 318, 330 (1980)).

B. Rule 23(b) Certification

When a proposed class satisfies the prerequisites of Rule 23(a), the Court must determine whether the class is maintainable under Rule 23(b). DZ Reserve v. Meta Platforms, Inc., 96 F.4th 1223, 1232 (9th Cir. 2024) (noting if the Court finds a class satisfies the requirements of Rule 23(a), it must next determine the class “fit[s] into at least one of three categories outlined in Rule 23(b)”). Under Rule 23(b)(1), a class is maintainable if there is a risk of inconsistent or varying adjudications from “prosecuting separate actions by or against individual class members.” Id. The Court may certify a class if “adjudications with respect to individual class members ... would be dispositive of the interests of other members not parties to the individual adjudications or would substantially impair or impede their ability to protect their interests.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(1)(B).

A class is maintainable under Rule 23(b)(2) if “the party opposing the class has acted or refused to act on grounds that apply generally to the class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding

1 declaratory relief is appropriate responding the class as a whole.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2). The 2 Supreme Court explained, “Rule 23(b)(2) applies only when a single injunction or declaratory
 3 judgment would provide relief to each member of the class. It does not authorize class certification 4 when each individual member would be entitled to a different injunction or declaratory judgment 5 against the defendant.” Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 360.

6 Class certification under Rule 23(b)(3) allows for class certification in cases “in which class-7 action treatment is not clearly called for as it is in Rule 23(b)(1) and (b)(2) situations.” Amchem Prods., 8 Inc. v. Windsor, 521 U.S. 591, 615 (1997). Thus, a class is maintainable under Rule 23(b)(3) where 9 “questions of law or fact common to the members of the class predominate over any questions affecting 10 only individual members,” and where “a class action is superior to other available methods for fair and 11 efficient adjudication of the controversy.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(3).

12 C. Burden of Proof

13 The Supreme Court explained, “Rule 23 does not set forth a mere pleading standard. A party 14 seeking class certification must affirmatively demonstrate his compliance with the Rule—that is, he 15 must be prepared to prove that there are in fact sufficiently numerous parties, common questions of law 16 or fact, etc.” Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 350 (emphasis in original). Consequently, is not enough for the 17 Court to assume the Rule 23 factors can be satisfied.

18 The Court must conduct a “rigorous analysis,” which may require the Court “to probe behind 19 the pleadings before coming to rest on the certification question.” Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 350-51 20 (quoting Falcon, 457 U.S. at 160-61). Parties seeking certification bear the burden of demonstrating 21 “by a preponderance of the evidence” that Rule 23 is satisfied. White v. Symetra Assigned Benefits 22 Serv., 104 F.4th 1182, 1192 (9th Cir. 2024) (citing Olean Wholesale Grocery Coop., Inc. v. Bumble 23 Bee Foods LLC, 31 F.4th 651, 665 (9th Cir. 2022)). In other words, the district court must “find that 24 the evidence more likely than not establishes each fact necessary to meet the requirements of Rule 23.”
 25 Wolff v. AETNA Life Ins. Co., 77 F.4th 164, 174 (3rd Cir. 2023) (citation omitted).

26 II. Standing

27 Before evaluating Plaintiffs’ proposed provisional classes under Rule 23, the Court must 28 determine whether Plaintiffs have standing to assert their claims. As the Ninth Circuit explained, standing “is a jurisdictional element that must be satisfied prior to class certification.” LaDuke v. Nelson, 762 F.2d 1318, 1325 (9th Cir. 1985). Consequently, the Court should address the issue of standing prior to certifying any class. See Easter v. Am. West Fin., 381 F.3d 948, 962 (9th Cir. 2004).

“[T]hose who seek to invoke the jurisdiction of the federal courts must satisfy the threshold requirement imposed by Article III of the Constitution by alleging an actual case or controversy.” City of Los Angeles v. Lyons, 461 U.S. 95, 101 (1983). To satisfy the “case or controversy” requirement, a plaintiff must establish standing under Article III to bring suit. Human Life of Wash., Inc. v. Brumsickle, 624 F.3d 990, 1000 (9th Cir. 2010); see also Skaff v. Meridien N. Am. Beverly Hills, LLC, 506 F.3d 832, 938 (2007) (“standing is an essential and unchanging part of the case-or-controversy requirement of Article III”). In a proposed class action, “if none of the named plaintiffs purporting to represent a class establishes the requisite of a case or controversy with the defendants, none may seek relief on behalf of himself or any other member of the class.” Lierboe v. State Farm Mut. Auto. Ins. Co., 350 F.3d 1018, 1022 (9th Cir. 2003). To establish standing—and thus that there is an actual case or controversy—a plaintiff “must demonstrate (1) an injury-in-fact, (2) causation, and (3) a likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a decision in the plaintiff’s favor.” Human Life, 624 F.3d at 1000 (citing Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560 (1992)).

“[J]urisdiction is to be assessed under the facts existing when the complaint is filed.” Lujan, 504 U.S. at 570 n. 4 (1992). Consequently, “[t]he requisite personal interest”—standing— “must exist at the commencement of the litigation.” Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Environmental Servs., Inc., 528 U.S. 167, 214 (2000) (citation omitted); Skaff v. Meridien N. Am. Beverly Hills, LLC, 506 F.3d 832, 850 (9th Cir. 2007) (“Standing is determined at the time of the lawsuit’s commencement, and we must consider the facts as they existed at that time the complaint was filed”); see also Perry v. Village of Arlington Heights, 186 F.3d 826, 830 (7th Cir. 1999) (“Because standing goes to the jurisdiction of a federal court to hear a particular case, it must exist at the commencement of the suit”).

Defendants note that the El Centro Sector issued a “Muster” on April 4, 2025. (Doc. 32 at 14, citing Exh. A [Doc. 31-1; Doc. 32-1].) They report that the Border Patrol is “taking steps to implement training on the Muster,” and “endeavor to conduct training sessions to ensure compliance with the Muster[,] ... compliance with the Fourth Amendment and 8 U.S.C. § 1357, and compliance

1 with Supreme Court and Ninth Circuit law on conducting vehicle stops, consensual encounters, and 2 warrantless arrests.” (Id. at 15, citing Ex. B at ¶¶ 13-19¹⁰ [Doc. 31-2 at 3-4; Doc. 32-2 at 3-4].) 3 According to Defendants, “in light of these actions and commitments,” Plaintiffs lack standing for 4 injunctive relief. (Id. at 15.)

5 Defendants do not argue that Plaintiffs failed to show an injury-in-fact and causation, as 6 required to establish Article III standing. (See Doc. 32 at 11, 14-15.) Thus, Defendants concede the 7 individual plaintiffs allege facts sufficient to support a conclusion that each suffered violations of their 8 rights under the Fourth Amendment during “Operation Return to Sender,” and that Defendants did not 9 perform required flight risk assessments prior to arresting the proposed class representatives.
 10 Defendants also do not dispute that a clear causal connection exists between the alleged injuries and the 11 challenged conduct by Border Patrol. The injuries of the three proposed class representatives—Oscar 12 Morales Cisneros, Wilder Munguia Esquivel, and Yolanda Aguilera Martinez— who seek declaratory 13 and injunctive relief in the complaint for the claims in issue related to the proposed Suspicionless Stop 14 and Warrantless Arrest Classes, would likely be “redressed by a decision in ... [their] favor.” See 15 Human Life, 624 F.3d at 1000. Towards this end, the proposed class representatives establish Article 16 III standing for their claims, sufficient for the Court to proceed with its analysis under Rule 23.¹¹

17 III. Class Definitions

18 In evaluating whether classes are suitable for certification, the Court must consider the proposed 19 class definitions. See Wolph v. Acer Am. Corp., 272 F.R.D. 477, 482 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (“[a]lthough 20 there is no explicit requirement concerning the class definition in FRCP 23, courts have held that the 21 class must be adequately defined ... before a class action may proceed”) (citation omitted). Plaintiffs 22 seek provisional certification of two classes to challenge the actions of Border Patrol as a 23 “discriminatory and unlawful campaign against people of color in Kern County.” (Doc. 14-1 at 7.)

25 ¹⁰ Although Defendants cite to Exhibit B ¶¶ 13-19, the exhibit—a declaration from Sergio Guzman, the Acting 26 Executive Officer of El Centro Sector—includes only 12 paragraphs. (See Docs. 31-2, 32-2.) Based upon the information provided, it appears the relevant paragraphs are correctly identified as numbers 8 through 11. (See
id. at 3-4; see also Doc. 31-2 at 3-4, ¶¶ 8-11.)

27 ¹¹ To the extent Defendants assert that Plaintiffs “lack standing” “because the issues raised in their Complaint 28 have been resolved” (Doc. 32 at 14), the Court addresses the mootness argument in its analysis regarding the motion for a preliminary injunction.

1 Plaintiffs defined the provisional classes as:

- 2 1. Suspicionless Stop Class: All persons who, since January 6, 2025, 3 have been or will be subjected to a detentive stop by Border Patrol in 4 this district pursuant to a practice of conducting stops without 5 warrants and without an individualized assessment of reasonable 6 suspicion whether the person (1) is engaged in an offense against the 7 United States or (2) is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States.
- 8 2. Warrantless Arrest Class: All persons whom Border Patrol, since 9 January 6, 2025, has arrested or will arrest without a warrant in this 10 district.

12 Defendants contend these two class definitions are fatally flawed. (Doc. 32 at 15-16.)
13 According to Defendants, “the proposed classes cannot be certified because they are impermissibly 14 defined as ‘fail-safe’ classes and the Warrantless Arrest Class is impermissibly overbroad.” (Id. at 15 15 [emphasis omitted, cleaned up].) Plaintiffs dispute these assertions but propose modifying the 16 Warrantless Arrest Class if the Court agrees the original definition is overbroad. (Doc. 37 at 13-14.)

17 1. “Fail-safe” Classes

18 “A fail-safe class is commonly defined as limiting membership to plaintiffs described by their 19 theory of liability in the class definition such that the definition presupposes success on the merits.”
20 Melgar v. CSK Auto, Inc., 681 Fed. Appx. 605, 607 (9th Cir. 2017) (citing William B. Rubenstein, 21 Newberg on Class Actions § 3:6 (5th ed. 2016)). A class definition does “not presuppose its success” 22 when the plaintiffs will be “required ... to prove more facts to establish liability than are referenced in 23 the class definition.” Id. Consequently, the Ninth Circuit explained that a fail-safe definition is one 24 where the class “is defined in a way that precludes membership unless the liability of the defendant is 25 established.” Kamar v. RadioShack Corp., 375 Fed. Appx. 734, 736 (9th Cir. 2010) (emphasis added).

26 Defendants argue the proposed Suspicionless Arrest and Warrantless Arrest Classes “are prime 27 examples of impermissible ‘fail-safe’ classes because they can only be certified upon a determination 28 of the merits.” (Doc. 32 at 15.) Defendants assert the Suspicionless Stop Class membership “depends on whether Plaintiffs can prove the Defendants had a practice of conducting stops without warrants and without an individualized assessment of reasonable suspicion for an individual,” and the Warrantless Arrest Class membership “depends on whether Plaintiffs can prove that Defendants

1 [have] arrested or will arrest an individual without a warrant in this district.” (Id.) Therefore, 2 Defendants assert that liability “is necessary in order to have membership in either [class],” and 3 certification must be denied. (Id., citing Ruiz Torres v. Mercer Canyons Inc., 835 F.3d 1125, 1138 n.7
 4 (9th Cir. 2016).)

5 Plaintiffs argue the two proposed definitions do not result in fail-safe classes, because “class 6 membership relies on ‘factual questions and requires no impermissible preliminary determination of 7 liability.’” (Doc. 37 at 13, quoting Pena v. Taylor Farms Pacific, Inc., 305 F.R.D. 197, 213 (E.D. Cal.
 8 2015) [modification adopted].) Plaintiffs also contend this Court’s decision in “Willis v. Enterprise 9 Drilling Fluids, Inc. is instructive.” (Id., citing Willis, 2015 WL 6689637 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 28, 2015).)
 10 Plaintiffs observe:

11 [Willis] involved a subclass of members who were not timely paid their 12 wages, and where the defendant allegedly “had a ‘policy and practice’ of 13 failing to pay ... the wages due.” Id. at *6–7. The Court held the proposed 14 subclass was not fail-safe because “[i]f Plaintiff succeeds in establishing the existence of unlawful policies or practices common to all the class members, the Court would not be required to determine the legal merits of each class members’ claims....” Id. at *7 (emphasis added).

15 (Id.) Plaintiffs contend the same is true here, because membership in the proposed classes requires 16 answering factual questions regarding the Border Patrol’s patterns and practices. (Id. at 13–14.) They 17 assert, “Ascertaining membership in the Suspicionless Stop Class[] involves answering ... (1) whether 18 Border Patrol stopped the person in this District since January 6, 2025, and (2) whether Border Patrol 19 has a pattern or practice of not conducting an individualized assessment of reasonable suspicion prior 20 to a stop.” (Id. at 13 [footnote omitted].) Plaintiffs contend “ascertaining membership in the 21 Warrantless Arrest Class[] requires answering only factual questions: (1) whether Border Patrol 22 arrested the person without a warrant in this District since January 6, 2025, and (2) whether Border 23 Patrol has a pattern or practice of not conducting an individualized assessment of flight risk prior to an 24 arrest.” (Id. at 13–14.) Plaintiffs argue that after the classes are ascertained, “the Court may consider 25 the legality of the challenged pattern or practice, and class members will be bound by that judgment 26 whether they win or lose.” (Id. at 13, citing Willis, 2015 WL 6689637, at *7; see also id. at 14.)

27 The Court finds the proposed class definitions for the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless 28 Arrest classes do not preclude membership unless liability is established. For example, membership in the Suspicionless Stop Class is not precluded unless Defendants are liable for violating the Fourth Amendment. Instead, as Plaintiffs argue, membership in the proposed class requires: (1) the person be subjected to an investigatory, detentive stop by Border Patrol during the relevant period; and (2) the Court’s finding that Border Patrol had a pattern or practice of conducting stops without warrants and without assessments of reasonable suspicion. Similarly, membership in the Warrantless Arrest Class is not precluded unless Defendants are liable for violations of 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) and 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(C)(2)(ii). Put another way, membership for both the classes may be known without a determination of Defendants’ liability on the claims in issue, and liability is not presupposed with the proposed definitions. Accordingly, the two proposed Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes are not “fail-safe” classes.

2. Scope of the Warrantless Arrest Class Definition

When a proposed class definition “include[s] a great number of members who for some reason could not have been harmed by the defendant’s allegedly unlawful conduct, the class is defined too broadly to permit certification.” Olean, 31 F.4th at 669 n.14 (quoting Messner v. Northshore Univ. HealthSystem, 669 F.3d 802, 826 n.15 (7th Cir. 2012)). The Ninth Circuit determined “a court must consider whether the possible presence of uninjured class members means that the class definition is fatally overbroad.” Id.; see also Mazur v. eBay, Inc., 257 F.R.D. 563, 567 (N.D. Cal. 2009) (rejecting a class definition as imprecise and overbroad where it included individuals who were not harmed); Wolph, 272 F.R.D. at 482-83 (finding a class definition was overbroad where the proposed class included individuals who had already received a remedy and were not damaged).

The Court has discretion to cure defects of a proposed class definition, including modifying a definition when the class is overbroad. See Ruiz Torres, 835 F.3d at 1139 (indicating the district court may narrow a class definition); see also Powers v. Hamilton County Public Defender Comm’n, 501 F.3d 592, 619 (6th Cir. 2007) (“district courts have broad discretion to modify class definitions”); In re Monumental Life Ins. Co., 365 F.3d 408, 414 (5th Cir. 2004) (“district courts are permitted to limit or modify class definitions to provide the necessary precision”); Victorino v. FCA US LLC, 326 F.R.D. 282, 301-02 (S.D. Cal. 2018) (“district courts have the inherent power to modify overbroad class definitions”). The Court may also consider proposals to change a class definition first raised in a reply

1 brief on a motion for class certification. See, e.g., Cruz v. MM 879, Inc., 329 F.R.D. 639, 649-50 (E.D.
2 Cal. 2019) (where the defendants identified class definition flaws, the plaintiffs proposed amended 3 class definitions in their reply brief and “the Court exercise[d] its discretion to adopt [the] proposed 4 amendments”); Guzman v. Polaris Inds. Inc., 345 F.R.D. 174, 182, 184 (C.D. Cal. 2023) (observing the 5 plaintiffs narrowed the proposed class definition in their reply brief and considering whether the 6 modified class satisfied the Rule 23 requirements); see also Conant v. McCaffrey, 172 F.R.D. 681, 683 7 (N.D. Cal. 1997) (finding the plaintiffs “substantially alleviated” the problem resulting from an overly 8 broad class definition by “revising the class definition in their reply brief”).

9 Defendants contend the definition of the Warrantless Arrest Class “is impermissibly overly 10 broad.” (Doc. 32 at 16.) Defendants argue that a class must not be “defined so broadly as to include a 11 great number of members who for some reason could not have been harmed by the defendant’s 12 allegedly unlawful conduct.” (Id., quoting Ruiz Torres, 835 F.3d at 1138.) Defendants note that 13 “[a]rresting someone without a warrant is not necessarily unlawful conduct,” and the proposed class 14 may encompass individuals who were lawfully arrested “and could not have been harmed.” (Id., 15 citing Gonzales v. Comcast Corp., 2012 WL 10621, at *20 (E.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2012).) Defendants 16 contend that the class “should ... not be certified” given the overly broad definition. (Doc. 32 at 16.)
17 However, the Ninth Circuit indicated that when a class definition is overly broad, the problem “can 18 and often should be solved by refining the class definition rather than by flatly denying class 19 certification on that basis.” Olean, 31 F.4th at 669, n.14 (quoting Messner, 669 F.3d at 825 (when 20 there are “minor overbreadth problems ..., the better course is not to deny class certification entirely 21 but to amend the class definition as needed to correct for the overbreadth” [emphasis added])).

22 If the Court agrees that the definition is overly broad, Plaintiffs request that “the Court narrow 23 its definition ... to clarify the intended scope” of the Warrantless Arrest Class. (Doc. 37 at 14 n.10, 24 citation omitted.) Plaintiffs propose that the definition could be modified to indicate the arrests were 25 “pursuant to a practice of conducting arrests without warrants and without an individualized assessment 26 of probable cause that the person is likely to flee before a warrant can be obtained.” (Id.) Plaintiffs 27 contend this modification “would address Defendants’ overbreadth concern but would not create a fail-28 safe class for the reasons addressed in Willis.” (Id.)

3. Final Class Definitions

The Court finds it is necessary to modify the definitions, both for clarity and to ensure the scope of the classes are sufficiently narrowed to the theories of liability raised in the complaint. See Ruiz Torres, 835 F.3d at 1139 (indicating “the district court may construe the class definition more narrowly, or otherwise conform its interpretation of the class definition with the prevailing theory of liability”). For purposes of the pending motion for provisional class certification, the Court considers the following definitions:

Suspicionless Stop Class: All persons since January 6, 2025, who have been or will be subjected to a detentive stop by Border Patrol in this district without a pre-stop, individualized assessment of reasonable suspicion whether the person (1) is engaged in an offense against the United States or (2) is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States.

Warrantless Arrest Class: All persons since January 6, 2025, who have been arrested or will be arrested in this district by Border Patrol without a warrant and without a pre-arrest, individualized assessment of probable cause that the person poses a flight risk.

These modified definitions do not create fail-safe classes, because Plaintiffs retain the burden to prove that Border Patrol had (1) a pattern or practice of performing detentive stops without warrants and without reasonable suspicion assessments, and (2) a pattern or practice of placing individuals under arrest without a warrant, without first performing a flight risk assessment to find probable cause.

IV. Analysis of Rule 23 Requirements

Plaintiffs contend the requirements of Rule 23(a) and Rule 23(b) are satisfied for the provisional Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes. (Doc. 14-1 at 15-22.) Defendants argue the Court should deny certification because “the Proposed Classes are not sufficiently numerous, encompass dissimilarly situated individuals whose claims are not common, whose injuries are not typical, and who differ in their ability to challenge their claims through the administrative process.” (Doc. 32 at 1.)

A. Numerosity

This prerequisite requires the Court to consider “specific facts of each case and imposes no absolute limitations.” General Telephone Co. v. EEOC, 446 U.S. 318, 330 (1980). Although there is not a specific threshold, generally “courts find the numerosity requirement satisfied when a class

1 includes at least 40 members.” Rannis v. Recchia, 380 Fed. Appx. 646, 651 (9th Cir. 2010); see also 2 Water v. Leprino Foods Co., 670 F. Supp. 3d 1035, 1047 (E.D. Cal. 2023) (same). Even a class of 20 3 members—though a “jurisprudential rarity”—may satisfy the numerosity requirement where joinder
 4 of all is impracticable. See Rannis, 380 Fed. Appx. at 651-52. Importantly, “Plaintiffs need not state 5 the exact number of potential members nor identify all the members of the class so long as the putative 6 class is not amorphous.” Foon v. Centene Mgmt. Co., LLC, 2023 WL 1447922, at *4 (E.D. Cal. Feb.
 7 1, 2023) (quoting Arnold v. United Artists Theater Cir., Inc., 158 F.R.D. 439, 449 (N.D. Cal. 1994)).

8 Plaintiffs contend that “where only declaratory or injunctive relief is sought, ‘the numerosity 9 requirement is relaxed and plaintiffs may rely on reasonable inferences arising from plaintiffs’ other
 11 at 15, quoting C.R. Educ. & Enf’t Center. v. Hosp. Props. Tr., 317 F.R.D. 91, 100 (N.D. Cal. 2016) 12 [alterations adopted].) In finding there was a relaxed standard, the Northern District court cited Arnott 13 v. U.S. Citizenship & Immigration Servs., 290 F.R.D. 579, 586 (C.D. Cal. 2012), which, in turn, relied 14 upon Sueoka v. United States, 101 Fed. Appx. 649, 653 (9th Cir. 2004). In Sueoka, the Ninth Circuit 15 observed: “where ‘only injunctive or declaratory relief is sought, some courts have held that the 16 numerosity requirement is relaxed so that even speculative or conclusory allegations regarding 17 numerosity are sufficient to permit class certification.’” Id., 101 Fed. Appx. at 653 (quoting 5 Moore’s 18 Federal Practice § 23.22[3][b] (3d ed. 2003)). After the Ninth Circuit issued Sueoka, the Supreme 19 Court decided Wal-Mart, which expressly held that a party seeking certification cannot rely simply on 20 the pleadings, but “must be prepared to prove that there are in fact sufficiently numerous parties....”
 21 Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 350 (emphasis in original). The Supreme Court later reiterated that a party 22 seeking certification “must actually prove—not simply plead—that their proposed class satisfies each 23 requirement of Rule 23.” Halliburton Co. v. Erica P. John Fund, Inc., 573 U.S. 258, 275 (2014) 24 (emphasis in original). It does not appear the Ninth Circuit has applied the relaxed standard for the 25 numerosity requirement after the decisions in Wal-Mart and Halliburton. Consequently, the Court 26 declines to follow Sueoka and its progeny and finds that Plaintiffs must prove by a preponderance of 27 the evidence that they have satisfied the numerosity requirement.

28 Plaintiffs argue that “the numerosity requirement is easily met” because both proposed classes

1 are “currently comprised of at least dozens of people.” (Doc. 14-1 at 16 [emphasis omitted].)
2 Plaintiffs observe that “Border Patrol claims its agents arrested 78 people in Kern or Tulare counties
3 between January 7 and 10, 2025.” (Id., citing Braun Decl. Exhs. 17, 18, 22 [Doc. 15-2 at 72, 74, 94-4 95].) Plaintiffs also allege that “local reports estimate the number of arrested individuals may have 5 been higher.” (Id., citing Doc. 1 ¶¶ 4, 322.) Plaintiffs argue, “Even if Border Patrol’s number is 6 correct, the Warrantless Arrest Class is currently comprised of approximately 78 people, and the 7 Suspicionless Stops Class is even larger, as not all suspicionless stops were escalated to arrests.” (Id.)

8 Defendants argue the proposed classes “are not so numerous that they render joinder of all 9 members impracticable.” (Doc. 32 at 16, cleaned up.) Defendants contend that “Plaintiffs do not 10 attempt to even estimate the number of aliens who will prospectively be ‘subjected to [Border Patrol’s] 11 challenged practices or patterns.’” (Id. at 16-17, quoting Doc. 14-1 at 10.) Defendants also assert that 12 “Plaintiffs point to only a dozen[] examples” to support the numerosity requirement. (Id. at 17.) 13 However, Defendants do not address—or even acknowledge—any other evidence related to the 14 number of putative class members, such as information contained in the media statements from Border 15 Patrol or the Sector’s social media. (See id. at 16-17.)

16 Evidence before the Court shows Border Patrol itself reported the Operation “led to 78 arrests.”
17 (Doc. 15-2 at 72; see also id. at 74.) The U.S. Customs and Border Protection later indicated that for 18 77 of the 78 individuals arrested, Border Patrol did not have any information on their criminal history 19 before their arrests. (Doc. 38-1 at 5-6.) Thus, it appears that for at least 77 individuals, Border Patrol 20 did not have warrants authorizing arrest.

21 Munguia Esquivel reports that when Border Patrol transported him behind the Home Depot, he 22 saw “over ten people who had been detained.” (Doc. 15-10 at 3, ¶ 10.) Upon transport to the 7th 23 Standard Road facility in the afternoon of January 7, 2025, Munguia Esquivel saw a “bus... already 24 full of people who had been detained,” and a second bus arrived. (Id. at 11.) Morales Cisneros, who 25 was detained after work, estimated that his bus was filled with “about 40 people” when departing the 26 7th Standard Road facility around 10 or 11 p.m. on January 7, 2025. (Doc. 15-9 at 3, ¶ 9.) This 27 undisputed evidence supports a conclusion that Border Patrol arrested enough people to fill two buses 28 on January 7, 2025 alone, and the Operation continued for two more days. Plaintiffs also present

1 evidence that Border Patrol did not make required flight risk assessments before making these arrests 2 during the Operation.

3 As Plaintiffs argue, “not all suspicionless stops were escalated to arrests” for which flight risk 4 assessments would be required. For example, Morales Cisneros reports while he was handcuffed in a 5 Border Patrol vehicle, agents pulled behind another vehicle at a gas station and blocked it in, as they 6 had done to him. (Doc. 15-9 at 3, Morales Cisneros Decl. ¶ 7.) He observed the agents get out, talk to 7 a person in the vehicle, and say, “We’re doing our job.” (Id.) Morales Cisneros reports the agents 8 returned to the vehicle and did not arrest the unidentified individual. (Id.) Vargas Mendez reports that 9 although he was in a van with five other individuals when Border Patrol stopped the van, the driver 10 and front passenger produced identification when an agent “demanded ... their license[s] and proof of 11 residency.” (Doc. 15-6 at 3, Vargas Mendez Decl. ¶ 7.) Vargas Mendez states that Border Patrol 12 arrested him and “one of [his] coworkers.” (See id., ¶¶ 9-10.) There is no indication the other four 13 individuals in the van were arrested. (See id.) This evidence supports the conclusion that the 14 Suspicionless Stop Class also includes individuals who were not arrested following the stop.

15 Harmonizing Border Patrol’s media report with the undisputed anecdotal evidence, the Court 16 finds Plaintiffs have met their burden of establishing by a preponderance of the evidence that joinder
17 of all members is impracticable, and both the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes 18 satisfy the numerosity requirement.¹²

19 B. Commonality

20 Rule 23(a) requires “questions of law or fact common to the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2).
21 To satisfy the commonality requirement, the class representatives must “demonstrate that the class 22 members have suffered the same injury.” Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 350. Thus, “commonality requires 23 that the class members’ claims depend upon a common contention such that determination of its truth 24 or falsity will resolve an issue that is central to the validity of each claim in one stroke,” and the 26 ¹² Both the proposed Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes include “future” members. (See Doc.

27 14-1 at 8; Doc. 37 at 14, n.10.) The inclusion of future members supports the Court’s finding that both classes 28 satisfy the requirement of Rule 23(a)(1). See A.B. v. Hawaii State Dep’t of Educ., 30 F.4th 828, 838 (9th Cir.
2022) (explaining that when a class includes future members—which “is not itself unusual or objectionable”— this “makes joinder of every class member all the more impracticable”).

1 “plaintiff must demonstrate the capacity of classwide proceedings to generate common answers to 2 common questions of law or fact that are apt to drive the resolution of the litigation.” Mazza, 666 F.3d
3 at 588 (internal quotation marks, citations omitted); see also Parsons v. Ryan, 754 F.3d 657, 684 (9th 4 Cir. 2014) (finding commonality satisfied where “[t]he factual and legal questions that [plaintiffs] 5 present can be answered ‘yes’ or ‘no’ in one stroke as to the entire class, dissimilarities among class 6 members do not impede the generation of common answers to those questions, and the capacity of 7 classwide proceedings to drive the resolution of this litigation cannot be doubted”).

8 Plaintiffs observe, “In the Ninth Circuit, commonality is satisfied where ... Plaintiffs are 9 ‘challeng[ing] a system-wide practice or policy that affects all of the putative class members.’” (Doc.
10 14-1 at 17, quoting Armstrong v. Davis, 275 F.3d 849, 868 (9th Cir. 2001).) Plaintiffs also note the 11 Ninth Circuit “held that ‘Fourth Amendment claims concerning government policies, practices or 12 procedures for probable cause determinations are plainly suitable for classwide resolution.’” (Id., 13 quoting Gonzalez, 975 F.3d at 812.) According to Plaintiffs, “This logic applies with equal force to 14 reasonable suspicion determinations, which are also governed by the Fourth Amendment.” (Id.) 15 Plaintiffs argue their two proposed classes meet the commonality requirement “because they present 16 common questions of law and fact for all class members.” (Id.) Plaintiffs assert “each class member 17 has, or will be, subjected to the same practices that Border Patrol employs, which has affected each 18 class member.” (Id. at 17-18.) Plaintiffs contend a “determination as to the legality of those common 19 policies will resolve-class wide claims ‘in one stroke.’” (Id. at 18, quoting Cruz v. MM 879, Inc., 329 20 F.R.D. 639 (E.D. Cal. 2019).)

21 Defendants argue the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest classes “lack commonality for 22 three reasons”: (1) “the evidence belies Plaintiffs’ argument that a systemic policy, pattern, or practice
23 in violation of the Fourth Amendment and 8 U.S.C. § 1357 exists, or that such pattern or practice 24 occurred during ‘Operation Return to Sender;’” (2) the proposed classes “simply cannot address the 25 many factors that are involved in making an assessment of probable cause and flight risk;” and (3) 26 “there are various facts and circumstances concerning each alleged detention,” and “some of the 27 individuals who were detained allege that they were being detained for being in the United States 28 without any legal status where at least one individual was told he was being detained because of a

1 crime.” (See Doc. 32 at 18-19.)

2 Defendants contend: “Plaintiffs aver that ‘all class members in each Proposed Class are bound 3 together by common questions of fact and law focused on the nature of Border Patrol’s policies or 4 practices and whether those policies or practices are unlawful.’ However, this justification is an 5 insufficient basis for establishing commonality under Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2).” (Doc. 32 at 18, 6 quoting Doc. 14-1 at 8.) For example, Defendants note the Supreme Court held in Falcon that “a class 7 action ‘may only be certified if the trial court is satisfied, after rigorous analysis, that the prerequisites 8 of Rule 23(a) have been satisfied.’” (Id., quoting Falcon, 457 U.S. at 161 [emphasis omitted].)

9 Defendants observe:

10 In Falcon, a district court certified a class in a plaintiff-employee’s Title VII 11 action against his employer where the plaintiff claimed, without offering any 12 evidence, that the company had a policy of racial discrimination. Id. at 149-13 52. The Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit affirmed the class 14 certification. Id. at 147. The Supreme Court, however, reversed the Court 15 of Appeals order affirming the class certification and held that there was “a wide gap” between (1) an individual claim of discrimination and an unsupported allegation that a company had a policy of discrimination, and “(2) the existence of a class of persons who have suffered the same injury as that individual, such that the individual’s claim and the class claims will share common questions of law or fact.” Id. at 157.

16 (Doc. 32 at 18, citing Falcon, 457 U.S. at 147, 149-152, 157.) Defendants contend the “[s]ame [is 17 true] here.” (Id.) According to Defendants, “As in Falcon, Plaintiffs’ unsupported allegations of 18 Border Patrol’s unlawful policies or practices are insufficient absent a rigorous analysis of those 19 claims, particularly because ... whether Border Patrol agents have reasonable suspicion to effectuate 20 investigative stops and probable cause to effectuate arrests is an inherently fact-specific and 21 individualized inquiry.” (Id.)

22 Defendants observe that in U.S. v. Rodriguez, 975 F.2d 592 (9th Cir. 1992), the Ninth Circuit 23 held: “Reasonable suspicion is an individualized inquiry that must be founded upon a particularized 24 and objective basis for suspecting the particular person stopped.” (Doc. 32 at 19, citing Rodriguez, 25 975 F.2d at 595.) Defendants argue there are “various facts and circumstances concerning each 26 alleged detention”:

27 For instance, some Border Patrol agents were wearing plain clothes and 28 some were wearing uniform. E.g., compare Mendez Decl. ¶ 6 stating that the Border Patrol agents were wearing plain clothing with Gutierrez Decl.,

¶ 4, which states the Border patrol agent was wearing a vest that said “POLICE.” Another example is that some of the individuals who were detained presented the Border Patrol agents with identification whereas some individuals did not. E.g., compare Mendez Decl. ¶ 9 (where Mendez states he did not present his identification) with Ramirez Decl. ¶ 7 (where Ramirez asserts the Border Patrol agent took his identification). Furthermore, some of the individuals were detained for several hours or days whereas other individuals were released at the site of the alleged detention. E.g., compare Ramirez Decl. ¶ 10 (where he asserts he was detained for seven or eight hours) with Martinez Decl. ¶ 10 (where Martinez states she was released after she presented her green card to the agents). [S]ome of the individuals who were detained allege that they were being detained for being in the United States without any legal status where at least one individual was told he was being detained because of a crime. Compare Cisneros Decl. ¶¶ 5-6 (where Cisneros asserts the agent stated the agent arrested him after telling him that he was in the United States illegally) with Gutierrez Decl., ¶ 9 (where Gutierrez states the agent detained him for “alien smuggling”). Similarly, some of the individuals were stopped while driving in a vehicle while other individuals were stopped while at a Home Depot. Compare Cisneros Decl., ¶ 5-6 (where he states he was stopped while in a vehicle) with Esquivel Decl., ¶¶ 4-5 (where he states he was stopped at a Home Depot).

(Id. at 19-20.) Defendants contend this shows a “lack of commonality between the investigative stops,” and “undermine[s] Plaintiffs’ claim that USBP engaged in a pattern or practice of unlawful stops.” (Id. at 20, citing Wal-Mart, 546 U.S. at 348.) Defendants argue the class members will also have “widely varying” personal facts that “are important to the flight risk determination,” such as “familial ties, employment status, and other community connections.” (Id. at 20-21.) They argue these differences “defeat[] class certification.” (Id. at 21.) Ultimately, Defendants maintain the two classes “encompass a broad range of individuals with differing unique set of circumstances as bases for their claims.” (Id.)

Defendants’ reliance upon Falcon to show the proposed classes “lack commonality” is misplaced. Falcon filed suit against his employer and sought to represent a class of similarly situated individuals who suffered discrimination by the employer. The Supreme Court considered whether Falcon, “who complained that petitioner did not promote him because he is a Mexican-American, was properly permitted to maintain a class action on behalf of Mexican-American applicants for employment whom petitioner did not hire.” Id., 457 U.S. at 149. The district court found the employer “had not discriminated against [Falcon] in hiring, but that it did discriminate against him in its promotion practices.” Id. at 152. The Supreme Court noted it “repeatedly held that a class representative must be part of the class and possess the same interest and suffer the same injury as the 1 class members.” Id. (quotation marks, citation omitted). The Court observed also:

2 Conceptually, there is a wide gap between (a) an individual’s claim that he 3 has been denied a promotion on discriminatory grounds, and his otherwise 4 unsupported allegation that the company has a policy of discrimination, 5 and (b) the existence of a class of persons who have suffered the same 6 injury as that individual, such that the individual’s claim and the class claims will share common questions of law or fact and that the individual’s claim will be typical of the class claims. For [Falcon] to bridge that gap, he must prove much more than the validity of his own claim.

7 Id. at 157. The Court explained that although Falcon presented evidence of discrimination when he 8 was passed over for a promotion, such evidence did “not necessarily justify ... additional inferences,” 9 including that discriminatory treatment was typical of the employer’s “promotion practices,” or that 10 discrimination was “reflected in ... other employment practices, such as hiring, in the same way it is 11 manifested in the promotion practices.” Id. at 158. The Supreme Court concluded, “The District 12 Court’s error in [the] case... is the failure to evaluate carefully the legitimacy of the named plaintiffs’ 13 plea that he is a proper class representative under Rule 23(a).” Id. at 160. Therefore, the Supreme 14 Court remanded the action for further proceedings. Id. at 161.

15 The matter now pending before the Court is distinguishable from Falcon. That action involved 16 only one plaintiff who had a claim for discrimination in promotion practices but sought to represent a 17 class who suffered discrimination in hiring practices. Falcon was not a proper class representative for 18 such a class, because he was not even a member of the class. In contrast, here, Individual Plaintiffs are 19 members of the two proposed classes. Plaintiffs do not rely only on evidence of their own claims—in 20 contrast to Falcon—but instead present additional anecdotal evidence regarding the experiences of 21 putative class members during “Operation Return to Sender.” Nevertheless, the Court must determine 22 whether Plaintiffs carry the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that each proposed 23 class has a common question of law or fact. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(2); Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 350; 24 Wolff, 77 F.4th at 174. Anecdotal evidence from class members that bridges the gap between the 25 claims of the representatives and the claims of the class members may constitute a sufficient form of 26 proof. Wal-Mart, 564 U.S. at 358.

27 1. Suspicionless Stop Class

28 Plaintiffs contend, “Except at the border and its functional equivalents, the Fourth Amendment

1 prohibits Defendants from conducting a detentive stop to investigate a person’s immigration status 2 without reasonable suspicion that a person is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States.” (Doc. 1 at 3 68, ¶ 341.) Plaintiffs allege that “Defendants have a policy, pattern, and/or practice of traveling outside 4 the border and its functional equivalents and stopping individuals without regard to reasonable 5 suspicion that they are unlawfully in the United States.” (Id., ¶ 343.) Morales Cisneros, Munguia 6 Esquivel, and Aguilera Martinez—the three proposed class representatives—assert they were stopped 7 “without reasonable suspicion that any of them was a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States.” (Id., 8 ¶ 342.) Plaintiffs identify putative class members who they assert suffered violations of their Fourth 9 Amendment rights. (See id.) Plaintiffs explain that “[t]he Suspicionless Stop Class does not challenge 10 whether every stop was justified by reasonable suspicion, but rather whether Defendants’ practice of 11 conducting stops without conducting any individualized assessment of reasonable suspicion violates the 12 law.” (Doc. 37 at 7 [emphasis in original].)

13 Plaintiffs assert the following are “common questions of law and fact” for the proposed 14 Suspicionless Stop Class:

- 15 • Whether Border Patrol has a pattern or practice of conducting stops 16 without regard to whether reasonable suspicion exists that the person 17 (1) is engaged in an offense against the United States or (2) is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States; and
- 18 • Whether Border Patrol’s pattern or practice of conducting stops 19 without regard to whether reasonable suspicion exists that the person 20 (1) is engaged in an offense against the United States or (2) is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States violates the Fourth Amendment.

21 (Doc. 14-1 at 18.) The first question identified goes to the burden associated with the pending motion.
 22 See Ellis, 657 F.3d at 983 (“If there is no evidence that the entire class was subject to the same 23 [unlawful] practice, there is no question common to the class”); see also Black Lives Matter L.A. v.
 24 City of Los Angeles, 113 F.4th 1249, 1264 (9th Cir. 2024) (“plaintiffs cannot simply allege that a 25 policy applies class-wide—they have to present evidence that it does”); Gonzalez v. Millard Mall 26 Service, Inc., 281 F.R.D. 455, 462 (N.D. Cal. 2012) (observing courts have denied class certification 27 where “a plaintiff failed to show common proof” of a practice). Thus, the Court must determine 28 whether Plaintiffs have shown by a preponderance of the evidence that Border Patrol had a “pattern or 1 practice” of conducting detective stops without reasonable suspicion.

2 Proposed class representative Wilder Munguia Esquivel reports that he was standing with a 3 group of day laborers outside Home Depot when several unmarked vehicles arrived, and agents 4 “aggressively swarmed” around the day laborers. (Doc. 15-10 at 2, ¶¶ 4-5.) Munguia Esquivel states 5 the agents “did not seem to be targeting specific individuals,” but demanded “papers” from the group.
6 (Id., ¶ 4.) He states that an agent directly asked him in Spanish: “Do you have papers? Do you have 7 identification? Where are you from?” (Id., ¶ 5.) When Munguia Esquivel did not respond, the agents 8 “kept yelling ... louder and louder,” asking if Munguia Esquivel had papers and where he was from.
9 (Id.) When he did not respond and attempted to walk away, the agent followed and then ordered him 10 to “turn around” to be handcuffed. (Id.) Munguia Esquivel believes the agent who arrested him did 11 not know who he was, and that they were “targeted at Home Depot because many day laborers gather 12 to get work there. (Id., ¶ 10.)

13 Putative class members Jesus Ramirez and Luis Perez Cruz—who were also detained by 14 Border Patrol agents in the parking lot of Home Depot—echo the claims of Munguia Esquivel. (See 15 Doc. 15-5 at 2, Ramirez Decl. ¶ 3; Doc. 15-7 at 2, Perez Cruz Decl. ¶ 3.) Ramirez asserts that he “was 16 not doing anything unlawful” when the agents arrived and surrounded the group of day laborers.
17 (Doc. 15-5 at 2, ¶ 4.) Ramirez also asserts the Border Patrol agents demanded they show “papers,” 18 and Ramirez pulled out his identification from his wallet. (Id., ¶ 5.) Ramirez reports the agent took 19 his identification and believes “[i]t was clear ... the agents did not know who [he] was.” (Id., ¶¶ 5-6.)
20 Perez Cruz reports that he was talking to his cousins in the Home Depot parking lot when two agents 21 walked up to them, said they were from Border Patrol, and directed the group “to show ... IDs saying 22 that [they] were in the United States legally or had permits to be here.” (Doc. 15-7 at 2, ¶ 3.) Perez 23 Cruz also believes the agents “did not appear to have any idea who [he] was before they demanded 24 [his] ID.” (Id., ¶ 4.)

25 Yolanda Aguilera Martinez, a proposed class representative, reports she was driving in her car 26 when she “saw two vehicles pulled over to the right side of the road and three men standing near the 27 vehicles.” (Doc. 15-11 at 2, Aguilera Martinez Decl. ¶ 4.) She states that one of the men “raised his 28 hand to flag [her] down and signaled for [her] to pull over,” which she did. (Id.) Aguilera Martinez

1 reports that she “was not speeding,” and her car’s registration and license plate were current. (Id.)
2 She asserts the Border Patrol agent who approached her vehicle “did not seem to know who [she] 3 was,” and said, “I need to see your papers.” (Id., ¶ 6.)

4 Named plaintiffs, and putative class members, Juan Vargas Mendez and Maria Guadalupe 5 Hernandez Espinoza each report they were passengers in vehicles that Border Patrol stopped while 6 they were driving home after work. Like Aguilera Martinez, they report the drivers of the vehicles 7 were not speeding or breaking traffic laws. (Doc. 15-6 at 2, Vargas Mendez Decl. ¶ 4; Doc. 15-8 at 2, 8 Hernandez Espinoza Decl. ¶ 4.) Hernandez Espinoza states her partner was driving his vehicle and 9 “not breaking any traffic laws” when Border Patrol pulled them over. (Doc. 15-8 at 2, ¶ 4.) She 10 reports agents approached the car and directed the occupants to get out. (Id., ¶¶ 5-6.) Hernandez 11 Espinoza reports, “The agents asked us for our IDs, if we had papers, and if we were here legally. I 12 did not answer their questions, and I did not produce an ID because I was not carrying one with me.
13 The agents did not explain why they had pulled us over.” (Id. at 3, ¶ 7.) Similarly, Vargas Mendez 14 reports he was a passenger in a van that Border Patrol stopped. (Doc. 15-6 at 2, ¶ 4.) He reports that 15 when he heard sirens, he “looked at the speedometer and saw [they] were driving under 40 miles an 16 hour, well below the speed limit.” (Id., ¶ 5.) Vargas Mendez states agents opened the van door, and 17 “shouted in Spanish that [they] needed to show him [their] IDs, and warned [the passengers] had better 18 ‘tell the truth.’” (Id., ¶ 8.) Vargas Mendez states he did not produce identification because he was not 19 carrying it, and the agents “dragged” him out of the van and handcuffed him. (Id., ¶¶ 9-10.)

20 Ernesto Campos Gutierrez was driving his truck—with a passenger in the front seat—and 21 towing a mini trailer with gardening equipment when Border Patrol stopped him on January 8, 2025.
22 (Doc. 15-4 at 3, ¶ 3.) He reports he was driving the speed limit and his truck “had current license 23 plates and registration, and had no stickers or decals.” (Id.) Campos Gutierrez pulled over when 24 directed, and a Border Patrol agent asked for his identification through the window, which remained 25 closed. (Id., ¶ 4.) Campos Gutierrez heard the agent tell another person that that he “had two bodies” 26 before Campos Gutierrez lowered the window and provided his REAL ID driver’s license. (Id.)

27 UFW members also reported being pulled over in a vehicle “traveling within the speed limit 28 and obeying traffic laws.” (Doc. 15-3 at 8, ¶ 26.) Alicia, Benjamin, and Carlos passed Border Patrol

1 vehicles that were parked on the shoulder of a road, after which Border Patrol left the shoulder and 2 signaled for them to pull over. (Id., ¶¶ 26-27.) Agents “approached the car and asked Alicia, 3 Benjamin, and Carlos if they had ‘papers.’” (Id. at 9, ¶ 27.) They believe that “[t]he agents did not 4 appear to know who was in the car, and did not appear to have any reason for pulling the car over,
5 other than to ask for ‘papers.’” (Id.)

6 Oscar Morales Cisneros, also one of the three proposed representatives, reports that while in his 7 truck outside a liquor store “located in a predominantly Latino-populated neighborhood,” Border Patrol 8 agents pulled behind his vehicle—which had current registration and no stickers or decals on it—and 9 blocked him in. (Doc. 15-9 at 2, ¶ 4.) The agents approached his truck and asked if he “had papers and 10 was here legally.” (Id., ¶ 5.) He did not answer the questions but provided his driver’s license when 11 asked. (Id.) After the agents arrested Morales Cisneros, they drove around Bakersfield. (Id. at 3, ¶ 7.)
12 He reports that at one point, the agents stopped at a gas station where they “pulled up behind a vehicle 13 to block it in,” as they had done to him, and spoke to a person in the vehicle. (Id.) Morales Cisneros 14 heard an agent say “We’re doing our job” before they let the unidentified person go. (Id.)

15 Plaintiffs provide news articles regarding the Operation, which include statements by Sara 16 Fuentes. (Doc. 15-2 at 68, 98.) Fuentes is not a putative class member, but she witnessed Border 17 Patrol agents in action during the Operation, as manager of a gas station where Border Patrol agents 18 detained the station’s customers. (Id.) She saw agents arrive in civilian clothes and unmarked 19 vehicles. (Id. at 98.) At first, Fuentes thought the agents were serving a warrant, but then she noticed 20 “it was only Hispanics and field workers that they were putting aside.” (Id. at 68.) Fuentes saw that 21 the agents “didn’t stop people with FedEx uniforms, they were stopping people who looked like they 22 worked in the fields.” (Id. at 98.) Fuentes witnessed the agents approach customers, ask about their 23 immigration status, and arrest individuals. (Id.; see also id. at 7, ¶ 17.) Fuentes saw Border Patrol 24 agents parked behind a woman’s car to block her in, but the agents “allowed the woman to leave” 25 when a local news entity arrived at the gas station. (Id.; see also id. at 69.)

26 Plaintiffs and putative class members report facts indicating they were engaged in ordinary 27 activities—such as talking with family members and others or driving home from work in vehicles that 28 were not violating traffic laws—when Border Patrol stopped them, demanded their “papers” and

1 questioned them about whether they were in the country legally. Collectively, Plaintiffs present 2 evidence that is “more likely than not” Border Patrol agents engaged in a practice of performing 3 detentive stops without knowledge of who they were stopping, and without reasonable suspicion to 4 perform the stop. Although Defendants contend there were “various facts and circumstances 5 concerning each detention” (Doc. 32 at 19), the circumstances identified by Defendants constitute a 6 distinction without a difference. Whether Border Patrol agents wore uniforms or plain clothes does not 7 change whether the agents had reasonable suspicion to perform the stops. Whether a person handed 8 over identification while being detained does not address whether the Border Patrol agents engaged in 9 a practice of performing stops without reasonable suspicion. Ultimately, there is no substantive 10 conflict in the evidence regarding the alleged practice.

11 With the anecdotal evidence—from named Plaintiffs, putative class members, and a third 12 party—Plaintiffs have met their burden of establishing by a preponderance of the evidence that putative 13 class members “suffered the same injury” imposed by Border Patrol, which engaged in a practice of 14 performing detentive stops without individualized assessments of reasonable suspicion during 15 “Operation Return to Sender.” Furthermore, whether the practice violated the rights of the class 16 members under the Fourth Amendment is a question that “can be answered ‘yes’ or ‘no’ in one stroke 17 as to the entire class.” See Parsons, 754 F.3d at 684; see also Kidd, 343 F.R.D. at 438-439 (finding the 18 commonality requirement was satisfied where the plaintiffs challenged practices of ICE in conducting 19 home arrests, noting “[t]hese practices and policies affect all putative class members because the 20 classes themselves are defined as those who have experienced or will experience the effects of these 21 practices and policies”). Therefore, the Court finds Plaintiffs have satisfied the commonality 22 requirement for the Suspicionless Stop Class.

23 2. Warrantless Arrest Class

24 Plaintiffs contend that Defendants had a “policy, pattern, and/or practice of using warrantless 25 arrests during sweeps of areas where people of Latino descent, farm workers, and day laborers live, 26 work, drive, and gather.” (Doc. 1 at 65, ¶ 328.) According to Plaintiffs, “Defendants’ policy, pattern, 27 and/or practice of making warrantless arrests without the required individualized flight risk analysis is 28 ‘final agency action’ that is ‘in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations’ under 8 U.S.C.

§ 1357(a)(2) ... [and] 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii).” (Id. at 66-67, ¶¶ 331, 338.) Specifically, 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) provides that an immigration officer has the power, without a warrant:

to arrest any alien who in his presence or view is entering or attempting to enter the United States in violation of any law or regulation made in pursuance of law regulating the admission, exclusion, expulsion, or removal of aliens, or to arrest any alien in the United States, if he has reason to believe that the alien so arrested is in the United States in violation of any such law or regulation and is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for his arrest... .

Id. Similarly, 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii) indicates that an immigration officer “shall” obtain a warrant of arrest “except when the designated immigration officer has reason to believe that the person is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained.” Id.

Plaintiffs assert the following are “the common questions of law and fact” for the proposed Warrantless Arrest Class:

- Whether Border Patrol has a pattern or practice of conducting warrantless arrests without probable cause that an individual is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for the arrest;
- Whether Border Patrol’s pattern or practice of conducting warrantless arrests without probable cause that an individual is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for the arrest violates 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2); and
- Whether Border Patrol’s pattern or practice of conducting warrantless arrests without probable cause that an individual is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for the arrest violates 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(C)(2)(ii).

(Doc. 14-1 at 18.) Again, the first question identified by Plaintiffs implicates their burden associated with the pending motion. See Ellis, 657 F.3d at 983; Black Lives Matter L.A., 113 F.4th at 1264. Consequently, the Court must evaluate whether Plaintiffs demonstrate by a preponderance of the evidence that Border Patrol had a pattern or practice of conducting warrantless arrests without probable cause that an individual is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained. Put another way, Plaintiffs must present evidence Defendants had a pattern or practice of not performing flight risk assessments to find probable cause prior to their arrests without a warrant. See Mountain High Knitting, Inc. v. Reno, 51 F.3d 216, 218 (9th Cir. 1995) (holding that an arrest under § 1357(a)(2) requires an individualized determination of flight risk).

The three proposed class representatives report they were placed under arrest, without a warrant,

1 and without Border Patrol agents asking any information to assess their flight risk. (Doc. 15-9 at 3, 2 Morales Cisneros Decl. ¶ 6; Doc. 15-10 at 2-3, Munguia Esquivel Decl. ¶¶ 6-8; Doc. 15-11 at 3, 3 Aguilera Martinez Decl. ¶ 8.) Morales Cisneros reports the agents told his daughter that he “was 4 detained by Border Patrol for being here illegally without documents.” (Doc. 15-9 at 3, ¶ 6.) He states, 5 “[Agents] did not ask about my ties to the community, such as my family members, my work history, 6 or how long I have lived in the neighborhood.” (Id.) Munguia Esquivel also asserts the Border Patrol 7 agent did not “ask me about my community ties, such as my family, work history, or how long I have 8 been living here.” (Doc. 15-10 at 3, ¶ 8.) Likewise, Aguilera Martinez reports, “The agent never asked 9 me about my community ties to Kern County, like how long I have lived and worked here and all the 10 family members I have who live here.” (Doc. 15-11 at 3, ¶ 8.)

11 Elizabeth Strater reports that when UFW Members Alicia, Benjamin, and Carlos were arrested, 12 Border Patrol agents asked for their “papers” and “did not present a warrant for arrest ... [or] ask any 13 further questions.” (Doc. 15-3 at 9, Strater Decl. ¶ 28.) Strater reports, “After they had handcuffed 14 [Alicia], the agents asked Alicia if she had family. When she told them she had children, an agent 15 ‘offered’ to go pick up the children so they could all be taken to Mexico together. The men did not 16 ask Benjamin or Carlos about their ties to the community or otherwise conduct an assessment of flight 17 risk.” (Id.) Strater also reports that when UFW Member Fernando was arrested, “The agents did not 18 present a warrant for arrest or ask Fernando anything about his family, community ties, employment, 19 or other factors related to his likelihood of flight risk.” (Id. at 12, ¶ 41.)

20 The other putative class members uniformly report that Border Patrol agents arrested them 21 without warrants and without asking any questions to assess their individual flight risk. (Doc. 15-6 at 22 3, Vargas Mendez Decl. ¶ 10 [“They did not show us any warrants. They never asked about my 23 community ties to Kern County, such as how long I had lived there, my family, or my employment.”]; 24 Doc. 15-7 at 2, Perez Cruz Decl. ¶ 4 [“None of the agents asked me anything about my family, 25 community ties, work, or life in Bakersfield. The agents did not present me with a warrant of any kind 26 and did not appear to have any idea who I was before they demanded by ID.”]; Doc. 15-8 at 3, 27 Hernandez Espinoza Decl. ¶ 7 [“The agents never asked me questions about my community ties, such 28 as the many years I lived here, my work history, or my children and grandson.”]; Doc. 15-5 at 2, 1 Ramirez Decl. ¶¶ 6-7 [reporting the agent did not have a warrant and “[t]he agent did not ask me any 2 questions about my family or ties to the community. If he had asked, I would have told him I have 3 family in Bakersfield and elsewhere in California. I would have told him my children live in 4 California, and my son is still a minor.”].)

5 Even when information regarding family and community ties was volunteered to Border Patrol 6 agents following arrests of putative class members, the agents expressly disregarded it. For example, 7 Munguia Esquivel reports that his family members spoke to Border Patrol when they came to get his 8 truck and said Munguia Esquivel “was in the process of regularizing [his] immigration status.” (Doc.
9 15-10 at 3, ¶ 9.) He states, “The agents did not care and said they were taking me anyway.” (Id.) 10 Similarly, Vargas Mendez reports what while in the Border Patrol vehicle after his arrest: “I told [an 11 agent] I have lived in the area for 20 years; I have a wife and four kids who are all citizens; I have no 12 criminal record.” (Doc. 15-6 at 3, ¶ 11.) The agent “responded he did not care and that [Vargas 13 Mendez] was ‘going to Mexico.’” (Id.)

14 Although Defendants contend “the determination[s] of whether an alien is a flight risk ... are 15 inherently individualized determinations” (Doc. 32 at 20), this argument misses the mark. Plaintiffs do 16 not contend Border Patrol erred in assessing flight risks; they contend that the probable cause 17 determinations were not performed at all. (See Doc. 1 at 65-76; Doc. 37 at 7.) Towards this end, 18 Defendants’ assertions regarding the differences in circumstances, including the length of detentions by 19 Border Patrol, are unavailing.

20 Plaintiffs present evidence regarding 11 arrests during “Operation Return to Sender”— 21 including the arrests of proposed class members and putative class members— where the individuals 22 report Border Patrol arrested them without performing an assessment of whether the individuals were 23 likely to escape before a warrant could be obtained. This number is not insignificant given the fact 24 that Border Patrol reported a total of 78 arrests during the Operation. (Doc. 38-1 at 5-6, see also Doc.
25 15-2 at 72.) Indeed, the Supreme Court has held that anecdotal evidence that included “roughly one 26 account for every eight members of the class” was a “significant” support for a “pattern and practice” 27 claim. See Wal-Mart, 56 U.S. at 358 (comparing the evidence before the Court in Wal-Mart with the 28 evidence presented in Teamsters v. United States, 431 U.S. 324 (1977)). Because Plaintiffs present

1 significant anecdotal evidence—comparable to the amount presented in Teamsters—Plaintiffs have 2 met their burden of establishing that the class members suffered “the same injury” from the alleged 3 Border Patrol practice. Whether this practice was unlawful or violated the class members’ rights may 4 be answered at one time. Therefore, the commonality requirement is satisfied for the Warrantless 5 Arrest Class.

6 C. Typicality

7 This requirement demands that the “claims or defenses of the representative parties are typical 8 of the claims or defenses of the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(3). Typicality ensures “the interest[s] of 9 the named representative align[] with the interests of the class.” Torres v. Mercer Canyons Inc., 835 10 F.3d 1125, 1141 (9th Cir. 2016) (citation omitted). A claim or defense is not required to be identical, 11 but rather “reasonably coextensive” with those of the absent class members. Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 12 1020. “The test of typicality is whether other members have the same or similar injury, whether the 13 action is based on conduct which is not unique to the named plaintiffs, and whether other class 14 members have been injured by the same course of conduct.” Hanon v. Dataproducts Corp., 976 F.2d 15 497, 508 (9th Cir. 1992) (internal quotation marks, citation omitted); see also Torres, 835 F.3d at 1020 16 (identifying the same as “[m]easures of typicality”).

17 Individual Plaintiffs contend their claims “are typical of those of the members of the Proposed 18 Classes, because they all arise from Border Patrol’s illegal immigration policies, practices, or patterns 19 pertaining to suspicionless stops and warrantless arrests in this District.” (Doc. 14-1 at 19.) Plaintiffs 20 assert the immigration policies and practices they challenge “are ‘not unique’ to the Individual 21 Plaintiffs.” (Id., quoting Parsons v. Ryan, 754 F.3d 657, 685 (9th Cir. 2014).) They indicate that “[a]ll 22 members of the Proposed Classes they seek to represent have been, or will be, injured by the same 23 course of conduct.” (Id., internal quotation marks omitted.) Plaintiffs argue, “The fact that some 24 putative class members experienced different outcomes flowing from Border Patrol’s unlawful actions 25 because of their differing immigration status does not defeat typicality because all class members have 26 suffered, or will suffer, the same harms.” (Id. [emphasis in original].)

27 Defendants argue Plaintiffs do not show “the claims of the proposed class representatives or 28 other named Plaintiffs are typical of the members of the Proposed Classes.” (Doc. 32 at 22.)

1 Defendants contend there are “wildly differing underlying factual circumstances necessary to the 2 determination of probable cause and flight risk” for the putative class members. (Id.) For example, 3 Defendants observe:

4 [A]ll three proposed class representatives provided the agents with their 5 identification. See Cisneros Decl. at ¶ 5, Esquivel Decl. at ¶¶ 7-9, Martinez 6 Decl. at ¶¶ 6, 12. In contrast, the other Plaintiffs did not provide their 7 identification to the agents. Mendez Decl. at ¶ 9, Espinoza Decl. at ¶ 7.

8 (Id.) According to Defendants, “This alone shows that the proposed putative class representatives’ 9 claims or defenses cannot be typical of the members of the Proposed Classes.” (Id.) Defendants also 10 argue individualized assessments are necessary for the Court to determine “whether class members 11 have the same or similar injury: unlawful stop and arrest.” (Id. at 22 [emphasis omitted].) Defendants 12 contend that “a flight risk determination may include factors such as whether individuals are eligible 13 for relief from removal, have criminal convictions which bar them from relief, or have final removal 14 orders or have been previously removed, in addition to the circumstances of their warrantless arrests.”
15 (Id. at 22-23.) Defendants conclude, “Because these individualized circumstances are relevant to a 16 court’s consideration of whether class members share similar injury—because they are necessary to 17 the probable cause and flight risk analysis—Plaintiffs proposed putative classes fail to meet the 18 typicality requirement.” (Id. at 23.)

19 Once again, Plaintiffs are not asserting Border Patrol made incorrect reasonable suspicion 20 findings or incorrectly considered factors related to flight risk. Plaintiffs are asserting that Border 21 Patrol agents did not make reasonable suspicion determinations related to the detentive stops and did 22 not make flight risk assessments before effecting the warrantless arrests. Factual differences related to 23 the circumstances of the detentive stops and arrests—such as whether the proposed class 24 representatives and putative class members provided agents with identification—do not preclude a 25 finding of typicality, because the proposed representatives and putative class members were subjected 26 to the same practices of Border Patrol. See Boley v. Universal Health Servs., 36 F.4th 124, 134 (3rd 27 Cir. 2022) (explaining that “even relatively pronounced factual differences will generally not preclude a 28 finding of typicality” when the “cause of the injury remains the same”).

The evidence shows the proposed class representatives were subjected to the same practices of 1 Border Patrol as the putative class members and suffered the same injuries: detentive stops without 2 reasonable suspicion and arrests without the agents performing individual assessments of flight risk to 3 find probable cause to find they were likely to escape before a warrant could be obtained. Because the 4 class representatives were subject to the same practices, their claims are typical of the putative class 5 members. See Hanon, 976 F.2d at 508; see also Torres, 835 F.3d at 1020. Therefore, Plaintiffs have 6 met their burden of satisfying the typicality requirement for both the Suspicionless Stop and 7 Warrantless Arrest Classes.

8 D. Adequacy of Representation

9 Absentee class members must be adequately represented for judgment to be binding upon them.
 10 Hansberry v. Lee, 311 U.S. 32, 42-43 (1940). This prerequisite is satisfied if the representative party 11 “will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(a)(4). The Supreme 12 Court explained, “The adequacy inquiry under Rule 23(a)(4) serves to uncover conflicts of interest 13 between named parties and the class they seek to represent.” Amchem, 521 U.S. at 625. Resolution of 14 the adequacy issue requires the Court to address two questions: “(1) do the named plaintiffs and their 15 counsel have any conflicts of interest with other class members and (2) will the named plaintiffs and 16 their counsel prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of the class?” Kim v. Allison, 87 F.4th 994, 17 1000 (9th Cir. 2023) (quoting Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1020).

18 1. Proposed class representatives

19 Plaintiffs seek the appointment of Oscar Morales Cisneros, Wilder Munguia Esquivel, and 20 Yolanda Aguilera Martinez as the class representatives for both the Suspicionless Stop and 21 Warrantless Arrest Classes. (Doc. 14-11 at 8.) Defendants argue that “the named plaintiffs are not 22 shown to be adequate representatives.” (Doc. 32 at 23 [emphasis omitted].) Defendants contend that 23 “[t]he three proposed class representatives and other named Plaintiffs here will fail to fairly and 24 adequately protect the class interests because, like the discussion in the commonality and typicality 25 requirements, the Proposed Classes encompass a broad range of individuals with different factual 26 bases for their claims, different avenues of possible relief, etc.” (Id.) This assertion ignores the proper 27 test for evaluating adequacy. See Kim, 87 F.4th at 1000. Moreover, as discussed above, the proposed 28 class representatives were subjected to the same Border Patrol practices and suffered the same injuries

1 as the putative class members, and different circumstances regarding their detentive stops and arrests 2 do not defeat certification.

3 There is no evidence that Morales Cisneros, Munguia Esquivel, or Aguilera Martinez have any 4 conflict of interests with the two proposed classes. To the contrary, their interests are aligned with 5 those of putative class members: to obtain declaratory and injunctive relief. Morales Cisneros, 6 Munguia Esquivel, and Aguilera Martinez all attest to their understanding that as class representatives, 7 they “represent the interests of everyone in the class,” not only themselves. (Doc. 15-9 at 6, Morales
8 Cisneros Decl. ¶ 23; Doc. 15-10 at 6, Munguia Esquivel Decl. ¶ 21; Doc. 15-11 at 15, Aguilera 9 Martinez Decl. ¶ 15.) Each also states: “I am committed to being a class representative because I do 10 not want other people in the community to be harmed by Border Patrol’s unlawful practices the way I 11 was.” (Id.) Morales Cisneros, Munguia Esquivel, and Aguilera Martinez commit to staying informed 12 regarding what is happening in this case, remaining in contact with counsel, and providing the 13 attorneys with “information they need.” (Id.) Thus, each committed to vigorously prosecuting the 14 action on behalf of the class. (See id.; see also Doc. 14-1 at 20.) Plaintiffs carry the burden to show 15 the proposed class representatives satisfy the adequacy requirement of Rule 23(a)(4). See Kim, 87 16 F.4th at 1000; Hanlon, 150 F.3d at 1020.

17 2. Proposed class counsel

18 Plaintiffs request the appointment of 12 attorneys as class counsel: (i) from the ACLU 19 Foundation of Northern California- Bree Bernwanger, Michelle (Minju) Y. Cho, Lauren Davis, and 20 Shilpi Agarwal; (ii) from the ACLU Foundation of Southern California- Mayra Joachin, Eva Bitran, 21 and Oliver Ma; (iii) from the ACLU Foundation of San Diego and Imperial Counties- Brisa Velazquez
22 Oatis; and (iv) from the law firm of Keker, Van Nest & Peters LLP- Ajay S. Krishnan, Franco Muzzio, 23 Zainab O. Ramahi, and Julia L. Greenberg. (See Doc. 1 at 69, ¶ 3; see also id. at 70-71.)

24 Plaintiffs assert the proposed class counsel satisfy the adequacy requirement, because they are 25 “experienced civil rights attorneys and practitioners in federal constitutional litigation, class actions, 26 and complex litigation involving immigrants’ rights.” (Doc. 14-1 at 20, citing Bernwanger Decl. ¶¶ 2, 27 4-13 [Doc. 14-3 at 2-9], Krishnan Decl. ¶¶ 3-5, 7-13 [Doc. 14-2 at 2-5].) Plaintiffs also assert “counsel 28 have adequately and thoroughly investigated the claims prior to bringing this suit, and they will

1 vigorously prosecute this action on behalf of the Proposed Classes.” (Id.) Defendants do not dispute 2 these assertions or argue that the proposed class counsel fail to satisfy the adequacy requirement. (See 3 generally Doc. 32 at 12-24.)

4 Bree Berwanger reports that she is a senior staff attorney at the ACLU Foundation of Northern 5 California (ACLUF-NC) and has “been involved in all aspects of this case.” (Doc. 14-3 at 2, ¶ 2.) She 6 states that the ACLUF-NC, the ACLU Foundation of Southern California (ACLUF-SC), the ACLU 7 Foundation of San Diego and Imperial Counties (ACLUF-SDIC) all “have extensive experience in 8 class litigation and immigrants’ rights litigation and, collectively, have served as lead counsel in dozens 9 of civil rights class actions, including before this Court.” (Id., ¶ 3.) Bernwanger notes that she 10 personally has “extensive experience litigating complex civil litigation to defend and advance the rights 11 of immigrants in the United States,” and with representing “noncitizen plaintiffs or petitioners in a 12 several non- class cases raising complex issues.” (Id., ¶¶ 5-6.) She also describes the litigation 13 experience and bar admission status for each of the identified attorneys from ACLUF-NC, ACLUF-SC, 14 and ACLUF-SDIC. (Id. at 4-9, ¶¶ 7-13.) Bernwanger reports that counsel intend to “zealously 15 represent the interests of the class to the best of [their] collective ability.” (Id. at 10, ¶ 14.) Finally, 16 Bernwanger reports that she is “not aware of any conflicts between ACLUF-NC, ACLUF-SC, ACLUF-17 SDIC, and any members of the potential class.” (Id., ¶ 16.)

18 Ajay Krishnan, from the law firm of Keker, Van Nest & Peters LLP, also provides a 19 declaration in support of the motion for provisional class certification. (Doc. 14-2.) He indicates the 20 law firm “has significant experience handling civil rights cases and litigation to vindicate the rights of 21 underserved populations.” (Id. at 2, ¶ 3.) Krishnan reports that “[i]n partnership with the American 22 Civil Liberties Union offices, [his] law firm has conducted extensive identification and investigation 23 of potential class claims, both prior and subsequent to filing the present action.” (Id. at 3, ¶ 5.)
24 Krishnan describes his personal litigation experience, as well as those of the other attorneys at the firm 25 who will be assisting on the matter. (Id. at 3-5, ¶¶ 7-13.) Krishnan reports that “Keker, Van Nest & 26 Peters has no conflict with the proposed class members that would compromise its ability to represent 27 the class.” (Id. at 3, ¶ 6.)

28 Based upon the declaratory evidence provided, proposed class counsel have significant

1 experience and are dedicated to vigorously prosecuting this action on behalf of the class. There are 2 also no known conflicts between proposed class counsel and class members that would preclude or 3 impede representation of the classes in this action. Accordingly, the Court finds the identified 4 attorneys satisfy the adequacy requirement.

5 E. Certification under Rule 23(b)(2)

6 Once the requirements of Rule 23(a) are satisfied, the Court must consider whether the class is 7 maintainable under one or more of the three alternatives set forth in Rule 23(b). Amchem Prods., 521
 8 U.S. at 614; Narouz v. Charter Communs., LLC, 591 F.3d 1261, 1266 (9th Cir. 2010). Plaintiffs assert 9 certification of the provisional classes is appropriate under Rule 23(b)(2), under which a class may be 10 maintained if “the party opposing the class has acted or refused to act on grounds that apply generally 11 to the class, so that final injunctive relief or corresponding declaratory relief is appropriate respecting 12 the class as a whole.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2). The Ninth Circuit observed that “the primary role” of 13 Rule 23(b)(2) “has always been the certification of civil rights class actions.” Parsons, 754 F.3d at 14 686; see also Multi-Ethnic Immigrant Workers Org. Network v. City of Los Angeles, 246 F.R.D. 621, 15 632 (C.D. Cal. 2007) (“[o]riginally designed for civil rights cases, Rule 23(b)(2) class actions are 16 limited to those class actions seeking primarily injunctive or corresponding relief”) (citation omitted).

17 Plaintiffs observe that under Rule 23(b)(2), certification is appropriate “when members of a 18 putative class seek uniform injunctive or declaratory relief from policies or practices that are generally 19 applicable to the class as a whole.” (Doc. 14-1 at 21, quoting Parsons, 754 F.3d at 688.) According to 20 Plaintiffs, the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes “are quintessential Rule 23(b)(2) 21 classes” for two reasons:

22 First, Border Patrol has acted on grounds generally applicable to each 23 class because they have subjected, or will subject, all members of the 24 Proposed Classes to the same unlawful policies or practices— namely, the 25 ways in which Border Patrol conducts suspicionless stops and warrantless 26 arrests. [Citation.] Second, the prospective forms of relief Plaintiffs request for each Proposed Class for the preliminary injunction are appropriate for each class as a whole, because they all target Border Patrol’s central and systemic failures.

27 (Id. at 21 [emphasis in original].) Therefore, Individual Plaintiffs request the Court provisionally 28 certify the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes under Rule 23(b)(2).

1 Defendants argue that “Plaintiffs cannot satisfy the requirements for an injunctive-relief class 2 under Rule 23(b)(2).” (Doc. 32 at 23 [emphasis omitted].) Defendants maintain that “[c]lasswide relief 3 would not be appropriate” because “each alien detained by USBP has a unique set of circumstances and 4 unique avenues for seeking relief.” (Id. at 24.) Defendants argue that “because there is no pattern and 5 practice of failure to comply with the Fourth Amendment’s probable cause requirements and 8 U.S.C. § 6 1357 flight risk assessment, Plaintiffs cannot show that the government has “acted or refused to act on 7 grounds that apply generally to the class.” (Id.) According to Defendants, “classwide relief is not 8 suitable for making Plaintiffs whole.” (Id.) The evidence contradicts Defendants’ assertions, because it 9 shows agents engaged in a “pattern and practice” of violating Fourth Amendment rights and failing to 10 perform flight risk assessments.

11 The Ninth Circuit observed that the inquiry under Rule 23(b)(2) “does not require an 12 examination of the viability or bases of the class members’ claims for relief, does not require that the 13 issues common to the class satisfy a Rule 23(b)(3)-like predominance test, and does not require a 14 finding that all members of the class have suffered identical injuries.” Parsons, 754 F.3d at 688
15 (citing Rodriguez v. Hayes, 591 F.3d 1105, 1125 (9th Cir. 2010)). The Court found that Rule 23(b)(2) 16 is “unquestionably satisfied” when “members of a putative class seek uniform injunctive or
18 ex rel. Tinsley v. Snyder, 922 F.3d 957, 971 (9th Cir. 2019). For example, the Court certified a class of 19 immigrant detainees under Rule 23(b)(2) because “relief from a single practice [was] requested by all 20 class members.” Rodriguez, 591 F.3d at 1126. Similarly, the Court found certification under Rule 21 23(b)(2) was appropriate in Parsons where the members of the putative class were exposed to 22 centralized “policies and practices” that violated their constitutional rights, even if the putative class 23 members were not all affected “in exactly the same way.” Id., 754 F.3d at 688.

24 As discussed above, Plaintiffs contend that Defendants’ practices of conducting detentive stops 25 without reasonable suspicion and warrantless arrests without flight risk assessments detrimentally 26 affected the named plaintiffs and putative class members, and they seek injunctive relief to enjoin these 27 practices. (See Doc. 1 at 70, Prayer ¶¶ 8-9.) Plaintiffs do not seek relief related to immigration relief or 28 removal proceedings on behalf of the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes. Instead, the 1 class-wide injuries relate to “the harm of being subjected to the unconstitutional or unlawful 2 practice[s].” (See Doc. 37 at 12.) Even if the class members were not all affected by Border Patrol 3 practices in the same manner—because some were not taken into custody following the detentive stops, 4 while others were arrested and then released—Plaintiffs identify Border Patrol’s practices that they 5 contend violated their constitutional rights. This is sufficient to satisfy Rule 23(b)(2), because relief 6 from these practices “is requested by all class members.” See Rodriguez, 591 F.3d at 1126; see also 7 Gonzalez, 975 F.3d at 812 (affirming certification under Rule 23(b)(2) because “a determination about 8 the lawfulness of [a] policy under the Fourth Amendment and corresponding injunctive or declaratory 9 relief would provide relief to the entire class”).

 11 Classes, because Defendants’ practices “apply generally to the class[es].” See Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(b)(2).
 12 Defendants’ assertions to the contrary are undermined by their argument that the “claims have been 13 resolved” because the El Centro Sector of Border Patrol issued its “Muster” with guidance on 14 reasonable suspicion, flight risk assessments, and documenting facts and circumstances on warrantless 15 arrests. (See Doc. 31 at 15; see also id. at 9.) In making this argument, Defendants implicitly 16 acknowledge that injunctive and declaratory relief can apply to the claims of the two proposed classes.
 17 The Court finds certification is appropriate under Rule 23(b)(2) for both the Suspicionless Stop Class 18 and the Warrantless Arrest Class. See Parsons, 754 F.3d at 688; Gonzalez, 975 F.3d at 812.

19 F. Appointment of Class Counsel

20 Pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, any “order that certifies a class action...must 21 appoint class counsel under Rule 23(g). Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(c)(1)(B). Under Rule 23(g), the Court is 22 directed to consider:

23 (i) the work counsel has done in identifying or investigating potential 24 claims in the action;

25 (ii) counsel’s experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and the types of claims asserted in the action;

26 (iii) counsel’s knowledge of the applicable law; and

28 Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g)(1)(A).

Based upon the information provided from Bree Bernwanger and Ajay Krishnan—and the evidence submitted with the pending matters—it is clear that proposed counsel engaged in significant investigation regarding the claims in this action, including identifying and investigating the circumstances of the detentive stops and arrests for not only the class representatives but also many class members. Proposed counsel describe extensive experience with class actions and complex litigation. (See Doc. 14-2 at 2-5, Krishnan Decl. ¶¶ 3-4, 7-13; Doc. 14-3 at 2-9, Bernwanger Decl. ¶¶ 4-13.) Proposed counsel also exhibit the requisite knowledge of constitutional law and the relevant provisions of the INA. Finally, counsel have the necessary resources to represent the claims of the two classes and are committed to expending such resources on this matter. (See Doc. 14-2 at 3, Krishnan Decl. ¶ 5; Doc. 14-3 at 10, Bernwanger Decl. ¶ 14.) Accordingly, the factors identified under Rule 23(g) weigh in favor appointment of the proposed class counsel for the provisional classes.

V. Conclusion

Plaintiffs have met the burden to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes satisfy the requirements of Rule 23(a) and Rule 23(b)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Accordingly, class certification is appropriate, and the motion for provisional class certification is GRANTED.

MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Plaintiffs move for a preliminary injunction pursuant to Rule 65(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and Local Rule 231, seeking an order to ensure that Border Patrol agents comply with the Fourth Amendment and their statutory obligations when performing operations within the Eastern District. (See Doc. 15.)

I. Governing Legal Standards

“A preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy never awarded as of right.” Winter v. Natural Res. Def. Council, 555 U.S. 7, 24 (2008). In general, preliminary injunctions are intended to “merely to preserve the relative positions of the parties until a trial on the merits can be held, and to balance the equities at the litigation moves forward.” Lackey v. Stinnie, 604 U.S. --, 145 S.Ct. 659, 667 (2025) (citations omitted).

When seeking a preliminary injunction, plaintiffs must establish: (1) they are “likely to succeed on the merits” of their claims, (2) they are “likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of a preliminary injunction,” (3) “the balance of equities tips in [their] favor” and (4) “an injunction is in the public interest.” Winter, 555 U.S. at 20; see also Starbucks Corp. v. McKinney, 602 U.S. 339, 339-40 (2024) (reiterating the court must consider the Winter test with a request for a preliminary injunction). The moving party has the burden to “make a showing on all four prongs” of the Winter test to obtain a preliminary injunction. Alliance for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1135 (9th Cir. 2011). Thus, the moving party has “the burden of persuasion.” Mazurek v. Armstrong, 520 U.S. 968, 972 (1997); Hecox v. Little, 104 F.4th 1061, 1073 (9th Cir. 2023).

The Court may weigh the request for a preliminary injunction with a sliding-scale approach. Alliance for the Wild Rockies v. Cottrell, 632 F.3d 1127, 1135 (9th Cir. 2011); see also Flathead, 98 F.4th at 1190 (indicating the sliding scale test remains viable after Winter, and the district court did not err in applying it). Accordingly, a stronger showing on the balance of hardships may support the issuance of a preliminary injunction where there are “serious questions on the merits ... so long as the plaintiff also shows that there is a likelihood of irreparable injury and that the injunction is in the public interest.” Id.; see also Global Horizons, Inc. v. U.S. Dep’t of Labor, 510 F.3d 1054, 1057-58 (9th Cir. 2007) (explaining “the relationship between success on the merits and irreparable harm [is] a sliding scale in which the required degree of irreparable harm increases as the probability of success decreases,” but that “a moving party must, at an ‘irreducible minimum’ demonstrate some chance of success on the merits”).

II. Nature of the Requested Injunction

Preliminary injunctions may be mandatory or prohibitory. N.D. v. Reykdal, 102 F.4th 982, 992 (9th Cir. 2024). A mandatory injunction is one that orders a party to “take action,” while a prohibitory injunction is one that “restrains” a party from further action and “aims at simply maintaining the status quo.” N.D., 102 F.4th at 992; Meghrig v. KFC Western, Inc., 516 U.S. 479, 484 (1996). The Ninth Circuit observed that “courts should be extremely cautious about issuing a preliminary injunction” when the requested mandatory relief “goes well beyond maintaining the status quo.” Stanley v. University of S. Cal., 13 F.3d 1313, 1319 (9th Cir. 1994) (citation omitted). Thus, parties seeking a mandatory injunction must establish “the law and facts clearly favor [their] position, not simply that [they are] likely to succeed.” Garcia v. Google, Inc., 786 F.3d 733, 739 (9th Cir. 2015) (emphasis in original). Given the “heightened standard” upon a party seeking a mandatory injunction, the Court must first determine the nature of the preliminary injunction requested by Plaintiffs. See Master Tax LLC v. Ultimate Software Grp., 770 Fed. Appx. 386, 387 (9th Cir. 2019); see also Stanley, 13 F.3d at 1320 (indicating the Court’s “first task is to determine whether [the moving party] requested a prohibitory injunction or a mandatory injunction”).

In their prayer, Plaintiffs indicate they seek a preliminary injunction enjoining violations of the Suspicionless Stop Class’s rights under the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution and the Warrantless Arrest Class’s rights under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) and 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii). (Doc. 1 at 70, Prayer for Relief ¶¶ 8-9.) Plaintiffs now indicate:

Plaintiffs request a preliminary injunction to ensure that, when Border Patrol conducts operations in this District, it complies with its constitutional and legal duties to refrain from (1) detentive stops without reasonable suspicion that the person stopped is in the country unlawfully, and (2) warrantless arrests without regard to probable cause that the arrestee is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained.

(Doc. 15-1 at 8-9.) Thus, Plaintiffs request injunctive relief preventing Defendants from future violations of established constitutional and statutory rights. (Id.; Doc. 1 at 70, ¶¶ 8-9.) Notably, the Ninth Circuit determined that an injunction that “prevents future constitutional violations [is] a classic form of prohibitory injunction.” Hernandez v. Sessions, 872 F.3d 976, 998 (9th Cir. 2017); see also 42 Am. Jur. 2d Injunctions § 5 (2017) (“An injunction is considered prohibitory when the thing complained of results from present and continuing affirmative acts and the injunction merely orders the defendant to refrain from doing those acts”). Consequently, the Court finds the requested relief—which maintains the status quo—is prohibitory.

III. Discussion and Analysis

Plaintiffs seek to: (1) enjoin Border Patrol agents “from conducting detentive stops in this district unless there is reasonable suspicion that the person stopped is a noncitizen present within the United States in violation of U.S. immigration law, as required by the Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution”; (2) enjoin Border Patrol agents “from effecting warrantless arrests in this district unless there is probable cause that the noncitizen being arrested is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained, as required by 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2)”; (3) direct compliance with DHS’s “Broadcast Statement of Policy” when making warrantless arrests in this district, “including documenting the probable cause that underlies those arrests”; (4) direct agents to “document the facts and circumstances surrounding the stop in narrative form,” including the facts supporting reasonable suspicion for vehicle stops and stops on foot; (5) direct “Defendants to provide that reasonable suspicion and probable cause documentation to Plaintiffs’ counsel on a regular schedule”; (6) direct Defendants to develop “a directive setting forth guidance to Border Patrol agents concerning how they should determine whether ‘reasonable suspicion’ exists when conducting detentive stops, including vehicle stops, in this District”; and (7) direct training of “Border patrol agents who have performed or will perform ... operations in this District.” (See Doc. 15-1 at 2-3; Doc. 14-1 at 21-22.)

Defendants note that “on April 4, 2025, the El Centro Sector USBP issued a ‘Muster’ to all Sector employees that is in all material respects identical to the Broadcast...”. (Doc. 31 at 15, comparing Exh. A [Doc. 31-1 at 2-4] with Appendix A [Doc. 15-2 at 111-113].) Defendants argue that “Plaintiffs’ claims are moot in light of new guidance issued by USBP,” which Defendants contend provides “nearly all the relief Plaintiffs seek in their injunction.” (Id.) As a result, Defendants contend Plaintiffs are unable to show a likelihood of success on the merits (id. at 15-16) and “cannot demonstrate that they will be irreparable harmed absent a preliminary injunction.” (Id. at 17.)

A. Likelihood of Success on the Merits

This first factor “is the most important” under Winter, and “is especially important when a plaintiff alleges a constitutional violation and injury.” Baird v. Bonta, 81 F.4th 1036, 1041 (9th Cir. 2023); see also N.D., 102 F.4th at 992. Plaintiffs bring three claims on behalf of the Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class: (1) warrantless arrests without probable cause of flight risk in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2); (2) warrantless arrests without probable cause of flight risk in violation of 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(c)(2)(ii); and (3) stops without reasonable suspicion in violation of the Fourth Amendment. (Doc. 1 at 65-68.) Plaintiffs seeking a preliminary injunction need only show that success on the merits is likely for one claim, not all claims, to satisfy this requirement for injunctive relief. See Fin. Express LLC v. Nowcow Corp., 546 F. Supp. 2d 1160, 1169 (C.D. Cal. 2008). If a moving party fails to meet this “threshold inquiry,” the Court need not reach the other

1 factors. Baird, 81 F.4th at 1041; Disney Enters. v. VidAngel, Inc., 869 F.3d 848, 856 (9th Cir. 2017).

2 1. Unlawful detentive stops and arrests

3 The Fourth Amendment provides: “The right of the people to be secure in their persons...
4 against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but 5 upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing ... the persons or 6 things to be seized.” U.S. Constitution, amend. IV. A person is seized when an officer, “by means of 7 physical force or show of authority, terminates or restrains his freedom of movement,” Brendlin v.
8 California, 551 U.S. 249, 254 (2007), such that “a reasonable person would have believed that he was 9 not free to leave.” United States v. Mendenhall, 446 U.S. 544, 554 (1980). The Supreme Court 10 explained that a person’s liberty is restrained when “taking into account all of the circumstances 11 surrounding the encounter, the police conduct would ‘have communicated to a reasonable person that 12 he was not at liberty to ignore the police presence and go about his business.’” Florida v. Bostick, 501 13 U.S. 429, 437 (1991) (quoting Michigan v. Chesternut, 486 U.S. 567, 569 (1988)). There are 14 generally two kinds of seizures: investigative stops and arrests. Allen v. City of Portland, 73 F.3d 232, 15 235 (9th Cir. 1995).

16 An investigative stop occurs when a police officer detains a person for a limited duration to ask 17 questions. Terry v. Ohio, 392 U.S. 1, 27 (1968). To make such a stop, the officer must have reasonable 18 suspicion that the person is engaged in criminal activity. Id.; see also Navarette v. California, 572 U.S.
19 393, 396 (2014). To constitute reasonable suspicion, the officer’s belief that “criminal activity is afoot” 20 must be supported by “specific and articulable facts which, taken together with rational inferences from 21 those facts, reasonably warrant the intrusion.” Id. at 21, 30; see also Navarette, 572 U.S. at 396 (an 22 officer must have “a particularized and objective basis for suspecting the particular person stopped of 23 criminal activity”). An officer cannot rely only upon generalizations that “would cast suspicion on 24 large segments of the law abiding population.” United States v. Manzo-Jurado, 457 F.3d 928, 935 (9th 25 Cir. 2006). The Supreme Court has long held—about 50 years ago now—that these requirements apply 26 in the immigration context, when officers seek to enforce the INA. United States v. Brignoni-Ponce, 27 422 U.S. 873, 884 (1975) (“[T]he Fourth Amendment forbids stopping vehicles at random to inquire if 28 they are carrying aliens who are illegally in the country, it also forbids stopping or detaining persons for questioning about their citizenship on less than a reasonable suspicion that they may be aliens.”). Brignoni-Ponce held also that mere belief that a person is of Mexican descent, is sufficient to “justify neither a reasonable belief that they were aliens, nor a reasonable belief that the car concealed other aliens who were illegally in the country. Large numbers of native-born and naturalized citizens have the physical characteristics identified with Mexican ancestry, and even in the border area a relatively small proportion of them are aliens. [Footnote.] The likelihood that any given person of Mexican ancestry is an alien is high enough to make Mexican appearance a relevant factor, but standing alone it does not justify stopping all Mexican-Americans to ask if they are aliens.” Brignoni-Ponce at 886–887. The Ninth Circuit has held for 25 years that “Hispanic appearance is of little or no use in determining which particular individuals among the vast Hispanic populace should be stopped by law enforcement officials on the lookout for illegal aliens.” United States v. Montero-Camargo, 208 F.3d 1122, 1134 (9th Cir. 2000).

An arrest is a more significant intrusion on liberty than a detentive stop. To determine whether a seizure is an arrest, the Court examines whether a reasonable person under the circumstances would feel free to leave after questioning. Allen, 73 F.3d at 235 (citing United States v. Delgadillo-Velasquez, 856 F.2d 1292, 1295 (9th Cir. 1988)). “Under the Fourth Amendment, a warrantless arrest requires probable cause.” United States v. Lopez, 482 F.3d 1067, 1072 (9th Cir. 2007). Under this objective standard, “officers must have knowledge or reasonably trustworthy information sufficient to lead a person of reasonable caution to believe that an offense has been or is being committed by the person being arrested.” Id. (citation omitted). “[M]ere suspicion, common rumor, or even [a] strong reason to suspect” are insufficient to establish probable cause. Id. (quoting McKenzie v. Lamb, 738 F.2d 1005, 1008 (9th Cir. 1984).)

In the immigration context, 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(b)(2) also requires an immigration officer to have reasonable suspicion to perform a detentive stop:

If the immigration officer has a reasonable suspicion, based on specific articulable facts, that the person being questioned is, or is attempting to be, engaged in an offense against the United States or is an alien illegally in the United States, the immigration officer may briefly detain the person for questioning.

Id. The Ninth Circuit observed that 8 C.F.R. § 287.8(b) “was intended to reflect constitutional

1 restrictions on the ability of immigration officials” and, given the reasonable suspicion requirement, 2 offers “at least as much protection as the Fourth Amendment.” Perez Cruz v. Barr, 926 F.3d 1128, 3 1137 (9th Cir. 2019). If placing someone under arrest without a warrant, an immigration officer must 4 have probable cause that a person is “likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained for his arrest.”
 5 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2); Mountain High Knitting, Inc. v. Reno, 51 F.3d 216, 218 (9th Cir. 1995). Put 6 another way, a warrantless arrest requires an individualized assessment of the person’s flight risk. See 7 id.; see also Nava, 435 F. Supp. 3d at 891-92.

8 As discussed above, Plaintiffs’ anecdotal evidence establishes a pattern and practice of agents 9 performing detentive stops without reasonable suspicion in this District. In addition, the evidence 10 shows a pattern and practice of warrantless arrests without Border Patrol agents performing 11 individualized flight risk assessments to have probable cause for the arrest as required. This evidence 12 of the identified patterns and practices also shows a likelihood of success on the merits for the claims 13 of the Suspicionless Stop Class and Warrantless Arrest Class. See Zepeda v. United States
 14 Immigration & Naturalization Service, 753 F.2d 719, 727 (9th Cir. 1983) (finding the plaintiffs 15 “demonstrated probable success on the merits by providing evidence of a pattern of INS violations of 16 the fourth amendment” under the court’s prior test for preliminary injunctions).

17 2. Whether the matter is moot

18 Defendants do not challenge the sufficiency of Plaintiffs’ evidence to show a likelihood of 19 success on the merits. (See generally Doc. 31 at 11-17.) Instead, Defendants argue that Plaintiffs fail 20 to show a likelihood of success for three reasons: (1) the Court lacks jurisdiction under 8 U.S.C. §
 21 1252(a)(5) and (b)(9); (2) the Court lacks jurisdiction to issue a class-wide injunction pursuant to 8 22 U.S.C. § 1252(f)(1); and (3) the claims are moot. As discussed above, the jurisdictional arguments are 23 without merit. Accordingly, the Court turns to whether the matter is moot.

24 A case is rendered moot “when the issues presented are no longer ‘live’ or the parties lack a 25 legally cognizable interest in the outcome.” Already, LLC v. Nike, Inc., 568 U.S. 85, 91 (2013)
 26 (quoting Murphy v. Hunt, 455 U.S. 478, 481 (1982)). However, the Supreme Court has repeatedly 27 indicated that “a defendant cannot automatically moot a case simply by ending its unlawful conduct 28 once sued.” Id. (citing City of Mesquite v. Aladdin’s Castle, Inc., 455 U.S. 283, 289 (1982)); see also

1 Friends of the Earth, Inc. v. Laidlaw Envt'l. Services (TOC), Inc., 528 U.S. 167, 189 (2000) (“It is 2 well settled that a defendant’s voluntary cessation of a challenged practice does not deprive a federal 3 court of its power to determine the legality of the practice.”) (internal quotation marks omitted). The 4 Court explained that if voluntary cessation could simply render a matter moot, a defendant would be 5 free to “resum[e] ... the challenged conduct.” Knox v. Serv. Emps. Int’l Union, Local 1000, 567 U.S.
 6 298, 307 (2012).

7 The party asserting mootness has a “heavy burden of persuading the court that the challenged 8 conduct cannot reasonably be expected to start up again.” Fikre v. FBI, 904 F.3d 1033, 1037 (9th Cir.
 9 2018) (quoting Adarand Constructors, Inc. v. Slater, 528 U.S. 216, 222 (2000)). The Supreme Court 10 explained: “Voluntary cessation of challenged conduct moots a case ... only if it is absolutely clear 11 that the allegedly wrongful behavior could not reasonably be expected to recur.” Adarand, 528 U.S. at 12 222 (emphasis in original, citation omitted); see also Trinity Lutheran Church of Columbia, Inc. v.
 13 Comer, 582 U.S. 449, 457 n.1 (2017) (“voluntary cessation of a challenged practice does not moot a 14 case unless subsequent events make it absolutely clear that the allegedly wrongful behavior could not 15 reasonably be expected to recur”) (cleaned up).

16 When the government asserts mootness because of a policy change, the court will “presume 17 that it acts in good faith.” Fikre, 904 F.3d at 1033 (citing Am. Cargo Transp., Inc. v. United States, 18 625 F.3d 1176, 1180 (9th Cir. 2010)). Nevertheless, “the government must still demonstrate that the 19 change in its behavior is ‘entrenched’ or ‘permanent.’” Id. (quoting McCormack v. Herzog, 788 F.3d 20 1017, 1025 (9th Cir. 2015)); see also Rosebrock v. Mathis, 745 F.3d 963, 971 (9th Cir. 2014). The 21 Ninth Circuit determined that a government “policy change not reflected in statutory changes or even 22 in changes in ordinances or regulations will not necessarily render a case moot.” Rosebrock, 745 F.3d 23 at 971 (citation omitted, emphasis added). The Court indicated:

24 [M]ootness is more likely if (1) the policy change is evidenced by 25 language that is broad in scope and unequivocal in tone; (2) the policy 26 change fully addresses all of the objectionable measures that the 27 Government officials took against the plaintiffs in the case; (3) the case in 28 question was the catalyst for the agency’s adoption of the new policy; (4) the policy has been in place for a long time when we consider mootness; and (5) since the policy’s implementation the agency’s officials have not engaged in conduct similar to that challenged by the plaintiff.

1 Id. (cleaned up, citations omitted). On the other hand, the court is “less inclined to find mootness 2 where the ‘new policy ... could be easily abandoned or altered in the future.’” Id. (quoting Bell v. City 3 of Boise, 709 F.3d 890, 901 (9th Cir. 2013)).

4 Defendants argue the claims are moot based upon the Muster, which includes guidance on: (1) 5 “the requirement for reasonable suspicion for traffic stops conducted throughout the Eastern District of 6 California,” (2) “assessing flight risk using factors such as ‘family, home, or employment’ (that is, 7 community ties);” and (3) “documenting the facts and circumstances surrounding a warrantless arrest in 8 an alien’s Form I-213 as soon as practicable.” (Doc. 31 at 15.) Defendants also contend the El Centro 9 Sector is “taking steps to implement training using on the Muster.” (Id. at 16, citing Exh. B [Doc. 31-10 2].) According to Defendants, Border Patrol’s “issuance of guidance and commitment to training 11 thereon constitutes a change in circumstances forestalling a ‘substantial controversy of sufficient 12 immediacy and reality.’” (Id., quoting Preiser v. Newkirk, 422 U.S. 395, 402 (1975) [cleaned up].)
13 Defendants contend the Muster and training are “more than a mere voluntary cessation of allegedly 14 illegal conduct where USBP is free to return to their old ways.” (Id. [citation omitted, cleaned up].)
15 Defendants assert the “prompt and responsive actions in light of Plaintiffs’ complaint forcefully 16 demonstrates its commitment to forestall similar alleged violations in the future.” (Id. at 17.) They 17 contend “this is the relief Plaintiffs requested,” and as a result “[t]here is now no reasonable expectation 18 that the alleged wrong will be repeated.” (Id., quoting Preiser, 422 U.S. at 402 [as modified].)

19 Plaintiffs dispute that their claims are moot based upon Defendants’ actions. (Doc. 38 at 7, 20 emphasis omitted.) Plaintiffs contend, “[T]he Muster does not address most of the unlawful conduct 21 on which Plaintiffs seek relief. For example, by its own terms, the Muster addresses only ‘arrests 22 effected by’ Border Patrol agents and ‘Vehicle Stops.’” (Id. at 8, quoting Doc. 31-1 at 2.) Plaintiffs 23 report Defendants also declined to “commit[] to keep the Muster in place ... until Plaintiffs’ detentive 24 stop and warrantless arrest claims are finally resolved,” which Plaintiffs believe “suggest[s] the Muster 25 is not long term.” (Id., citing Greenberg Decl. ¶¶ 3-4 [Doc. 38-1 at 2].) Plaintiffs also argue that the 26 timing of the Muster—which was issued “just one business day before Defendants filed their 27 opposition”—“merits skepticism from the Court.” (Id. at 8, citing R.W. v. Columbia Basin Coll., 77 28 F.4th 1214, 1226 (9th Cir. 2023).) Plaintiffs contend there is “no evidence the Muster will cause a

1 change in conduct,” because the practices in “Operation Return to Sender” were contrary to “well-2 defined legal requirements” and “prior trainings on the same issues apparently failed to prevent El 3 Centro Border Patrol from engaging in these blatantly unlawful practices.” (Id.) Finally, Plaintiffs 4 assert that “Defendants have done nothing to explicitly recognize ‘the wrongful nature’ of their 5 practices,” and the lack of recognition weighs against finding Border Patrol made a “bona fide change 6 in policy.” (Id. at 9-10, citing U.S. v. W. T. Grant Co., 345 U.S. 629, 633 (1953); S.E.C. v. Murphy, 7 626 F.2d 633, 655 (9th Cir. 1980).)

8 Reviewing the language of the Muster, the Court is unable to find it is “broad in scope.” See 9 Rosebrock, 745 F.3d at 971 (quoting White v. Lee, 227 F.3d 1214, 1243 (9th Cir. 2000).) Sergio 10 Guzman reports the area of responsibility for the El Centro Sector includes the “70 linear miles along 11 the U.S. and Mexico border from the Jacumba Mountains in the west to the Imperial Sand Dunes in the 12 east,” and “inland areas of California extending all the way to the Oregon State Line, including 13 Bakersfield, California.” (Doc. 31-2 at 3, Guzman Decl. ¶ 6.) This encompasses the Northern, Central, 14 Southern, and Eastern Districts of California. However, the Muster indicates that it is applicable only 15 to “arrests effected by El Centro Sector Border Patrol Agents ... in the Eastern District of California.” 16 (Doc. 31-1 at 2 [emphasis added].) The Muster is clearly narrow in scope and designed to address only 17 the local district. In contrast, the DHS Broadcast indicates that it was “applicable to all arrests effected 18 under 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2) / INA § 287(a)(2),” without any geographical limitations. (Doc. 15-2 at 19 111.) The Muster does not mention detentive stops by foot patrols, or the necessary reasonable 20 suspicion for such stops, which are encompassed in the claims of the Suspicionless Stop Class. The 21 language used in the Muster is permissive, indicating that an agent “should document the facts and 22 circumstances surrounding that warrantless arrest in the narrative section of the alien’s I-213 as soon as 23 practicable” and what information the document “should include.” (Doc. 31-1 at 3 [emphasis added].)
 24 Thus, the language of the Muster is neither broad in scope nor unequivocal in tone,¹³ and does not

 27 ¹³ This differs from the DHS Broadcast, which contains mandatory language and provides that agents “must 28 document the facts and circumstances surrounding that warrantless arrest in the narrative section of the alien’s I-213 as soon as practicable” and identifies what information that the documentation “must include.” (Doc. 15-2 at 112 [emphasis added].)

1 support a finding of mootness.¹⁴

2 The timing of the Muster does not support a finding of mootness. Border Patrol issued the 3 Muster a single business day before the deadline for Defendants to oppose the pending request for a 4 preliminary injunction. The exceedingly short duration between the Muster issuance and the hearing
5 renders it impossible for the Court to find the terms of the Muster are now “entrenched” in the practices 6 of Border Patrol’s El Centro Sector. See Fikre, 904 F.3d at 1033. Even policies in existence for 7 months do not support a finding of mootness. See, e.g., A.O. v. Cuccinelli, 457 F.Supp.3d 777, 7889
8 (N.D. Cal. 2020) (where a policy was implemented for six months, this duration “weigh[ed] against a 9 finding of mootness”); Irvine Community News & Views, LLC v. City of Irvine, 2016 WL 11744976, at 10 *5 (C.D. Cal. June 15, 2016) (finding a policy in place for “only about four months” did not support a 11 conclusion that the plaintiffs’ claims were rendered moot).

12 The Court also considers Defendants’ ability to withdraw the Muster to evaluate whether the 13 matter is moot. See Rosebrock, 745 F.3d at 971; Bell, 709 F.3d at 900. For example, in Bell, the 14 Court considered whether a “Special Order” issued to a police department mooted the plaintiffs’ 15 claims concerning constitutional violations. The Court observed that the Special Order was an 16 “internal policy” issued by the chief of police “that purported to curb the discretion of officers.” Id.
17 The Court observed: “Even assuming Defendants have no intention to alter or abandon the Special 18 Order, the ease with which the Chief of Police could do so counsels against a finding of mootness.”
19 Id. (citing Coral Constr. Co. v. King Cnty., 941 F.2d 910, 928 (9th Cir. 1991)). As in Bell, the Muster 20 appears to be an “internal policy” issued to the El Centro agents. Sergio Guzman reports that the El 21 Centro Sector “intends to keep this muster in place without revision.” (Doc. 45-1 at 3, ¶ 6.) However, 22 there is nothing to show the Muster could not be withdrawn or altered in the future. There is also 23 nothing to suggest that the training could not be abandoned before completion.¹⁵ Consequently, “the 24

25 ¹⁴ Defendants fail to explain why the Muster is needed at all. The law on the topics encompassed by the Muster is 26 clear and has been for more than 50 years. The Court is stymied by the apparent position of the government that 27 until the Muster issued, the El Centro officers were unaware of their obligations under the Fourth Amendment, the Supreme Court’s decisions, including Brignoni-Ponce, and the Ninth Circuit authorities dating back decades.

28 ¹⁵ The El Centro Sector includes “975 agents and 149 support personnel.” (Doc. 31-2 at 3, Guzman Decl. ¶ 7.)
At the hearing, Defendants’ counsel reported that 207 agents received training on Wednesday, April 23, 2025.

1 ease with which” the Muster could be withdrawn or revised at any time weighs against mootness. See 2 Bell, 709 F.3d at 900.

3 Notably, the Ninth Circuit explained that “the government’s unambiguous renunciation of its 4 past actions can compensate for the ease with which it may relapse into them.” Fikre, 904 F.3d at 1039 5 (finding the plaintiff’s due process claims were not moot where there the government could easily re-6 take the same alleged wrongful action and there was not “any renouncement by the government of its 7 prerogative and authority to do so”). In W.T. Grant, the Supreme Court also indicated that to evaluate 8 mootness, one factor may be a defendant’s profession to discontinue the wrongful conduct. Id., 345 9 U.S at 633. The Court later explained that “[w]hat matters is not whether a defendant repudiates its 10 past actions, but what repudiation can prove about its future conduct.” FBI v. Fikre, 601 U.S. 234 11 (2022). Here, Defendants do not repudiate the alleged wrongful actions. At the hearing, Defendants 12 indicated that they were not focused on addressing the allegations—or the past conduct of Border 13 Patrol agents— but instead repeatedly stated they were focused on the remedy requested by Plaintiffs.
14 Defendants did not make any “unambiguous renunciation” of the actions taken during “Operation 15 Return to Sender.” To the contrary, they continued to repeat that The statements by Defendants do not 16 compensate for the ease for which the Muster may be withdrawn, and there is no showing that future 17 violations of the well-established laws are unlikely based upon the issuance of the Muster.
18 Consequently, this factor weighs against finding the matter is moot.

19 Finally, by Defendants’ own admission, the Muster does not “fully address[] all of the 20 objectionable measures” alleged by Plaintiffs. See Rosebrock, 745 F.3d at 971 (emphasis added).
21 Though Defendants repeatedly indicate the guidance provides “nearly all the relief Plaintiffs seek” 22 (Doc. 31 at 15, 17), “nearly all” is not all. Compare with White, 227 F.3d at 1243. As discussed above, 23 there is nothing to address Plaintiffs’ concerns regarding detentive stops by Border Patrol agents on 24 foot patrols—or the reasonable suspicion requirement for such stops—because the Muster focuses upon 25 “vehicle stops.” This also weighs against mootness determination. See Bell, 709 F.3d at 900 (finding a 26 policy did not moot the plaintiffs’ claims where it “fail[ed] to fully address” the plaintiffs’ allegations 27 in their amended complaint).

28 Ultimately, Defendants fail to meet their “heavy burden” to establish “it is absolutely clear that the allegedly wrongful behavior could not reasonably be expected to recur.” Fikre, 904 F.3d at 1037; Adarand, 528 U.S. at 222 (emphasis in original). The training of Border Patrol agents regarding the terms of the Muster also offers little support to find mootness. Indeed, the evidence before the Court is that Border Patrol agents under DHS authority engaged in conduct that violated well-established constitutional rights despite the DHS Broadcast containing similar language as the Muster. On this record, the Court is unable to find the request for a preliminary injunction is moot. See Rosebrock, 745 F.3d at 971; Bell, 709 F.3d at 901.

3. Conclusion

Plaintiffs demonstrate a likelihood of success on the merits for the claims of the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes given the significant anecdotal evidence—which Defendants do not dispute or rebut—regarding the detentive stop and arrest practices of Border Patrol. Defendants’ arguments regarding the lack of jurisdiction and mootness are without merit. Accordingly, this factor supports granting a preliminary injunction.

B. Imminent, Irreparable Harm

The Ninth Circuit observed that if a plaintiff who brings a claim for a constitutional violation shows a likelihood of success on the merits, “that showing will almost always demonstrate he is suffering irreparable harm as well.” Baird, 81 F.4th at 1040. Indeed, “it is well-established that the deprivation of constitutional rights ‘unquestionably constitutes irreparable injury.’” de Jesus Ortega Melendres v. Arpaio, 695 F.3d 990, 1002 (9th Cir. 2012) (quoting Elrod v. Burns, 427 U.S. 347, 373 (1976)). Consequently, violations of the Fourth Amendment show an irreparable harm that supports a request for injunctive relief. Melendres, 695 F.3d at 1002 (affirming the district court’s finding that, in the absence of an injunction, the plaintiffs faced irreparable harm where it was likely they would be unlawfully detained in violation of the Fourth Amendment); see also Brown v. Greene Cty., 717 F. Supp. 3d 689, 696 (S.D. Oh. 2024) (“courts have found that violations of the Fourth Amendment constitute irreparable harm sufficient to justify injunctive relief” [cleaned up]).

A preliminary injunction will not remedy past harms. Instead, a preliminary injunction is “to protect ... from irreparable injury that will surely result without their issuance.” Schrier v. Univ. Of Co., 427 F.3d 1253, 1267 (10th Cir. 2005). Nevertheless, “[p]ast harms can tend to show the threat of a

1 repeated injury.” Ctr. for Food Safety v. Vilsack, 636 F.3d 1166, 1173 (9th Cir. 2011). The threat of 2 injury “must be imminent, not remote or speculative” to support a request for a preliminary injunction.
 3 FDIC v. Garner, 125 F.3d 1272, 1279 (9th Cir. 1997) cert. denied, 523 U.S. 1020 (1998); see also 4 Boardman v. Pac. Seafood Grp., 822 F.3d 1011, 1022 (9th Cir. 2016).

5 The uncontroverted evidence shows the El Centro Sector repeatedly expressed an intent to 6 perform additional operations in the Eastern District of California, including Bakersfield, Fresno, and 7 Sacramento. On January 9, 2025, the El Centro Sector indicated it “continue[s] to field dozens of 8 Border Patrol Agents in Kern County and surrounding area...” (Doc. 15-2 at 32.) The same date, the 9 Sector stated: “We are planning operations for other locals such as Fresno and especially Sacramento.”
 10 (Id. at 30.) On January 10, 2025, the Sector stated, “we will try and catch even more next time.” (Id.
 11 at 18.) On January 12, 2025, in response to a comment stating, “Here in Bakersfield, you guys forgot 12 to raid some people,” the Sector stated, “We plan on coming back!!” (Id. at 16.) Later in January 13 2025, an individual commented “Return to sender round 2,” to which the Sector replied, “You bet!”
 14 (Id. at 12.) Again, on January 29, 2025, the Sector expressed that the Border Patrol agents would go 15 “wherever the threats and crime take us, whether that’s #SanBernardino #LosAngeles #Riverside 16 #Barstow #Bakersfield or beyond.”¹⁶ (Id. at 14 [emphasis added].) The evidence of the practices 17 employed by Border Patrol agents during “Operation Return to Sender”—including detentive stops on 18 foot patrols and vehicular stops without reasonable suspicion—the plans of Border Patrol to perform 19 additional, similar operations in this District and the seeming position of the government that Border 20 patrol agents are not currently trained on their obligations under the Fourth Amendment, demonstrates 21 imminent, irreparable harm to the Suspicionless Stop Class.

22 Furthermore, in expressing the intent to perform future operations, the Sector stated: “anyone 23 we encounter who doesn’t have the legal right to be in or remain in the U.S. will be arrested.” (Doc.

 25 ¹⁶ Plaintiffs’ supplemental evidence discusses an operation performed by Border Patrol in Pomona, California, 26 on Tuesday, April 22, 2025. Reports on the Pomona operation indicate that agents went to a Home Depot 27 parking lot where day laborers were gathered and arrested 9 individuals. (See Doc. 43-1 at 4-5.) Though 28 recognizing the lack of detail as to the reasons for the detentive stops and arrests, on its face, the Pomona operation bears a striking similarity to “Operation Return to Sender” with the Home Depot detentive stops described by Plaintiff Wilder Munguia Esquivel and Class Members Jesus Ramirez and Luis Perez Cruz.
 Although the Pomona operation occurred beyond the relevant geographical area, the fact that the operation occurred reinforces the expressed intent of Border Patrol to perform additional operations in this district.

15-2 at 12 [emphasis added].) Similarly, Gregory Bovino, Chief Patrol Agent for the El Centro Sector, stated in a social media post: “Undocumented means just that. I recommend returning to the country of origin, obtaining proper documents, and doing it the right way. If not, we will arrest.” (Id. at 36 [emphasis added].) These statements show Border Patrol agents from the El Centro Sector do not intend to comply with the requirements to perform flight risk assessments for probable cause in the forthcoming operations—including in this District— but to perform warrantless arrests without probable cause. Consequently, Plaintiffs have shown imminent, irreparable harm to the Warrantless Arrest Class.

9 C. Balancing of Equities and Public Interest

10 Plaintiffs must demonstrate that “the balance of equities tips in [its] favor” and a preliminary 11 injunction “is in the public interest.” Stormans, Inc. v. Selecky, 586 F.3d at 1127 (quoting Winter, 555 12 U.S. at 20). Because the government is a party, the Court considers these two factors together. Nken 13 v. Holder, 556 U.S. 418, 435 (2009); Baird, 81 F.4th at 1040. In weighing equities, the Court “must 14 balance the competing claims of injury and must consider the effect on each party of the granting or 15 withholding of the requested relief.” Winter, 555 U.S. at 24 (citation omitted). When determining the 16 public interest, the Court “primarily addresses impact on non-parties rather than parties.” League of 17 Wilderness Defs./Blue Mountains Biodiversity Project v. Connaughton, 752 F.3d 755, 766 (9th Cir.
 18 2014). When the alleged action by the government violates federal law, the public interest factor 19 generally weighs in favor of the plaintiffs. See Valle del Sol Inc. v. Whiting, 732 F.3d 1006, 1029 (9th 20 Cir. 2013).

21 The Ninth Circuit observed: “A plaintiff’s likelihood of success on the merits of a 22 constitutional claim also tips the merged third and fourth factors decisively in his favor.” Baird, 81 23 F.4th at 1036. The Court explained, “public interest concerns are implicated when a constitutional 24 right has been violated, ... all citizens have a stake in upholding the Constitution.” Id. (quoting 25 Preminger v. Principi, 422 F.3d 815, 826 (9th Cir. 2005)). In other words, “it is always in the public 26 interest to prevent the violation of a party’s constitutional rights.” Id. (quoting Riley’s Am. Heritage 27 Farms v. Elsasser, 32 F.4th 707, 732 (9th Cir. 2022)). The government also “cannot reasonably assert 28 that it is harmed in any legally cognizable sense by being enjoined from constitutional violations.”

1 Zepeda, 753 F.2d at 727.

2 Because Plaintiffs show a likelihood of success on the merits of the claims for the 3 Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes, the balance of equities tip in their favor and an 4 injunction is in the public interest. As the Ninth Circuit explained, it is within the public interest to 5 uphold the Fourth Amendment rights in issue. See Baird, 81 F.4th at 1036; see also Fellowship of 6 Christian Athletes v. San Jose Unified Sch. Dist. Bd. of Educ., 82 F.4th 664 (2023) (“it is always in the 7 public interest to prevent the violation of a party’s constitutional rights”) (citation omitted). Finally, 8 the government will not be harmed by being enjoined from engaging in practices that violate the 9 Constitution and which fail to comply with decisional and statutory responsibilities. See Zepeda, 753 10 F.2d at 727. Consequently, the third and fourth Winter factors support Plaintiffs’ request for a 11 preliminary injunction.

12 D. Posting of a Bond

13 Plaintiffs carry the burden to show the Winter factors support the issuance of a preliminary 14 injunction. Pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, “the court may issue a preliminary 15 injunction ... only if the movant gives security in an amount that the court considers proper to pay the 16 costs and damages sustained by any party found to have been wrongfully enjoined or restrained.” Fed.

ORDER

Based upon the foregoing, the Court ORDERS:

1. Plaintiffs' motion for provisional class certification (Doc. 14) is GRANTED, and the classes are defined as:

Suspicionless Stop Class: All persons since January 6, 2025, who have been or will be subjected to a detentive stop by Border Patrol in this district without a pre-stop, individualized assessment of reasonable suspicion whether the person (1) is engaged in an offense against the United States or (2) is a noncitizen unlawfully in the United States.

Warrantless Arrest Class: All persons since January 6, 2025, who have been arrested or will be arrested in this district by Border Patrol without a warrant and without a pre-arrest, individualized assessment of probable cause that the person poses a flight risk.

2. Oscar Morales Cisneros, Wilder Munguia Esquivel, and Yolanda Aguilera Martinez are APPOINTED as class representatives for both the Suspicionless Stop and Warrantless Arrest Classes.
3. Bree Bernwanger, Michelle (Minju) Y. Cho, Lauren Davis, and Shilpi Agarwal, Mayra Joachin, Eva Bitran, and Oliver Ma, Brisa Velazquez Oatis, Ajay S. Krishnan, Franco Muzzio, Zainab O. Ramahi, and Julia L. Greenberg are APPOINTED as Class Counsel for the provisional classes.
4. Plaintiffs' motion for a preliminary injunction (Doc. 15) is GRANTED, as follows:
 - a. Border Patrol is enjoined from conducting detentive stops in this District unless, pre-stop, the detaining agent has reasonable suspicion that the person to be stopped is a noncitizen who is present within the United States in violation of U.S. immigration law, as required by the Fourth Amendment of the United States Constitution.
 - b. Border Patrol is enjoined from effecting warrantless arrests in this District unless, pre-arrest, the arresting agent has probable cause to believe that the noncitizen being arrested is likely to escape before a warrant can be obtained, as required by 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2).
 - c. Any Border Patrol agent who conducts a detentive stop in this District SHALL, as soon as practicable, document the facts and circumstances surrounding the stop in a

1 narrative form. This documentation SHALL include the specific, particularized facts 2 that supported the agent's reasonable suspicion, which was formed in advance of the 3 stop, that: (i) for vehicle stops, the vehicle contained a noncitizen present within the 4 United States in violation of U.S. immigration law; and (ii) for stops on foot, the person 5 stopped was a noncitizen within the United States in violation of U.S. immigration law.
6 The documentation SHALL include the date and time that the agent completed the 7 detentive stop and the date and time the agent completed the documentation.

8 d. Any Border Patrol agent who conducts a warrantless arrest in this District 9 SHALL comply with all requirements set forth in DHS's "Broadcast Statement of 10 Policy" on compliance with 8 U.S.C. § 1357(a)(2), including but not limited to the 11 requirement that as soon as practicable after an arrest, agents SHALL document in 12 writing "the facts and circumstances surrounding the warrantless arrest" and the 13 "specific, particularized facts supporting the conclusion that the [individual] was likely 14 to escape before a warrant could be obtained."

15 Within 60 days and every 60 days thereafter until this litigation is terminated 16 or the Court rules otherwise, Border Patrol SHALL release to Plaintiffs' counsel the 17 documentation describing Border Patrol's detentive stops and warrantless arrests within 18 this District, or if requested by Plaintiffs' counsel concerning specific individual 19 detentive stops or warrantless arrests, no later than seven days after the request.

20 e. Within 60 days of this order, Defendants SHALL serve to Plaintiffs' counsel 21 a directive setting forth the guidance given to Border Patrol agents concerning how 22 they should determine whether "reasonable suspicion" exists when conducting 23 detentive stops, including vehicle stops, in this District. This guidance shall include, 24 among other things, that refusal to answer questions does not, without more, constitute 25 a basis for reasonable suspicion to justify a detentive stop.

26 f. Within 90 days of this order and every 30 days thereafter until all agents 27 associated with the El Centro Sector and those who are charged with making detentive 28 stops and warrantless arrests in this District have been trained, Defendants SHALL

1 serve to Plaintiffs' counsel documentation showing that they have trained the Border 2 Patrol agents who have performed, or will perform, operations in this District on the 3 requirements articulated above.
